THREE BEATEN IN LIQUOR WAR

TODAY

"The Sorrow of the Air."
Warning to United States.
Begging With An Ax.
That's Not New in America.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune).

Recently, in a little church at Lakewood, N. J., the Rev. H. D. Jones, devoted his sermon to the memory of the unfortunate men killed in the Shenandoah disaster. Commander Landsdowne and others of the Shenandoah crew had attended Rev. Mr. Jones' church.

There was, of course, no criticism of anybody from that pulpit. The preacher chose for his theme, "Sorrow," and dwelt upon it most eloquently.

He told of the sorrow of the mountains, where great landslides sweep away villages. The sorrow of the valley, where floods destroy, the sorrow of the sea, where ships are lost.

Then he dwelt upon the new sorrow, the sorrow of the air, so forcibly brought home to a great nation in the loss of the Shenandoah and her brave men.

"Sorrow of the air"—there is power in those words.

And there may be for this country a dreadful meaning in "sorrow of the air," if the United States neglects to provide an adequate air fleet and common sense management of its aircraft problem.

"The sorrow of unpreparedness" might prove such a sorrow as would cripple this nation for a hundred years.

The loss of the Shenandoah was a great calamity, tragic, appalling. But if meant, after all, only snuffing out the lives of 14 brave men, every one of whom would lie peacefully in his grave now, if he could be sure that the warning of his death had not been wasted.

Think of what might come in sorrow from the air if this nation, utterly unprepared as it is now, were suddenly surprised by an air attack.

There would be tens of thousands suffocated by poison gas in cities. There would be other thousands of lives snuffed out by deadly explosives, there would be hundreds of millions of property destroyed, although that is but a minor detail.

Those five words of warning, "The Sorrow of the Air," should sink into the minds of everybody responsible for government in the United States.

To keep from this nation "Sorrow of the Air" is the first duty of the president of the United States and of every member of congress.

Perhaps you read about beggars in Turkey that are real "go-getters."

After they beg, they threaten, and even have an ax at hand for "stingy givers." The Mohammedan religion says that every good Turk must give one-fortieth of his income to the poor.

Therefore the beggar has in a certain way the right to say when refused, "You will go to hell," meaning that a man refusing to give to a beggar is not obeying the law of Mohammet, the great prophet.

It is suggested that laws be passed against giving money to beggars in Turkey, and Kemal Pasha, who took the veil from Turkish women's faces and the red fez from men's heads, could do almost anything. But that wouldn't help. So the Turkish beggar,

TWO MEN UNHURT AS TRUCK RUNS WILD ON LISBON STREET HILL

Hallowe'en Prank Causes Wreck of Truck and Auto

Hallowe'en pranksters are blamed for a crash between a truck and an automobile near the corner of Sixth and Walnut streets last night.

After William Mercer, driver for Rinehart Brothers, road contractors, parked his truck on Thompson avenue, near his rooming house, boys are alleged to have released the brakes on the machine, starting it down Thompson avenue and East Sixth street grades.

Near the Buckeye Motor company's garage, the runaway swerved to one side of the street and crashed into an Essex car owned by the motor company. The front end of the Essex car was crushed and the truck was slightly damaged.

HURTLES CURB, LANDS IN CELLAR

Two Touring Cars Crash at Sixth Street and Broadway — Newell Automobile Wrecked Near Pughtown.

Two men narrowly escaped injury about 7 o'clock this morning when a truck, owned by the Ohio Willite Paving & Surfacing company, of this city, loaded with asphalt, ran wild down the Lisbon street hill.

When a drive chain on the truck, enroute to Lisbon, broke as the machine neared the old West End fire station, the brakes failed to hold and the vehicle backed down the grade.

Workers Remain In Seats.

Near the bottom of the hill the truck struck a telephone pole, breaking it off, uprooted a tree, hurtled the curb and dropped into a sidewalk cellar entrance.

The driver and his helper retained their places on the truck during its rampage.

The asphalt was loaded into another truck and the disabled machine was towed to a garage for repairs by the McElravy wrecker.

Two Other Accidents.

Cars owned by City Chemist Daniel H. Rupp and a Mr. Caldwell of Lisbon collided at the corner of Sixth street and Broadway at 9:45 o'clock last night. Rupp was driving north on Broadway, while Caldwell was traveling east on Sixth street when the crash occurred. The front end of the Rupp machine was badly damaged.

The Lisbon man is said to have continued on his way and at the corner of Sixth and Walnut street was headed off by Assistant Fire Chief Elmer McMillan, whose attention was attracted by the crash, as he was on his way to investigate a chimney fire. McMillan took him back to the scene of the crash and turned him over to Patrolman Lister. After arrangements were made with Rupp for adjustment of the damages, he was released. McElravy Brothers took charge of Rupp's car.

An automobile, owned by Thomas Geer of near Newell, lost a rear wheel in a collision with another car on the Chester-New Cumberland road, near Pughtown, last night. The other driver failed to stop. Geer's machine was brought here by the McElravy wrecker.

MITCHELL WINS VICTORIES IN COURT-MARTIAL

Challenged Right of Three Generals to Judge Him.

GIVE UP PLACES

Charges Two Men are Prejudiced Against Him.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Col. Billy Mitchell, the stormy petrel of the army air service, started off his court-marial today with three victories.

On the ground that two of the generals sitting as his judges were prejudiced against him, personally and officially, he successfully challenged their right to sit & judgment upon him, and they retired. One of them was Maj. Gen. Charles Summerall, the presiding officer of the court. The other was Brig. Gen. Albert Bowley.

Bowley went first, after some consultation among the 12 generals comprising the court. Then Frank S. Reid, civilian counsel for Mitchell, challenged Summerall.

Reid challenged Summerall for "personal prejudice" at Mitchell's personal direction.

This prefudice, Reid contended, was due to a report Mitchell had made while assistant chief of the army air service, condemning Summerall's handling of aviation while in command of the Hawaiian department. In his re-

Formation of an East Liverpool district Boy Scout organization, which will be affiliated with the Columbiana County council, will be completed at a meeting next Monday evening in the Y. M. C. A. here.

According to tentative plans, the six Boy Scout troops will be included in the district council. These troops are those at the First Methodist Episcopal, First Presbyterian, Pennsylvania avenue M. E., and St. Aloysius Catholic churches of this city, one in Chester and one in Newell.

Boy Scout work in East Liverpool during the last several years has not been active. If the district council is formed, it is planned to organize several new troops. All Scoutmasters and youths interested in the new council have been invited to attend next Monday night's meeting.

COLD WAVE, RIDING ON WHITE WINGS OF SNOWSTORM, SWOOPS DOWN ON OHIO

Temperatures of 18 Degrees or Lower Will Over-spread Entire State by Tomorrow Morning, is Warning.

Riding on the white wings of a howling snow storm, a record breaking cold wave for this time of the year, was swooping down on East Liverpool and other Ohio cities from the northwest today.

"Temperatures of 18 degrees or lower will over-spread the entire state of Ohio by tomorrow morning," predicted Government Meteorologist W. H. Alexander, of Columbus, this afternoon.

Never in the history of the Columbus weather bureau has so severe a cold wave visited Ohio at this time of the year, Meteorologist Alexander said.

Thieves Pay no Attention to Sign, Lock Lisbon Safe

Robbers who broke into the I. C. Bean feed mill office in Lisbon do not believe in signs.

"This safe is not locked," was the notice hanging on the strong box.

But the thieves, instead of opening the door, turned the combination, locking it.

They then ransacked desk drawers and letter files, getting less than one dollar for their efforts.

Victim of Alleged Attack is Found Lying in Street

Police today were searching for an East End man who is alleged to have seriously beaten Clarence Speidel, of Chester, at the corner of Broadway and Third street about 4:30 this morning.

A taxi driver called police headquarters, asserting that a man was lying in the street near the corner of Third street and Broadway, his face and clothing covered with blood. The driver said that he had just hauled a passenger to East End who claimed to have "beaten up" the stranger.

Speidel was brought to the city hall. He claimed he did not know the name of his assailant. He was held in jail on a charge of being intoxicated.

Patrolman Chester Smith was to question the suspect today.

HOME IS FIRED IN EFFORT TO HIDE CRIME IN WEST VIRGINIA

Father, Mother and Son Murderously Attacked.

YOUTH MAY DIE

One Victim Claims Assailant Poured Oil to Start Blaze.

MARIETTA, Oct. 28.—Warring factions of moonshiners who infest the southern border of Wood county, West Virginia, are charged with murderously beating Mr. and Mrs. Walker Smith and their son, Claude, and then burning their home, 10 miles south of Parkersburg, early this morning.

The Smiths are in a Parkersburg hospital. The father and son are suffering from fractured skulls while Mrs. Smith was badly beaten. The son, it was stated, will die, while the father's recovery is doubtful. State police are working on the case.

Suspect Dynamite Explosion.

Either the Smiths were beaten by their assailants who then set fires for the purpose of concealing the crime, or their injuries and the fire resulted from a dynamite explosion.

When neighbors arrived, they found the elder Smith and another son, Okey, dragging the victims of the attack from the flaming ruins of their home. Walker Smith, conscious at intervals since the fire, declared he heard an explosion.

Then, he said, he was attacked. He declared he saw a strange man pouring oil on the floors of the house. Then the flames started.

THREE-MILL TAX LEVY IS CRISIS FOR EAST LIVERPOOL DISTRICT SCHOOLS, SAYS SENIOR CLASS GIRL

(Editor's note:—The following essay, "A Local Crisis,' was written by Miss Edwinna Wilson, member of the Senior class of the high school, in the interests of the proposed three mill school levy which will be submitted to the electors of the school district on next Tuesday.)

"In every period of history, and in the course of every event there is always a crisis and a turning point toward continued or receding progress. That crisis has come to East Liverpool in the form of a three-mill levy for the schools.

"The question at issue in the face of the November election is: "Shall we, as citizens of East Liverpool, prove our true worth by passing this three mill levy, thus making it possible to have nine months of school?' or "Shall we, for the sake of a few luxuries, fail to pass it, thus hindering the education of the coming generation?"

"Let us look at the question fairly, resolving to change our opinion, should we see the need of the levy.

'First: What is the three mill levy, and why is it of so much importance at the present time?' It is a levy to be voted on by the voters of East Liverpool, for the purpose of, not increasing the taxes and thus the school funds, but retaining the present rate of 8.71 mills on the dollar, which is the school allotment. It is not a levy advocated by the board of education, but by a budget commission made up of the county auditor, prosecuting attorney and county treasurer.

"Second: The approximate taxable property of East Liverpool is $36,000,000, the tax rate on which is $21.90 on each $1,000. This yields a total of $788,400, of which $313,560 is allotted to the schools, or about 39 per cent of the total tax is spent in educating the children. Out of this amount the teachers are paid, literature is provided, buildings are kept in repair, besides the numerous other items that must be taken care of. The school tax cannot be lessened when there is so much expense because the extra three mills are needed in taking care of the incurred debts.

"Third: While the tax millage for East Liverpool is 21, that for Wellsville is 28, which means that Wellsville, a city not nearly so large as East Liverpool, is paying more taxes than her neighbor.

Other school districts of Ohio have a school levy of 15 mills and 10 is a common rate. Surely, a city of as much wealth as East Liverpool, whose inhabitants have a reputation of being very generous, is capable of holding a standard as high as other Ohio cities.

"Fourth: At the present time we are short of $30,000, which is partly due to the fact that all the taxes were not paid on account of the dissatisfaction caused by the last reappraisement. Unless this levy passes there will be a shortage every year of $110,000, besides the present shortage.

"Fifth: This levy should be passed without any murmuring on the part of the tax-payer, because the cost of material has increased 75 per cent since the war, wages have increased, but the school tax has remained the same. What expert management could present such a course of study as is being offered today, with those conditions existing?

"Sixth: Without this three-mill levy schools will be in session but five and

COLD WAVE, RIDING ON WHITE WINGS OF SNOWSTORM, SWOOPS DOWN ON OHIO

Temperatures of 18 Degrees or Lower Will Over-spread Entire State by Tomorrow Morning, is Warning.

Riding on the white wings of a howling snow storm, a record breaking cold wave for this time of the year, was swooping down on East Liverpool and other Ohio cities from the northwest today.

Thieves Pay no Attention to Sign, Lock Lisbon Safe

Robbers who broke into the I. C. Bean feed mill office in Lisbon do not believe in signs.

"This safe is not locked," was the notice hanging on the strongbox.

But the thieves, instead of opening the door, turned the combination, locking it.

They then ransacked desk drawers and letter files, getting less than one dollar for their efforts.

HOME IS FIRED IN EFFORT TO HIDE CRIME IN WEST VIRGINIA

Father, Mother and Son Murderously Attacked.

One Victim Claims Assailant Poured Oil to Start Blaze.

MARIETTA, Oct. 28.—Warring factions of moonshiners who infest the southern border of Wood county, West Virginia, are charged with murderously beating Mr. and Mrs. Walker Smith and their son, Claude, and then burning their home, 10 miles south of Parkersburg, early this morning.

The Smiths are in a Parkersburg hospital. The father and son are suffering from fractured skulls while Mrs. Smith was badly beaten. The son, it was stated, will die, while the father's recovery is doubtful. State police are working on the case.

Suspect Dynamite Explosion.

Either the Smiths were beaten by their assailants and their home was fired for the purpose of concealing the crime, or their injuries and the fire resulted from a dynamite explosion.

When neighbors arrived, they found the elder Smith and another son, Okey, dragging the victims of the attack from the flaming ruins of their home. Walker Smith, conscious at intervals since the fire, declared he heard an explosion.

Then, he said, he was attacked. He declared he saw a strange man pouring oil on the floors of the house. Then the flames started.

THREE-MILL TAX LEVY IS CRISIS FOR EAST LIVERPOOL DISTRICT SCHOOLS, SAYS SENIOR CLASS GIRL

(Editor's note:—The following essay, "A Local Crisis,' was written by Miss Edwinna Wilson, member of the Senior class of the high school, in the interests of the proposed three mill school levy which will be submitted to the electors of the school district on next Tuesday.)

"In every period of history, and in the course of every event there is always a crisis and a turning point toward continued or receding progress. That crisis has come to East Liverpool in the form of a three-mill levy for the schools.

"The question at issue in the face of the November election is: "Shall we, as citizens of East Liverpool, prove our true worth by passing this three mill levy, thus making it possible to have nine months of school?' or "Shall we, for the sake of a few luxuries, fail to pass it, thus hindering the education of the coming generation?'

"Let us look at the question fairly, resolving to change our opinion, should we see the need of the levy.

'First: What is the three mill levy, and why is it of so much importance at the present time?' It is a levy to be voted on by the voters of East Liverpool, for the purpose of, not increasing the taxes and thus the school funds, but retaining the present rate of 8.71 mills on the dollar, which is the school allotment. It is not a levy advocated by the board of education, but by a budget commission made up of the county auditor, prosecuting attorney and county treasurer.

"Second: The approximate taxable property of East Liverpool is $36,000,000, the tax rate on which is $21.90 on each $1,000. This yields a total of $788,400, of which $313,560 is allotted to the schools, or about 39 per cent of the total tax is spent in educating the children. Out of this amount the teachers are paid, literature is provided, buildings are kept in repair, besides the numerous other items that must be taken care of. The school tax cannot be lessened when there is so much expense because the extra three mills are needed in taking care of the incurred debts.

"Third: While the tax millage for East Liverpool is 21, that for Wellsville is 28, which means that Wellsville, a city not nearly so large as East Liverpool, is paying more taxes than her neighbor.

Other school districts of Ohio have a school levy of 15 mills and 10 is a common rate. Surely, a city of as much wealth as East Liverpool, whose inhabitants have a reputation of being very generous, is capable of holding a standard as high as other Ohio cities.

"Fourth: At the present time we are short of $30,000, which is partly due to the fact that all the taxes were not paid on account of the dissatisfaction caused by the last reappraisement. Unless this levy passes there will be a shortage every year of $110,000, besides the present shortage.

"Fifth: This levy should be passed without any murmuring on the part of the tax-payer, because the cost of material has increased 75 per cent since the war, wages have increased, but the school tax has remained the same. What expert management could present such a course of study as is being offered today, with those conditions existing?

"Sixth: Without this three-mill levy schools will be in session but five and Accessories Make the Mode.

It's the trifles that make the mode. In no other season has the vogue of accessories been stressed so much as this, for with simple fashions being worn, accessories take the place of trimming and add color to the ensemble. They cost so little to acquire and mean so much.

There's a scarf for every costume because the scarf's the thing. There's a scarf for sports, for tailleur, for warmth, for evening. Lovely and delicate or large and bundly. Giving new life to the wardrobe and adding vivacity to the wearer.

Crepes of solid color or modernistic prints. Georgette scarfs in plain or rainbow tints. The new Shetland wools. Every desired shade. Priced from $3.00 to $9.75.

Gland Treatment Seen As Foe to Corpulency; Test is Successful

LONDON.—The mitigation of corpulency through the medium of gland treatment is being investigated by London medical men.

It is claimed that people become fat or thin through the disorganization of the ductless glands and the London doctors are now attempting to remedy this by administrating the appropriate ductless in tablet form into persons suffering excessive corpulency or thinness. At one London hospital a young boy of fifteen who weighed 236 pounds was subjected to the treatment, and after a short course his weight was reduced to 176 pounds.

"OH, what a beautiful skin! Not a pimple—not a blemish. Perfectly rounded shoulders and a venus-like back! No wonder she's popular.

"If I could only get rid of these ugly pimples, my skin would be clear and soft and dimpling, like hers—maybe people would call me lovely, too."

You're right! The only thing that mars your beauty are those unsightly skin blemishes. Clear them away and watch eyes full of admiration turn in your direction, wherever you go. "But how can I get rid of them?" you ask. What will drive the wretched things away so they won't come back?

Why, that's just exactly what S. S. S. helps Nature do. It's been clearing away pimples, blackheads and blotches for a century. S. S. S. helps Nature build up the blood to where it's pure and healthy—then these ugly things dry right up. And that's the only way you can keep the skin clear and unblemished. S. S. S. puts the blood back to where it can fight the impurities that get in your system and kills them off before they break out through the skin. You can't stop skin eruptions from the outside. You've got to get down underneath where the trouble is—down in the blood.

Begin taking S. S. S. and watch how quickly you get that skin beauty that belongs to you. S. S. S. will charge your whole system so full of strength building, pure, healthy, red blood that you'll be simply brimful of new life and energy.

Accessories Make the Mode.

It's the trifles that make the mode. In no other season has the vogue of accessories been stressed so much as this, for with simple fashions being worn, accessories take the place of trimming and add color to the ensemble. They cost so little to acquire and mean so much.

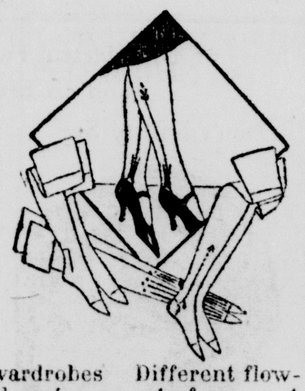
There's a scarf for every costume because the scarf's the thing. There's a scarf for sports, for tailleur, for warmth, for evening. Lovely and delicate or large and bundly. Giving new life to the wardrobe and adding vivacity to the wearer.

Crepes of solid color or modernistic prints. Georgette scarfs in plain or rainbow tints. The new Shetland wools. Every desired shade. Priced from $3.00 to $9.75.

The new gloves are jaunty indeed and to the cuff belongs the glory. Now it is gay embroidery or applique on kid or suede fabric. Also dainty silk gloves with flare cuffs. All the shades of tan, grey and brown with embroidery to match your accessories. In all sizes and styles. Also the ever-popular black and white gloves. Priced from $1.00 to $5.00.

Handbags of every description. For the truly feminine woman we have adorable pouch or vanity bags of silk—or of vari-colored beads in novel designs.

For those inclined to the tailored mode we can offer envelope purses of leather or silk. These bags will hold all the trinkets or accessories you need. All colors to match Fall costumes. All nicely lined and fitted. Priced from $4.95 to $25.00.



Our silk hosiery presents the smartest Paris shades. Exquisite silk stockings, doubly important this Fall, since much more of them is disclosed through the vogue of shorter clothes. In the bieges, nudes and greys that Paris is wearing. Colors for daytime and evening in lustrous silks and filmy chiffons. Gun-metal and black still remain popular and we have them in various qualities of silks. $1.50 to $3.00.

The flower accessory works magic on wardrobes Different flowers worn with the same dress make several costumes out of one. A flower on the shoulder of your evening gown will give it a Paris air. The coat collar should sport a bright-colored boutonniere to match or contrast with your hat. Flowers priced from 50c to $1.65.

Never were there so many dainty handkerchiefs. Every style, color and fabric you can imagine. With lace edging, footing edging, hand embroidery and ever so many other little touches that make them the loveliest ever. Priced from 25c to $3.00.

Matched sets of jewelry are also an important trifle. The right bit of jewelry in the right place can make a costume look entirely different.

Umbrellas to match your costume are here in array. $4.95 to $15.00.

Every kind of toilet article to aid milady's beauty.

The tailored frock finds its most congenial companion in the soldier-stiff collars and cuffs. In white with colored bindings or plain colored chambray gingham. A smart addition to the trim business or school costume. Priced at 50c to $1.00.

Jabots have come out of the past and are again enjoying their old-time popularity. In laces and nets. Priced from $1.00 to $3.00.

Other collar and cuff sets in a variety of styles and sizes.

HEALTH TEST REPORT FILED

Remedial Defects Exist in Large Extent Among School Pupils.

Of the 101,372 school children who were examined by doctors and nurses last year in the state, 41,611 were found to have remedial physical defects, according to a report filed by Miss Edna Hardsaw, field advisory nurse of the state department of health. These examinations were made in 24 counties where children are given health protection through school and public health nurses. In the majority of instances these are employed by school systems, but in at least eight of the counties where there are full-time health departments the nurses give county-wide service.

The number examined represents only about one-fourth of the children attending the graded schools in West Virginia, statistics show, which brings out the fact that there are thousands of children suffering with physical defects who do not have the benefits of physical examinations. The majority of defects can easily be corrected, authorities declare, if they are discovered in time. The number of children showing physical defects has decreased materially in those centers where there are regular school nurses to safeguard the children at all times, as seen by a comparison of recent reports from those places with records of past years.

Miss Hardsaw spent the week in Wood and Roane counties, where she held advisory conferences with school and county nurses in regard to their programs for the coming year.

Princeton and Bluefield are the next centers Miss Hardsaw will visit. She will conduct public health nursing classes at the Bluefield sanitarium and the Princeton Memorial hospital, as well as confer with school nurses.

A total of 11,634 visits to homes were made by school and community nurses in 24 counties of the state, according to a recent report to the state department of health from the various counties. These visits are made in connection with the school and community health programs carried out in these centers.

Reginald Denny Hits Fast Clip in Picture at Ceramic

Reginald Denny becomes the "1925 pioneer" of the open road in "California Straight Ahead,' his latest starring Universal-Jewell feature, which comes to the Ceramic theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

In this picture, which first night audiences hailed as one of the star's best, Denny sets forth for a motor trip across the continent in an elaborately constructed trailer. The trailer had been built for his honeymoon, but the honeymoon didn't come off because he showed up late for his wedding and his bride wouldn't marry him because she thought he'd been drinking.

That starts Denny off on a picture packed full of strange situations, mishaps, adventures, thrills and laughs, which makes "California Straight Ahead" one of the funniest light comedies of the season.

Though the motor trip and the attendant adventures may be a bit more stirring than the usual tourist's journey, at least more people would be tempted to set forth in the automobiles if they were sure of going through all the things Denny did.

As in his other recent pictures, Reginald Denny proves that he is a versatile, accomplished comedian, and his performance rivals his characterization of the hypochondriac in "Oh, Doctor!"

He is admirably supported by Gertrude Olmstead as leading woman, who finally agrees to marry the hero because he will not let her do anything else.

The supporting cast includes Tom Wilson, Charles Gerrard, Fred Esmelton, Lucille Ward, John Steppling, Leo Nomas and others.

The direction of Harry Pollard was usually good, and gave the star every opportunity to display his talent as a fun-maker. Byron Morgan and the director collaborated on the story of "California Straight Ahead."

LONDON.—Englishmen's feet are getting larger due to their increasing participation in tennis and other sports, according to officials at the annual Shoe and Leather Fair just held here.

But now, thanks to a new scientific discovery, all the remarkable tonic properties of the purest Cod Liver Oil and Iron are being made in sugar-coated tablet form and so children and grown-ups may get the full benefit of this great tissue building and blood-making medicine without the nauseous fishy taste of the oil itself.

As there are many cheap imitations on the market go to the drug store that sells Burke's Cod Liver Oil and Iron Tablets, the original and genuine. Don't forget to mention Iron. For sale by Carnahan Drug co., 3 stores, and all good druggists.

Everyone knows and doctors agree that there is nothing so sure and certain to build you up and make you feel strong and vigorous as Cod Liver Oil. But Ugh! how it tastes and therefore too many sick, run down folks refuse to take the very thing they need most because they cannot stand the taste of this wonderful builder of Health.

But now, thanks to a new scientific discovery, all the remarkable tonic properties of the purest Cod Liver Oil and Iron are being made in sugar-coated tablet form and so children and grown-ups may get the full benefit of this great tissue building and blood-making medicine without the nauseous fishy taste of the oil itself.

As there are many cheap imitations on the market go to the drug store that sells Burke's Cod Liver Oil and Iron Tablets, the original and genuine. Don't forget to mention Iron. For sale by Carnahan Drug co., 3 stores, and all good druggists.

Stand By The Schools

Five thousand children, cognizant of the importance of a Class A education, today are appealing to the voters of the East Liverpool district to support a proposed three-mill school tax levy which will be submitted at the election on Tuesday, November 3.

Adding his voice to their supplication, School Superintendent Charles S. McVay warns that the educational system is facing a crisis, for rejection of the request for a continuance of the present revenue means a five-month school term. And adoption of such a plan would be a calamity.

Like 15 other districts in Columbiana county, East Liverpool is asking the electorate to stand by the schools in effort to bridge the chasm over the abyss of chaos, for a demoralized situation looms unless the voters heed the danger sign. Without the three-mill levy, the board of education will be deprived of funds to pay bills for operating expenses.

On the other hand, the efficiency of the schools will be maintained without adding to the burdens of the taxpayer, if the tax is voted, for the board of education is asking merely a renewal of the revenue voted five years ago.

The sensible thing to do is to vote "yes" on the school levy.

What Is a Fresh Egg?

A delegate to a recent butter and egg convention declared that an egg may still be a fresh egg after it has been in storage for a year. Not so fresh, he seems to mean, that it wouldn't hatch, with suitable encouragement; yet not so stale, either, that it suggest hatching.

Whereupon a New York newspaper wants to know what the butter and egg delegate considers a "fresh egg." The subject is confusing. For according to the pewspaper authority, a 'fresh egg" is pretty far down the line of freshness. Grades ranking above it, he observes, as illustrated in the trade, are "strictly fresh, then "guaranteed fresh," then "select," then "fancy," and so on until you arrive at the "extra fancy jumbo select."

An ignorant layman—and a laying hen, for that matter—would probably be disposed to start at the top with "fresh eggs" and grade down from that. But maybe laymen and layers don't understand the psychology of the egg trade.

Nevertheless, it looks to an outsider as if here would be another good place for Secretary Hoover to get in some of his simplifying and standardizing work.

Wise Lonliness

Reading of a radio operator who has lived for 18 months on a lonely Caribbean island, a newspaper reader asks, "What in the world ever impels anyone to live like that?" Then another reader rises to remark that he would like very much to live in such isolation for a while, so that he could get some good reading done.

He is a French-American, of considerable education, who longs for time and opportunity to peruse the world's masterpieces, but finds himself hindered by the necessity of fighting his way through city crowds and answering fool questions on the telephone and "taking dictation from a business man whose sole literature is price lists." He says a very good thing.

Great works of literature, he observes, have been written usually in privacy and quietness. And "if absence from even their friends and families was necessary for these geniuses to write their master books, so much the more is solitude necessary for us who would read them intelligently."

Most people nowadays read little among the books upheld by the best judgment of ages. They say they cannot do it, because of this very lack of privacy and quietness, in a noisy, helter-skelter age, with a thousand persons and things always claiming their attention. Perhaps if they would seek solitude now and then, they could find it more easily than they think; and finding it, they might discover reading and other high pleasures of the mind amply compensating for shallow amusements and trivial contacts.

Living Generosity

Possibly because of the publicity often attached to them, it has been popularly supposed that the more important philanthropies are those left in the form of bequests. This belief, according to the secretary of the Chicago Community Trust, is not fair to the living whose generosity, year in and year out, far exceeds in totals the gifts made through wills.

The Chicago Community Trust is a permanent fund of $3,000,000, the proceeds of which go to charity organizations for distribution. Only $70,000 of those millions came through bequests. All the rest was given by living donors, in amounts varying from very small contributions to very large ones.

Even the fine philanthropies arranged for through bequests might well be credited to living donors, since they are planned while the giver is living.

Bequests, large or small, are important and valuable. Philanthropists who contemplate making contributions to the public welfare by that means should not be discouraged from their purpose. But while appreciating their generosity, it is only fair at the same time to appreciate the generosity of the great number of persons who give regularly and consistently, out of current incomes.

A thrifty almanac would bring Christmas in mid-summer. Then everybody could save money by taking a vacation for Christmas.

The Terrible Tempered Mr. Bang— By Fontaine Fox

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—New York has a polite sneer for the nouveau riche. In a way sudden wealth is branded with stigma. And precipitates social banishment. Hundreds with newly gained trappings of millions are as remote from the social core as a Sahara wandered. Manhattan takes ghoulish glee in showing them they cannot make the grade. They hire social secretaries, press agents and scatter fabulous sums entertaining, and reach the social status of a Flatbush horse doctor. Money will not buy their way into the inner circle.

The best they can do is to entertain a few doubtful noblemen out at elbow, who will accept any invitation that includes a free meal, and give in return a brandied cheer. The new rich are the prey of a hundred pickthanks—polite borrowers who give the idea they can swish into the smart set anytime.

Fly-by-night gossip periodicals thrive on their generosity. Headwaiters would live on lean fare without them. And they are the special suckers of those apartment houses known by numbers who bracket announcements in their ads: "We lease only to the socially desirable."

The opera, first nights, smart cafes and supper club ringsides reveal them night after night with their groups of rather sheepish sycophants. There is nothing of the cheap swagger about them. There is more of the humbleness of a ragged urchin grazing into the efflorescent pastry shop window.

Society can afford to be supercilious, for it costs nothing and the grand manner tickles superior vanity. One man is said to have given two young men, distinguished for adenoids and cuff shooting, $30,000 a year positions. They belonged into the swim.

It was his hope they could open the barred gates. So he could swim a little. He got no further than an invitation to attend an after-theater soiree at their bachelor apartment, featured by maudlin chorus girls and hiccupy men about town. They were willing to accept his money, but accepting him socially was another thing, Mawruss.

New York craves good coffee. All over town tiny shops feature this drink. Outside of a sandwich or doughnut they offer nothing else. There are five to one block on Broadway and they appear filled at all hours day and night. There is an actor who averages 10 cups a day and a motion picture critic who is limiting himself to 12 cups a day. Tea has never been a success in Manhattan. Cafes sell almost everything but tea.

George Eichelberger, a lawyer, says the only differences between small towns and cities are cafes, theaters and Turkish baths. The trick I have never mastered in cities is to distinguish bus boys from waiters. I am continually asking bus boys who cannot speak English for the check.

The sheer loneliness of cities is rather disheartening. In a hotel cafe nightly at dinner there comes a queenly woman of middle years, rather strikingly gowned and alone. She eats a sandwich or perhaps a salad, and nothing else. Once she lived in the hotel until financial misfortune came. She wound up in a hall bedroom nearby, and clings to the past in this fashion. During the day she is a bookkeeper in a produce house.

Anonymous letters amuse me, but one arrived today that seemed to me a shade harsh. Perhaps I'm prejudiced. It started off: "You dirty crook." There was also an intimation I would be "bumped off if I wrote about a certain topic again. (Notice I'm not naming the topic, ha-ha). It makes me rather warm to my anonymous friend in South America who in a critical mood writes me monthly with the opening salutation, "Fathead."

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

City Pounds for Autos.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 28.—Reading, Pennsylvania, has just completed its first six months' experiment with an automobile pound and the city officials call it a success.

The automobile pound as operated by Reading seems a unique institution. The idea has been tried in several other cities, but usually cars were only impounded because of some serious offense against the law, such as illegally transporting liquor. In Reading, however, parking in the wrong place or parking too long in restricted places, is sufficient cause for having one's car taken to the pound.

In the case of a car which has been parked beyond the time limit the method of procedure on the part of the law is as follows: The traffic officer first marks with chalk the tire of the parked car. Then after the time limit has expired he goes around and if the car bearing the chalk mark is still there he puts in a call to the pound for the towing car to be brought around. The car is then towed to the garage which is used as the pound.

When the owner calls for his car he is fined according to the number of his previous offenses. If it is his first offense he is charged $2. The charge for the second offense is $3, third, $4; fourth, $5, and each subsequent offense $5. If the car may be taken to the pound under its own power no towing charge is made, otherwise 50 cents is added.

A rather amusing story is told of a city employe who one day upon looking out of his office window saw his car about to be towed away. Displaying rare presence of mind he dashed down and gave his key to the officer, thus saving the towing charge. This man had a police badge and thought it might avail him something, but the officer remained adamant. Elizabeth was driven to the pound and he was obliged to bail her out.

This system of impounding cars parked too long or in the wrong place has been the cause of many a shock to visitors. Strangers coming to the city are unfamiliar with the traffic regulations, or perhaps trade upon the fact that they are from out of town. At any rate for one reason or another they often are horrified to find up coming out of some shop that their car is not where they left it. Also here is no sign or indication of what could have happened to it. They hysterically call the police headquarters saying their car has been stolen, whereupon they are informed that their car is no doubt in the pound, and directions are given as to its location.

Not Many Complaints.

The mayor's office, under whose personal direction this institution is operated, says that there are comparatively few complaints of this system from out-of-town drivers. Most of the complaints come from townspeople. Of course this might be explained by the fact that those passing through the town perhaps feel that the refund of the small fine is scarcely worth the bother and time it would take to make the claim. On the other hand the people of the town in many cases are desirous of proving how much pull they have in official circles.

As the secretary to the mayor puts it: "Many people come in here claiming personal friendship with the mayor, or the chief of police, or some other official, and feel that for that reason they should be exempt from these traffic regulations." On the whole, however, there are not many complaints and, as the secretary continues, "as a rule you can easily judge those who do make complaint," giving the impression that most of them come from people who would criticise anything.

While there may not be many official complaints against this system one hears much criticism around the town. Many stories are told of the overzealousness of the traffic officers. One in particular is that of a woman who had parked her car while she went to perform some errand. In the car she left her small daughter and dog. An officer intent upon his duty found that the car had been parked beyond the time limit and without consideration for the child and dog had the car towed to the pound. Of course, the child became hysterical with fright and no doubt felt that her instinctive fear of policemen had been justified. This incident aroused the indignation of many people and did not tend to popularize the idea of the pound.

Called a Hick Idea.

Other people take the view that this system of enforcing traffic regulations is something to be a little ashamed of and are somewhat embarrassed when telling strangers about it. As one man puts it, "it seems sort of a 'hick' idea."

Still others complain that it is purely a political scheme whereby some one is given a good job. The report of the pound for the first six months of operation would appear to refute this charge, however. The pound is entirely self-supporting. The fines more than cover the salary of the man in charge, and the garage which is used as the pound receives only the towing charges.

The effectiveness of the idea is shown by the fact that the number of cars impounded decrease monthly according to official records. This brings to the mind of the outsider the question of just how long the pound will be self-supporting if it is so effective that the number of impounded cars continue to decrease.

There have been some instances where claims for refunds of the fines have been recognized. In the beginning it is said that this was done in the cases of physicians. Recently, however, there have been very few claims from physicians, either because they are becoming more familiar with the regulations, or because the traffic men recognize their cars and are more lenient with them. Refunds have also been made to strangers, but as said above, complaints and claims for refunds from them are relatively few.

While there are numerous critics of the impounding system, it would seem that the automobilists of Reading on the whole must sanction the idea since it was suggested by the automobile club of that city. Anyone who has visited in Reading realizes that drastic traffic measures are doubtless necessary. The streets are narrow and the grades are steep. There are many places where a visitor from a city of wide streets feels that his end is at hand. This is particularly true of streets where there are car tracks and an automobile passes between the curb and the street car. There appears to be just about a quarter of an inch leeway. Also in the middle of the city a railroad track crosses the main street.

But whether the vehicle pound has the approval of the people as a whole or not the city government feels that it is helping to solve the traffic problem and consequently as far as is now seen it has come to stay.

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, at bed time.

Help for Nervous Women

It has often been said that only a woman can understand what nervous women endure. Most cases of nervousness, sleeplessness, mental depression, headaches, backache, fretting and worrying have their origin in some feminine ailment that will readily yield to Lydia E. George Eichelberger, a lawyer, says the only differences between small towns and cities are cafes, theaters and Turkish baths. The trick I have never mastered in cities is to distinguish bus boys from waiters. I am continually asking bus boys who cannot speak English for the check.

The sheer loneliness of cities is rather disheartening. In a hotel cafe nightly at dinner there comes a queenly woman of middle years, rather strikingly gowned and alone. She eats a sandwich or perhaps a salad, and nothing else. Once she lived in the hotel until financial misfortune came. She wound up in a hall bedroom nearby, and clings to the past in this fashion. During the day she is a bookkeeper in a produce house.

Anonymous letters amuse me, but one arrived today that seemed to me a shade harsh. Perhaps I'm prejudiced. It started off: "You dirty crook." There was also an intimation I would be "bumped off if I wrote about a certain topic again. (Notice I'm not naming the topic, ha-ha). It makes me rather warm to my anonymous friend in South America who in a critical mood writes me monthly with the opening salutation, "Fathead."

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

City Founds for Autos.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 28. — Reading, Pennsylvania, has just completed its first six months' experiment with an automobile pound and the city officials call it a success.

The automobile pound as operated by Reading seems a unique institution. The idea has been tried in several other cities, but usually cars were only impounded because of some serious offense against the law, such as illegally transporting liquor. In Reading, however, parking in the wrong place or parking too long in restricted places, is sufficient cause for having one's car taken to the pound.

In the case of a car which has been parked beyond the time limit the method of procedure on the part of the law is as follows: The traffic officer first marks with chalk the tire of the parked car. Then after the time limit has expired he goes around and if the car bearing the chalk mark is still there he puts in a call to the pound for the towing car to be brought around. The car is then towed to the garage which is used as the pound.

When the owner calls for his car he is fined according to the number of his previous offenses. If it is his first offense he is charged $2. The charge for the second offense is $3, third, $4; fourth, $5, and each subsequent offense $5. If the car may be taken to the pound under its own power no towing charge is made, otherwise 50 cents is added.

A rather amusing story is told of a city employe who one day upon looking out of his office window saw his car about to be towed away. Displaying rare presence of mind he dashed down and gave his key to the officer, thus saving the towing charge. This man had a police badge and thought it might avail him something, but the officer remained adamant. Elizabeth was driven to the pound and he was obliged to bail her out.

This system of impounding cars parked too long or in the wrong place has been the cause of many a shock to visitors. Strangers coming to the city are unfamiliar with the traffic regulations, or perhaps trade upon the fact that they are from out of town. At any rate for one reason or another they often are horrified to find up coming out of some shop that their car is not where they left it. Also here is no sign or indication of what could have happened to it. They hysterically call the police headquarters saying their car has been stolen, whereupon they are informed that their car is no doubt in the pound, and directions are given as to its location.

Not Many Complaints.

The mayor's office, under whose personal direction this institution is operated, says that there are comparatively few complaints of this system from out-of-town drivers. Most of the complaints come from townspeople. Of course this might be explained by the fact that those passing through the town perhaps feel that the refund of the small fine is scarcely worth the bother and time it would take to make the claim. On the other hand the people of the town in many cases are desirous of proving how much pull they have in official circles.

As the secretary to the mayor puts it: "Many people come in here claiming personal friendship with the mayor, or the chief of police, or some other official, and feel that for that reason they should be exempt from these traffic regulations." On the whole, however, there are not many complaints and, as the secretary continues, "as a rule you can easily judge those who do make complaint," giving the impression that most of them come from people who would criticise anything.

While there may not be many official complaints against this system one hears much criticism around the town. Many stories are told of the overzealousness of the traffic officers. One in particular is that of a woman who had parked her car while she went to perform some errand. In the car she left her small daughter and dog. An officer intent upon his duty found that the car had been parked beyond the time limit and without consideration for the child and dog had the car towed to the pound. Of course, the child became hysterical with fright and no doubt felt that her instinctive fear of policemen had been justified. This incident aroused the indignation of many people and did not tend to popularize the idea of the pound.

Called a Hick Idea.

Other people take the view that this system of enforcing traffic regulations is something to be a little ashamed of and are somewhat embarrassed when telling strangers about it. As one man puts it, "It seems sort of a 'hick' idea."

Still others complain that it is purely a political scheme whereby some one is given a good job. The report of the pound for the first six months of operation would appear to refute this charge, however. The pound is entirely self-supporting. The fines more than cover the salary of the man in charge, and the garage which is used as the pound receives only the towing charges.

The effectiveness of the idea is shown by the fact that the number of cars impounded decrease monthly according to official records. This brings to the mind of the outsider the question of just how long the pound will be self-supporting if it is so effective that the number of impounded cars continue to decrease.

There have been some instances where claims for refunds of the fines have been recognized. In the beginning it is said that this was done in the cases of physicians. Recently, however, there have been very few claims from physicians, either because they are becoming more familiar with the regulations, or because the traffic men recognize their cars and are more lenient with them. Refunds have also been made to strangers, but as said above, complaints and claims for refunds from them are relatively few.

While there are numerous critics of the impounding system, it would seem that the automobilists of Reading on the whole must sanction the idea since it was suggested by the automobile club of that city. Anyone who has visited in Reading realizes that drastic traffic measures are doubtless necessary. The streets are narrow and the grades are steep. There are many places where a visitor from a city of wide streets feels that his end is at hand. This is particularly true of streets where there are car tracks and an automobile passes between the curb and the street car. There appears to be just about a quarter of an inch leeway. Also in the middle of the city a railroad track crosses the main street.

But whether the vehicle pound has the approval of the people as a whole or not the city government feels that it is helping to solve the traffic problem and consequently as far as is now seen it has come to stay.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, at bed time.

Thousands take them every night just to keep right. Try them. 15c and 30c.

Help for Nervous Women

It has often been said that only a woman can understand what nervous women endure. Most cases of nervousness, sleeplessness, mental depression, headaches, backache, fretting and worrying have their origin in some feminine ailment that will readily yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is a simple remedy made from roots and herbs, which for over forty years has been restoring women of America to health and strength. Merit alone could have stood such a test.

A postal sub-station located in the drug store was also looted. Seven registered letters were rifled. The value of their contents has not been established.

Three-Mill Tax Levy

one-half or six months of the year instead of nine months. There is no other source to obtain funds, as we can no longer receive state aid. What father or mother would prefer to have their children playing on the streets six months of the year as to pay $3 on every $1,000 taxable property in order that they might be educated for future leaders?

"Therefore, we are urging the people of East Liverpool to think seriously about this matter, assuring them that their taxes will not be increased, and promising them for their co-operation the thing which they most desire—young folks well educated and capable of assuming responsibility and leadership among their fellow-citizens."

During the past three years, a church, a saw mill and several houses and barns in the neighborhood of the Smith home have been dynamited and burned. Residents of the section have been in constant turmoil, many of them being afraid to talk, even as witnesses in court.

saying as he holds out his hand, "Give, lest Allah burn your house while you live and burn your soul in hell when you die," offers a strong argument and hard to ignore.

That way of collecting is an old story here in America. Many a time in Chicago, hold-up men having searched their victim and found less than they hoped to find, have "beaten him up for being a piker." Which means for not carrying enough money with him.

Cautious people in some of our best cities, if obliged to go into doubtful neighborhoods, carry a fair supply of money, that the hold-up man may not be disappointed. Our hold-up men are as practical and exacting as the Turkish beggar who carried an ax in his baggy trousers, and pulled it out when a person "(charitably inclined)" gave him only 20 paras. That sounds like real money, but it takes 60 Turkish paras to make one cent.

Then consider our really big operators—for instance, the coal trust.

It has a row with its workmen, and says to the consumer, "Coal is getting scarce; please pay me $20 a ton, instead of $14."

There is no sharp ax, no threat to burn anybody in hell. But the implied threat is "Pay what I ask for the coal, or go and freeze."

It is so with street car concerns when they say, "Please give me eight cents instead of five." The other part of the speech is, "If not, walk."

Those Turkish beggars do their best, but they have much to learn from really accomplished "go-getters" in the United States of America.

Appeal is Made For Return of $400 And Traveling Bag

Mrs. Hughes, wife of Field Major Joseph Hughes of the Salvation Army, made another appeal today for the return of the traveling bag, belonging to her niece, Miss Ethel Smith, of Riverview, Cal., stolen from the Pennsylvania railroad station in Salem, October 10.

The bag contained about $400 in money, valuable papers and trinkets, which Miss Smith inherited from her mother who died about a month ago. The money was to be used in the care of the girl who has come to East Liverpool to make her home with Mr. and Mrs. Hughes.

A liberal reward will be given for information leading to the recovery of the bag and its contents.

Mitchell Wins Victory

port, Mitchell said, Summerall "knew nothing of aviation."

Summerall immediately arose, admitted he had criticized Mitchell and asked to be excused from the court.

A few minutes later, Mitchell ran his string of tactical victories to three by peremptorily challenging the availability of Brig. Gen. Fred W. Sladen, commandant at West Point, to sit, and Sladen was dismissed without further ado.

The retirement of Gen. Summerall made Maj. Gen. Robert L. Howze the presiding officer of the court.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Because he was challenged and excused as president of the court-martial trying Col. "Billy" Mitchell, Brig. General Charles P. Summerall today returned to the war department and openly declared "war" on the stormy petrel of the army air service.

"From no on. Mitchell and I are enemies." said Summerall. "It cannot be the same after what he did at the court martial."

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Stocks of the motor and mercantile companies were the leaders in a Forward movement of prices in the early trading today, in a market which also showed the effects of profit taking in the industrial, oil and some of the railroad stocks. A number of the prominent motor shares opened moderately higher on sales of large blocks of stocks, resulting from an over-night accumulation of buying orders. Further gains were made in the first period by American Woolen, United Drug, United Cigar Stores, U. S. Distributing and other stocks in that group, moved up to higher levels.

United States Steel's favorable third quarterly report, issued after the close of Tuesday's session, proved a poor stimulant for the stock of the "big corporation" but its effect was not lost on the balance of the market, which exhibited a buoyant tone after profit taking had been completed.

GRECO-BULGAR WAR RESUMED

New Clash Occurs as Athens Troops Evacuate.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—War has again broken out along the Greco-Bulgarian frontier, according to advices received here today.

While evacuation of the Greek troops from Bulgaria was under way, in accordance with the league of nations council ultimatum, a new clash occurred and indications are that fighting may be general.

A Salonika dispatch states that the Bulgarians attacked the Greeks who were evacuating. An immediate halt was called to the evacuation.

A Sofia dispatch states that the Greeks opened fire upon Bulgarians.

Thus dispatches from both countries seem to confirm that fighting is again in progress, with both sides placing responsibility on the other.

Directs Other Nations to Study South American Statemanship as Contribution to Promotion of Peace.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—President Coolidge today directed the attention of the other nations of the world to a study of South American statesmanship as one of the outstanding contributions to the promotion of international peace and prosperity.

His statement accrediting the Republics of the South with the clearest vision in connection with world politics was made in a speech officially accepting from Argentina in behalf of the American government a monument to the great Argentine patriot and statesman, General Jose DeSan Martin.

The president eulogized General San Martin, whom he described as "A Patriot, statesman, immortal contributor to the founding of three republics." He held up his military exploits as comparable to those of the Greatest Generals of all history, and declared that, like America's own George Washington, he "was one of those seemingly inspired military chieftains who are capable of thinking at the same moment of terms of war and of politics, of the battlefield and the great human forum."

Many requests for clothing have been received by the Salvation Army.

A postal sub-station located in the drug store was also looted. Seven registered letters were rifled. The value of their contents has not been established.

Three-Mill Tax Levy

one-half or six months of the year instead of nine months. There is no other source to obtain funds, as we can no longer receive state aid. What father or mother would prefer to have their children playing on the streets six months of the year as to pay $3 on every $1,000 taxable property in order that they might be educated for future leaders?

"Therefore, we are urging the people of East Liverpool to think seriously about this matter, assuring them that their taxes will not be increased, and promising them for their co-operation the thing which they most desire—young folks well educated and capable of assuming responsibility and leadership among their fellow-citizens."

saying as he holds out his hand, "Give, lest Allah burn your house while you live and burn your soul in hell when you die," offers a strong argument and hard to ignore.

That way of collecting is an old story here in America. Many a time in Chicago, hold-up men having searched their victim and found less than they hoped to find, have "beaten him up for being a piker." Which means for not carrying enough money with him.

Cautious people in some of our best cities, if obliged to go into doubtful neighborhoods, carry a fair supply of money, that the hold-up man may not be disappointed. Our hold-up men are as practical and exacting as the Turkish beggar who carried an ax in his baggy trousers, and pulled it out when a person "(charitably inclined)" gave him only 20 paras. That sounds like real money, but it takes 60 Turkish paras to make one cent.

Then consider our really big operators—for instance, the coal trust.

It has a row with its workmen, and says to the consumer, "Coal is getting scarce; please pay me $20 a ton, instead of $14."

There is no sharp ax, no threat to burn anybody in hell. But the implied threat is "Pay what I ask for the coal, or go and freeze."

It is so with street car concerns when they say, "Please give me eight cents instead of five." The other part of the speech is, "If not, walk."

Those Turkish beggars do their best, but they have much to learn from really accomplished "go-getters" in the United States of America.

Appeal is Made For Return of $400 And Traveling Bag

Mrs. Hughes, wife of Field Major Joseph Hughes of the Salvation Army, made another appeal today for the return of the traveling bag, belonging to her niece, Miss Ethel Smith, of Riverview, Cal., stolen from the Pennsylvania railroad station in Salem, October 10.

The bag contained about $400 in money, valuable papers and trinkets, which Miss Smith inherited from her mother who died about a month ago. The money was to be used in the care of the girl who has come to East Liverpool to make her home with Mr. and Mrs. Hughes.

A liberal reward will be given for information leading to the recovery of the bag and its contents.

port, Mitchell said, Summerall "knew nothing of aviation."

Summerall immediately arose, admitted he had criticized Mitchell and asked to be excused from the court.

A few minutes later, Mitchell ran his string of tactical victories to three by peremptorily challenging the availability of Brig. Gen. Fred W. Sladen, commandant at West Point, to sit, and Sladen was dismissed without further ado.

The retirement of Gen. Summerall made Maj. Gen. Robert L. Howze the presiding officer of the court.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Because he was challenged and excused as president of the court-martial trying Col. "Billy" Mitchell, Brig. General Charles P. Summerall today returned to the war department and openly declared "war" on the stormy petrel of the army air service.

"From no on. Mitchell and I are enemies," said Summerall. "It cannot be the same after what he did at the court martial."

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Stocks of the motor and mercantile companies were the leaders in a Forward movement of prices in the early trading today, in a market which also showed the effects of profit taking in the industrial, oil and some of the railroad stocks. A number of the prominent motor shares opened moderately higher on sales of large blocks of stocks, resulting from an over-night accumulation of buying orders. Further gains were made in the first period by American Woolen, United Drug, United Cigar Stores, U. S. Distributing and other stocks in that group, moved up to higher levels.

United States Steel's favorable third quarterly report, issued after the close of Tuesday's session, proved a poor stimulant for the stock of the "big corporation" but its effect was not lost on the balance of the market, which exhibited a buoyant tone after profit taking had been completed.

GRECO-BULGAR WAR RESUMED

New Clash Occurs as Athens Troops Evacuate.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—War has again broken out along the Greco-Bulgarian frontier, according to advices received here today.

While evacuation of the Greek troops from Bulgaria was under way, in accordance with the league of nations council ultimatum, a new clash occurred and indications are that fighting may be general.

A Salonika dispatch states that the Bulgarians attacked the Greeks who were evacuating. An immediate halt was called to the evacuation.

A Sofia dispatch states that the Greeks opened fire upon Bulgarians.

Thus dispatches from both countries seem to confirm that fighting is again in progress, with both sides placing responsibility on the other.

DAMAGE SUIT FILED IN COURT

Actions Result of Auto Accident Late Last Month.

Damage actions totaling $15,350 have been filed in common pleas court against Edward G. Votaw, of Salem, by Jennie Sage, her daughter, Teresa Sage, aged 15, but through her next friend, and Joe Benedict, each action resulting from an automobile wreck on the Darlington road in Beaver county, Pa., on September 25.

The petition relates that Votaw, driving a car, came from an ash road onto the concrete highway and crashed into the machine owned by Mrs. Sage, turning the car over because of the impact.

Petitions in all three cases were filed by Attorney Homer H. Hickling, of Salem. The Sage car was being driven in a westerly course along the Darlington road when the wreck occurred.

In two of the cases $5,000 damages each is sought, but in that filed by Mrs. Sage $5,000 damages is also sought, and also $350 damages for the wrecked car, the claims in this action totaling $5,350.

Verdicts for $1,500 and $600, respectively, have been returned by a jury in the cases of Mary Anderson against Paul Burman and Ella Farner against the same defendant, both actions being tried as one in common pleas court No. 2, with Judge W. D. Jones, of Miami county, presiding.

In this case, a truck owned by Burman collided with a machine in which the two women, mother and daughter, were riding, while both vehicles were traveling on the Rock Springs road, Chester, W. Va.

In the same machine was the husband of Mrs. Anderson and a child. The wreck occurred November 14, 1922. Mrs. Anderson was taken to the East Liverpool City hospital, and after her recovery she entered an action against Burman for $10,000 damages. In this case the jury returned a verdict in favor of the plaintiff for $600.

At the same time the jury gave Mrs. Ella Farner a verdict for $1,500. In this petition it was related that in addition to $10,000 being sought as damages, the hospital bill of the plaintiff amounted to $66.50; physicians' charges, $104.50; ambulance, $15.

As Judge Jones was charging the jury he remarked that while his stay in Columbiana county was nearing its end, he wanted to take the occasion to compliment attorneys in the case before the court for the manner in which it was tried. He remarked about the absence of bitterness and wrangling among counsel that too often characterizes court trials.

Judge Jones has been assisting Judge James G. Moore for three weeks and his commission for Columbiana county service will expire Saturday next.

DAMAGE SUIT FILED IN COURT

Actions Result of Auto Accident Late Last Month.

Damage actions totaling $15,350 have been filed in common pleas court against Edward G. Votaw, of Salem, by Jennie Sage, her daughter, Teresa Sage, aged 15, but through her next friend, and Joe Benedict, each action resulting from an automobile wreck on the Darlington road in Beaver county, Pa., on September 25.

The petition relates that Votaw, driving a car, came from an ash road onto the concrete highway and crashed into the machine owned by Mrs. Sage, turning the car over because of the impact.

Petitions in all three cases were filed by Attorney Homer H. Hickling, of Salem. The Sage car was being driven in a westerly course along the Darlington road when the wreck occurred.

In two of the cases $5,000 damages each is sought, but in that filed by Mrs. Sage $5,000 damages is also sought, and also $350 damages for the wrecked car, the claims in this action totaling $5,350.

Verdicts for $1,500 and $600, respectively, have been returned by a jury in the cases of Mary Anderson against Paul Burman and Ella Farner against the same defendant, both actions being tried as one in common pleas court No. 2, with Judge W. D. Jones, of Miami county, presiding.

In this case, a truck owned by Burman collided with a machine in which the two women, mother and daughter, were riding, while both vehicles were traveling on the Rock Springs road, Chester, W. Va.

In the same machine was the husband of Mrs. Anderson and a child. The wreck occurred November 14, 1922. Mrs. Anderson was taken to the East Liverpool City hospital, and after her recovery she entered an action against Burman for $10,000 damages. In this case the jury returned a verdict in favor of the plaintiff for $600.

At the same time the jury gave Mrs. Ella Farner a verdict for $1,500. In this petition it was related that in addition to $10,000 being sought as damages, the hospital bill of the plaintiff amounted to $66.50; physicians' charges, $104.50; ambulance, $15.

As Judge Jones was charging the jury he remarked that while his stay in Columbiana county was nearing its end, he wanted to take the occasion to compliment attorneys in the case before the court for the manner in which it was tried. He remarked about the absence of bitterness and wrangling among counsel that too often characterizes court trials.

Judge Jones has been assisting Judge James G. Moore for three weeks and his commission for Columbiana county service will expire Saturday next.

STREAM POLLUTION BEING CHECKED

Gratifying progress in long-continued efforts to end the pollution of West Virginia streams is reported by L. G. Smith, chief clerk of the state game and fish commission.

Greenbrier river, perhaps intended by nature for one grand, long fish pond, has at last been freed of the tannery pollution, he says. Filtration systems installed by the Union Tannery company at Marlinton and by the tannery at Durbin, also in Pocahontas county, have solved the problem so far as the noble and picturesque Greenbriar is concerned, Mr. Smith asserts. Similar progress has been made elsewhere, he says.

At Marlinton the same kind of filtration that proved so successful in disposing of the pollution from the tannery at Buckhannon has been installed. Sometimes next month a demonstration of the Marlinton plant will be given, and member of the game and fish commission and others interested in water purification methods or in the propagation of fish in public stream are expected to attend. At an early date there will be a demonstration of a filtration system in use at the Consolidated Coal company's mines on Stuarts Run in Harrison county.

Billy Maine Offers New Musical Comedy At Strand Theatre

Billy Maine's Overseas Revue has caught the fancy of East Liverpool's theatregoers at the Strand this week where it has been seen by capacity houses. He has staged a piece well out of the beaten path of the casual revue in that the locale of the story concerns boys from across the pond.

Today marks the close of the current bill, "Somewhere in France," yet the talented revue will stay at the Strand theatre the rest of the week. Billy Maine brings in a new show, starting Thursday, called "Goldbrick's Return."

"Goldbrick's Return" is just as clean, just as funny in presentation as was "Somewhere in France" and should grip the fancy of the clientele just as closely. Maine is a comedian of the character type and his work as "Private Goldbrick" is of such a nature as to reveal him a funmaker of the first rank. "Goldbrick's Return" is a sequel play to "Somewhere in France" and the lines and situations are every whit as effective. Maine will score in every show in the star part. There is both a male and a female chorus with good lookers specially in the latter section with voices able to sing the lilting musical score. The production, "Goldbrick's Return," contains everything necessary to beguile the patron of a laugh. Billy is sure some boob and winner of the awkward squad with a real make-up and with a brew of comedy essence tha tis sure to drive away any fit of blues. In this bill he has another great opportunity to display his jovial characterizations in which parts he so aptly fits.

The Harmony Hounds again sing with gusto in an endeavor to outdo their former efforts and again Billy steps in the spotlight of popular favor with his interpretation of How Do You Do.

As any football squad will tell you, this is weather with a kick in it.—Cincinnati Times Star.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognised by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

Fly "Swatting Day" Big Success in Tokio; Many Exterminated

TOKIO — Flies having become a great nuisance in Tokio, the city officials announced a "fly extermination day," with prizes for the largest number killed.

The citizens nobly responded to the officials' invitation, and at the close of the "swatting" it was announced that 22,900,231 flies had been done to death. The dead flies were all counted by the municipal office staffs, and it is announced that as a result of the success of the effort another fly extermination day will shortly be held.

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Easily and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found that they can save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using the well-known old recipe for making cough syrup at home. It is simple and cheap but it has no equal for prompt results. It takes right hold of a cough and gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, pour it into a pint bottle and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, hoarseness or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its healing effect on the membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Billy Maine Offers New Musical Comedy At Strand Theatre

Billy Maine's Overseas Revue has caught the fancy of East Liverpool's theatregoers at the Strand this week where it has been seen by capacity houses. He has staged a piece well out of the beaten path of the casual revue in that the locale of the story concerns boys from across the pond.

Today marks the close of the current bill, "Somewhere in France," yet the talented revue will stay at the Strand theatre the rest of the week. Billy Maine brings in a new show, starting Thursday, called "Goldbrick's Return."

"Goldbrick's Return" is just as clean, just as funny in presentation as was "Somewhere in France" and should grip the fancy of the clientele just as closely. Maine is a comedian of the character type and his work as "Private Goldbrick" is of such a nature as to reveal him a funmaker of the first rank. "Goldbrick's Return" is a sequel play to "Somewhere in France" and the lines and situations are every whit as effective. Maine will score in every show in the star part. There is both a male and a female chorus with good lookers specially in the latter section with voices able to sing the lilting musical score. The production, "Goldbrick's Return," contains everything necessary to beguile the patron of a laugh. Billy is sure some boob and winner of the awkward squad with a real make-up and with a brew of comedy essence tha tis sure to drive away any fit of blues. In this bill he has another great opportunity to display his jovial characterizations in which parts he so aptly fits.

The Harmony Hounds again sing with gusto in an endeavor to outdo their former efforts and again Billy steps in the spotlight of popular favor with his interpretation of How Do You Do.

As any football squad will tell you, this is weather with a kick in it.—Cincinnati Times Star.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

Fly "Swatting Day" Big Success in Tokio; Many Exterminated

TOKIO — Flies having become a great nuisance in Tokio, the city officials announced a "fly extermination day," with prizes for the largest number killed.

The citizens nobly responded to the officials' invitation, and at the close of the "swatting" it was announced that 22,900,231 flies had been done to death. The dead flies were all counted by the municipal office staffs, and it is announced that as a result of the success of the effort another fly extermination day will shortly be held.

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Easily and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found that they can save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using the well-known old recipe for making cough syrup at home. It is simple and cheap but it has no equal for prompt results. It takes right hold of a cough and gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, pour it into a pint bottle and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, hoarseness or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its healing effect on the membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

CHAPTER 80.

On an Indian Summer afternoon, Amoura was curled up on a chaise-lounge listening to the gossip expelled in quick, excited breaths by Lucia Berryman. This chaise lounge was faced with satin of her favorite hue, pale lavender, and it was arranged in the "sitting room" of her suite so that always in the afternoon it was bathed in the the sunlight floating across the valley from the bright hills beyond. She liked to repose in this sun because it gave her bobbed hair a dark golden brilliance that she wished she could make permanent. Her mind was upon this, and not upon what Lucia Berryman was saying. At last however, she was aroused by a question:

"Amoura dear, why weren't you at Mary Holloway's bridge party yesterday afternoon? She expected you."

"Oh, I didn't feel like going. And Mary always has such a dull crowd."

"Yes." She smiled at Amoura in such a way that the latter had a sense of being uncomfortable.

"Who won the prizes?"

"I won the grand prize, a perfectly lovely beaten silver vanity and cigaret case, and the consolation prize went, I think, to Marcia Thompson. Poor Marcia! She just can't learn to count the cards."

"I can't either," Amoura laughed. "But it's a silly game."

"You didn't use to think so," Lucia observed, offended. "Incidentally, if you had been at the party and used your ears sharply, you might have heard something interesting." She showed her teeth in a smile.

"Another scandal, I suppose," Amoura responded, indifferently, picking at a fingernail with another.

"Well, THAT'S for YOU to say", Lucia laughed. "You know how everybody talks over the bridge table. Well, I heard someone at an adjoining table say that it looked like Vera Vaine wasn't going to have a chance to marry Philip Weinrich and his millions. They all laughed, and another of them said that Vera Vaine should have paid the kidnapers to hold Amoura Ainsley a little longer.

Amoura veiled her deep annoyane. "Oh, so that's what they're saying. Well, women have to have something to talk about. A cat has nine lives—and some women have nine cats' lives."

"While you were away Philip never did get this high on Indian Hill. Now—" Lucia smiled significantly.

"You always were deeply discerning, Lucia," Amoura smiled.

Her voice was uncertain as to how to take this remark, but she returned the beam. Soon she made her excuses and departed. Amoura, adhering to a resolution she had made two days before, after the scene with Philip, did not allow herself to think about him.

At the dinner table that evening J. Reginald Ainsley paused over his Cafe Bavaroise to say:

"When will you ladies be ready to go to South America? Now's the time to think of starting. It's summer there when it's winter here, you know."

"What do you think, dear?" Mrs. Reginald asked, addressing her daughter.

Amoura hesitated. She knew that her mother wanted to go. "Why, can't you and Dad make the trip by yourselves? I'm afraid I'd be the death of the party."

"Certainly not," her mother said. "Besides, Amoura added, "there's something I want to do this winter—in Westland." For the first time she mentioned to them her plans for the community institute in the slum district. She went into them with greater detail than in confiding them to Philip Weinrich. "What do you think?"

Mrs. J. Reginald looked askance at her husband.

"I think it's out of the question," he said. "There are too many charitable organizations now. All they succeed in doing is making these people more shiftless than ever."

"Yest, but this won't be charity! I want to teach them to help themselves."

"You'll only succeed in getting them discontented."

"That's the point," Amoura put in. "Get them discontented with their lot, and they'll want to better themselves."

"Their idea of bettering themselves is less work for more money."

No, none of my money for your scheme."

Amoura's upper lip stiffened, and her determination arose.

"Well, I AM going to open the institute." She decided to appeal to Grandma Ainsley for aid.

High-Salem Clash Here Saturday May Decide Scholastic Race

CAN PENN END DEFENSE STOP GRANGE'S GAINS?

Will "Iceman" be Able to Thwart "Tearing in" Flankmen Who Have Been Drilled to Take Initiative? Illinois Star Himself Will Give to Philadelphia Campus Its Answer on Saturday Afternoon.

This is the eighth of a series of articles by Davis J. Walsh On some of the leading football teams of the east and middle west. Others will follow:

BY DAVIS WALSH

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 28.—Can the Pennsylvania system of end defense, with its wings going directly to the ball runner the minute a play is in motion, stop "Red" Grange, of Illinois, on Saturday? This is the major question of the day on the local campus. You answer it by asking several more: how grand is grand forks and what about the knives and spoons?

There will be no adequate answer to the Pennsylvania interogation until its ends come tearing in toward Grange on Saturday as soon as he gets the ball, which will be as soon as Illinois get the ball.

The Pennsylvania system calls for its wings to take several strides beyond the cautionary point before coming to a halt and diagnosing the direction of a play, in this way, they take the initiative and, against a team using little deception, they are quite effective.

The writer, however, has come to believe that Grange is inclined to some deception in his activities. He, in fact, is the most deceptive ball runner in the game and adds to this by being at least a double, if not always a triple threat.

EASTERN BACKS BID FOR FAME

Kreuz, Wilson, Hewitt, Slagle in Front Rank.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—For the first time in several seasons, the east may have a few plausible backfield candidates to offer when the All American plums are distributed. This section, which gave Jim Thorpe, Eddie Mahan, Brickley, Charley Barrett and other immortals to the game, hasn't produced a real All-American backfield star since Glenn Killinger graduated from Penn State three or four years ago. Koppisch, of Columbia, got the Camp vote last year, but was far from a foolproof halfback.

The backs of national note have come from the middle west, featuring Grange and the Four Horsemen of Notre Dame; the south where Wyckoff, of Georgia Tech, has held forth for three seasons, and from California and Stanford.

Come Into Their Own.

Now, however, the eastern ball runner seems to be coming back. Pennsylvania uncovered a fine pair in the Yale game, Kreuz and Rogers. Yale also has a couple of candidates, while Wilson, Hewitt and Buell, of the Army, are sectional leaders, even at this immature moment. Wilson was a co-star with Killinger at Penn State and should know what it is all about by this time.

Shapley, of the Navy, is above the average. So is Keefer, of Brown, not to mention Oberlander, of Dartmouth, and Pease, of Columbia. Many thought Pease was more deserving than Koppisch of recognition last year.

Gustafson, of Pittsburgh, can also join the line forming on the left. Carlin, of W. and J., and Foley, of Syracuse, are very likely entries.

This brings the issue down to a man who has been around and about for years, receiving genedal recognition for his greatness, but escaping official notice, or being ignored by same. The writer refers to Tyron, of Colgate. If ever he is to come into his own, Tryon must do it this season, since it is to be his last. Gebhardt, of Lafayette, also is about due.

None at Harvard.

Princeton has a good back in Slagle, but Harvard has nothing, at least at this moment. It has one Miller, a 200-pounder, who has bettered 10 seconds on the track, but Miller, either through non-support or a frank lack of ability, has yet to astound or even interest the natives.

However, the day is early and the field is large. Anything may happen in November. Things usually do.

There is little likelihood that the east will produce another Thorpe or Mahan for another generation, not to mention the season of 1925. But, with the present calibre of material on hand, it has better than an even chance of turning out a really representative back for the first time since Killinger operated.

Penn Boasts Great Line.

There is more than an even chance that Singer and Thayer may find themselves drawn out of position on occasions, if there are, a fine time will be had by all, including Harold "Red" Grange.

The Penn ends happen to be an exceptionally fine paid, at that. They can do everything an end should do, with one possible exception. They cannot substitute for themselves. This is to be deplored, since the reserve wing strength is rather weak, as it were.

It is the only department in which the Pennsylvania team is not fool proof. It has a fine charging line, featuring Captain Wilson and Sieracki, a pair of All American possibilities. At the tackles, Butler, Snyder and Pike, three exceptional guards, and Robinson, another embryonic All American at center. Hake, at tackle, is just a stride behind the varsity pair.

All in all, Pennsylvania has one of the finest lines in the game.

This, ordinarily, is enough. But Pennsylvania goes further. It has a great plunger and kicker in Kruez, a ball runner and passer in Rogers, two good quarterbacks in Leith and Laird, and several spare ball runners in Fields, Douglas, Thomas and Sorensen.

A great team, in brief, and on the threshold of the greatest season Pennsylvania has known since 1904.

Penn "System" Factor.

Furthermore, the writer might suggest that it is about to undergo its greatest test of the season, Yale, Brown and Chicago to the contrary. This trio was knocked off in succession as Pennsylvania proceeded to maintain its unbeaten record, but Illinois, in spite of its spotty showing in the middle west, will prove the highest hurdle of the lot.

Why? For reasons several and probably sufficient. In the first place, the word has gone out that Kruez and Fields will be unable to play on Saturday because of injuries. If this is true, the Pennsylvania attack, never too potent, will lose fifty percent of its efficiency and the Pennsylvania team quite possibly will lose one hundred percent of the football game.

The other reason is Grange. This one might prove the abiding factor, whether Kruez plays or doesn't play.

Bob Zuppke is bringing on an Illinois team fully equipped to turn Grange into the open for the first time this season. He wants to win this game about as much as anything he ever wanted before.

"Get me an eastern game," Zuppke asked last year. They got him one. Zuppke is hardly the man to muff his opportunity when it falls in his hands.

Laughlins Play Youngstown Team Saturday In West Penn Cup Tie

Manager Jesse Shaw's Homer Laughlin soccer club will clash with the Mahoning Valleys, of Youngstown, Saturday at Newell park in the local eleven's first tilt in the West Penn Cup tie.

Thirty-two teams are entered in the soccer competition, including many of the fastest outfits in western Pennsylvania and eastern Ohio. The Buckeye state is represented by the Mahoning Valleys and the St. Georges, of Youngstown, the Homer Laughlins and Niles.

The Valleys, champions of the Youngstown league in 1923 and 1924, bear a great reputation throughout the state. The Sharps, Whites, Corbine, the latter a halfback from Pittsburgh, and Leggett, goal tender, are well known to soccer fans here. Leggett played with the Thistles in East Liverpool several years ago.

The Sharp brothers are capable of a defense that enemy teams this year have found exceedingly difficult to penetrate. The Whites, also brothers, are fast forwards and especially deadly in front of the rival goal.

In the fall of 1924 five players were picked from the Mahoning Valleys to represent Ohio against a picked team from Michigan in a series of title games.

The Laughlins are in excellent shape and expect to make their first cup tie clash a real battle. The fact that they still lead the Press Northwest Division circuit with an unbroken string of victories indicates their ability to carry out their plans.

Robert Brown, secretary of the West Penn Football association, will referee the contest. The Valleys are scheduled to take the field at 3 o'clock and an extra period will be played in the event of a tie at the end of the regular playing time. Manager Jesse Shaw announced that the delay in the starting of the New Castle game here was no fault of the local club's, the visitors being detained as a result of an auto breakdown.

The Laughlin players will meet Thursday evening at 8 o'clock at the Eagles' home in Broadway.

Dempsey Takes Count At Hands of Mexican Law, Fined 500 Pesos

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 28. — Jack Dempsey has taken the count at the hands of the Mexican law, to the extent of 500 pesos.

A small automobile of a popular make was used as a grand stand to witness the triumphal arrival of Dempsey in Mexico City. The crowds rushing to see the fighter trampled over the automobile and wrecked it. According to the workings of the Mexican law, Dempsey was responsible for the collection of the crowd and therefore responsible for the damage to the automobile. He was assessed 500 pesos, which he paid with a smile.

T. S. T. BOWLERS LAND OPENER

Trim Laughlin Quint in League Clash.

A 657 "shot" at the maples in the first game of the season is not so bad, but this is the achievement of the Laughlin No. 1 crew of the Industrial Duckpin league in their encounter with the T. S. T. bowlers last night on the Liberty alleys. But, despite their inaugural efforts, the East Enders fell prey to the prowess of the T. S. T. quintet, which copped the second and third games of the three-ply series and the major portion of the honors.

C. Morris contributed no small part to the Laughlin conquest in the first game, rolling a 160, which was good for high score for the series. Although he dropped off in the second and third games, Morris, nevertheless, grabbed off honors for high average, with a mark of 132.

In the three games the East Enders dropped 73 more pins than the Chester five, but confined their efforts largely to the first game, and, as a result, the West Virginians finished ahead in the second and third, copping the finale by a margin of two pins.

Barnhart's 131 was high for T. S. T., with Baker, 129, and Canne, 127, right on his heels.

E. M. Knowles and Smith News, the latter taking the place of the Trotter team, will bowl tonight. K. T. K. and Laughlin 5 will meet on Thursday and Hall China and Laughlin 4 on Friday.

W. & J. BISONS AT WHEELING

BETHANY, W. Va., Oct. 28.—Next Saturday the Bison football team will engage in its annual classic game with W. & J. This game was scheduled to be played at Washington, but due to the collapse of the W. & J. stands last week, there will be no more scheduled games played at their home field. Instead the game will take place at Wheeling.

This change of fields will be a help to the Bison squad because now the game will be played practically in their own back yard. Stebbs, Hamill and Serafini of the Bisons will be playing on a field where they were taught the angles of the game.

This year's game is causing more spirit than ever before. For the past three years the Green and White team lined up against the Presidents at horrible odds in W. & J.'s favor. This year the teams will be somewhat nearly matched. The handicap of weight in W. & J.'s favor will be made up in fight on the part of the Bisons. People come from all sections just to see the struggle between these two fighting units. "The play is the thing," and this kind of play is the brand enjoyed by all football-dom. This year's clash is bound to be filled with "Ahs" and "Ohs" because there will be no letup on the part of two well-conditioned teams until the final whistle has blown.

PITT PREPARING FOR W. & J. GAME

Expect Victory Over John Hopkins Next Saturday.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 28.—The John Hopkins university eleven of Baltimore is the attraction at the Pitt Stadium, Saturday and a crowd of between 15,000 and 20,000 is expected. John Hopkins was met for the first time in football last year at the Baltimore stadium and gave the Panthers a very interesting game. Dr. Ray Van Orman, who learned football at Cornell under "Pop" Warner, is coach at Hopkins, and while his team is not as heavy as that of the Panthers it is well coached and knows a lot of football.

There will be a double attraction that day, the Penn State freshmen meeting the Panther Cubs at 12:30. The Pitt cubs have not been defeated this year, although Carnegie Tech Freshmen held them to a tie last Saturday. They have registered victories over the strong Kiski Prep team, West Virginia Freshmen and Westinghouse Tech eleven. Stars of the freshmen team are Barnes, center, Guardino, end, Crabb, halfback and Rooney quarterback. Barnes entered Pitt from Broaddus Prep. Guarino is a Greensburg boy, who prepared at Bellefonte Academy, and Rooney is a product of Allegheny high school and Bellefonte academy. He is one of the best kickers Pitt has had in years. Crabb comes from Charleroi and played on the team which was runner up for the high school championship last year. There are a number of other star performers on the Pitt freshmen team. The Penn State Cubs also look very strong, having defeated Syracuse Freshmen last Saturday. Syracuse had previously won from Bellefonte, heretofore considered invincible.

The W. & J. game is in the offing and will be played in the Pitt stadium Saturday, November 7, the Saturday following the Hopkins game. A capacity crowd is expected at this game, as almost the entire population of Washington county will migrate to the Steel City to cheer for the Red and Black. W. & J.'s victory over Lafayette, in view of Lafayette's victory over the Panthers, makes them look like favorites, although "dope" means little when Pitt and W. & J. meet. W. & J. won by a one-touchdown margin over Pitt last year after quite a string of reverses.

Graduate K. E. Davis will accept mail orders for the W. & J. game at once. The price of tickets is $2.50 each, and there is no limit to the number of tickets a person can get. All orders should be accompanied by certified check, cash or money order, made payable to the University of Pittsburgh and mailed to Mr. Davis, at 503 Commonwealth Bldg.

FOUR STARS MISSING FROM BOONE'S ELEVEN

Scholastic Difficulties Take Banks and Bough Off Roster for Remainder of Season; Kinsey and R. Shaffer Unable to Play; Local Coach Also Fights Off Attack of Grippe as Important Game Nears.

Digression from the straight and narrow, sometimes rocky, but nevertheless profitable, path of scholastic duty, has ended the football careers, for 1925, of two of Coach O. V. Boone's line mainstays.

Guard Banks and Tackle Bough, having fallen away a little, it seems, from their course of learning, during a strenuous football campaign, transgressed the bounds of safety recently and, as a result, will be unable to wear the Blue and White again this season, under a ruling of the Ohio High School association, as interpreted by Coach Boone. They played their last game at Lisbon.

The team, apparently, has been badly jinxed in the last couple of weeks. Injuries alone were enough to keep the Blue and White mentor constantly changing his lineup, after the first two games, but now the scholastic bogey has thrust its head into the ranks and gobbled up a pair of stars and the vacancies they leave will be hard to fill.

Banks and Bough are only two of a quartet of first string performers who'll probably be missing the rest of the season.

There is no question about Ralph Shaffer, end and halfback, who was one of Boone's most dependable performers. Shaffer's knee was badly injured in the Struthers contest and he'll play no more this year.

Kinsey, a guard on a par with the best in the Boone introuage may be fortunate enough to get into action during the closing days of the season. But the chances are against it. Kinsey has been ill with grippe, and his condition, at the present time, at least, does not warrant any feeling that he'll be able to get back in the game.

Coach Boone, himself, yesterday was feeling the effects of the demon jinx. He was unable to leave his home as a result of an attack of grippe. But his illness will not long keep him off the football field. A rugged constitution and a determination to see the campaign through to the finish, especiall with two important county contests looming, will send him back to work in a day or so.

The first of this pair of battles is that with Salem Saturday afternoon at Patterson Field.

The Salemites have won four out of five clashes so far this season, leaving the battered remains of Niles, Cleveland West Tech, Struthers and East Palestine in their wake on their dash to football glory. They bent their knee to Geltz' Alliance eleven and that only after a desperate struggle.

East Palestine last Saturday was polished by Salem with a 15 to 6 swipe and this gives the dope experts a chance to work. Lisbon playing on their own lot, squashed the Brown and White by a 21-0 verdict, and East Liverpool managed to fork a 6-0 decision from the mud on the county seat gridiron. To some this comparison of scores made indicate an edge for the Ceramic City combine over the Red and Black of Salem; to others, it may indicate only that East Palestine is out of the running so far as county scholastic honors are concerned.

If Boone's team can erase Salem then only one more county game remains, as the schedule is arranged at present—and that with East Palestine.

At the present time Leetonia must be taken into consideration, although so far as the county leadership is concerned, the north countians have defeated only a green and comparatively inexperienced team from Wellsville. And that by a 6-0 score. Their principal games with Lisbon and Salem come later in the season.

Indians are Victors

The Kickapoo Indians easily defeated the fast Central team yesterday afternoon at Patterson Field. The game was well played despite the muddy condition of the field. The Centrals heretofore were undefeated. The Indians issue a challenge to all school teams in this city, Newell, Chester and Wellsville. For games call 1116-R and ask for Bud Lockett. The Indians would like a game especially with Chester Junior high.

STREAM POLLUTION BEING CHECKED

Gratifying progress in long-continued efforts to end the pollution of West Virginia streams is reported by L. G. Smith, chief clerk of the state game and fish commission.

Greenbrier river, perhaps intended by nature for one grand, long fish pond, has at last been freed of the tannery pollution, he says. Filtration systems installed by the Union Tannery company at Marlinton and by the tannery at Durbin, also in Pocahontas county, have solved the problem so far as the noble and picturesque Greenbriar is concerned, Mr. Smith asserts. Similar progress has been made elsewhere, he says.

At Marlinton the same kind of filtration that proved so successful in disposing of the pollution from the tannery at Buckhannon has been installed. Sometimes next month a demonstration of the Marlinton plant will be given, and member of the game and fish commission and others interested in water purification methods or in the propagation of fish in public stream are expected to attend. At an early date there will be a demonstration of a filtration system in use at the Consolidated Coal company's mines on Stuarts Run in Harrison county.

Billy Maine Offers New Musical Comedy At Strand Theatre

Billy Maine's Overseas Revue has caught the fancy of East Liverpool's theatregoers at the Strand this week where it has been seen by capacity houses. He has staged a piece well out of the beaten path of the casual revue in that the locale of the story concerns boys from across the pond.

Today marks the close of the current bill, "Somewhere in France," yet the talented revue will stay at the Strand theatre the rest of the week. Billy Maine brings in a new show, starting Thursday, called "Goldbrick's Return."

"Goldbrick's Return" is just as clean, just as funny in presentation as was "Somewhere in France" and should grip the fancy of the clientele just as closely. Maine is a comedian of the character type and his work as "Private Goldbrick" is of such a nature as to reveal him a funmaker of the first rank. "Goldbrick's Return" is a sequel play to "Somewhere in France" and the lines and situations are every whit as effective. Maine will score in every show in the star part. There is both a male and a female chorus with good lookers specially in the latter section with voices able to sing the lilting musical score. The production, "Goldbrick's Return," contains everything necessary to beguile the patron of a laugh. Billy is sure some boob and winner of the awkward squad with a real make-up and with a brew of comedy essence tha tis sure to drive away any fit of blues. In this bill he has another great opportunity to display his jovial characterizations in which parts he so aptly fits.

The Harmony Hounds again sing with gusto in an endeavor to outdo their former efforts and again Billy steps in the spotlight of popular favor with his interpretation of How Do You Do.

As any football squad will tell you, this is weather with a kick in it.—Cincinnati Times Star.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

Fly "Swatting Day" Big Success in Tokio; Many Exterminated

TOKIO — Flies having become a great nuisance in Tokio, the city officials announced a "fly extermination day," with prizes for the largest number killed.

The citizens nobly responded to the officials' invitation, and at the close of the "swatting" it was announced that 22,900,231 flies had been done to death. The dead flies were all counted by the municipal office staffs, and it is announced that as a result of the success of the effort another fly extermination day will shortly be held.

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Easily and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found that they can save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using the well-known old recipe for making cough syrup at home. It is simple and cheap but it has no equal for prompt results. It takes right hold of a cough and gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, pour it into a pint bottle and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, hoarseness or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its healing effect on the membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

CAMBRIDGESHIRE RUN OFF TODAY

NEWMARKET, England, Oct. 28.—Fine weather prevailed today for the Cambridgeshire handicap. Twenty horses are expected to go to the post at 2:35, with the Duke of Westminster's Twelve Pointer favorite. Beasley, who rode Forsetti in the Cesarewitch, is riding Twelve Pointer today.

Masked Marvel, owned by the American, A. K. Macomber, has considerable support on the basis of a report that Macomber backed his horses, Forsetti and Masked Marvel, in a double event for the Cesarewitch and the Cambridgeshire. Forsetti having won, Macomber stands to win the odds on $500 at 500 to 1, if Masked Marvel comes home first today.

For cash $20 per acre. 160 acres ½ mile west of Salineville, on graded road. The Lincoln Highway from Canton to the Ohio river passes at the door. A nice place to live, with 2 fruit orchards and thousands of growing locust trees to fence with and other timber as well. A few years ago the barn and silo and house cost over $2,500. I have owned it over 60 years and have raised the best of corn and potatoes on 2/3 of the farm, the other 1/3 is timber. This farm helped me to buy and own 6 other farms and other property. East Liverpool the richest and best market town in the county, and is only 16 miles East of this farm. My Address:

The Story Of A Girl Who Dared

By Dear Joe Morris

CHAPTER 80.

On an Indian Summer afternoon, Amoura was curled up on a chaise-lounge listening to the gossip expelled in quick, excited breaths by Lucia Berryman. This chaise lounge was faced with satin of her favorite hue, pale lavender, and it was arranged in the "sitting room" of her suite so that always in the afternoon it was bathed in the the sunlight floating across the valley from the bright hills beyond. She liked to repose in this sun because it gave her bobbed hair a dark golden brilliance that she wished she could make permanent. Her mind was upon this, and not upon what Lucia Berryman was saying. At last however, she was aroused by a question:

"Amoura, dear, why weren't you at Mary Holloway's bridge party yesterday afternoon? She expected you."

"Oh, I didn't feel like going. And Mary always has such a dull crowd."

"Yes." She smiled at Amoura in such a way that the latter had a sense of being uncomfortable.

"Who won the prizes?"

"I won the grand prize, a perfectly lovely beaten silver vanity and cigaret case, and the consolation prize went, I think, to Marcia Thompson. Poor Marcia! She just can't learn to count the cards."

"I can't either," Amoura laughed. "But it's a silly game."

"You didn't use to think so," Lucia observed, offended. "Incidentally, if you had been at the party and used your ears sharply, you might have heard something interesting." She showed her teeth in a smile.

"Another scandal, I suppose," Amoura responded, indifferently, picking at a fingernail with another.

"Well, THAT'S for YOU to say", Lucia laughed. "You know how everybody talks over the bridge table. Well, I heard someone at an adjoining table say that it looked like Vera Vaine wasen't going to have a chance to marry Philip Weinrich and his millions. They all laughed, and another of them said that Vera Vaine should have paid the kidnapers to hold Amoura Ainsley a little longer.

Amoura veiled her deep annoyance. "Oh, so that's what they're saying. Well, women have to have something to talk about. A cat has nine lives—and some women have nine cats' lives."

"While you were away Philip never did get this high on Indian Hill. Now—." Lucia smiled significantly.

"You always were deeply discerning, Lucia," Amoura smiled.

Her voice was uncertain as to how to take this remark, but she returned the beam. Soon she made her excuses and departed. Amoura, adhering to a resolution she had made two days before, after the scene with Philip, did not allow herself to think about him.

At the dinner table that evening J. Reginald Ainsley paused over his Cafe Bavaroise to say:

"When will you ladies be ready to go to South America? Now's the time to think of starting. It's summer there when it's winter here, you know."

"What do you think, dear?" Mrs. Reginald asked, addressing her daughter.

Amoura hesitated. She knew that her mother wanted to go. "Why, can't you and Dad make the trip by yourselves? I'm afraid I'd be the death of the party."

"Certainly not," her mother said. "Besides, Amoura added, "there's something I want to do this winter—in Westland." For the first time she mentioned to them her plans for the community institute in the slum district. She went into them with greater detail than in confiding them to Philip Weinrich. "What do you think?"

Mrs. J. Reginald looked askance at her husband.

"I think it's out of the question," he said. "There are too many charitable organizations now. All they succeed in doing is making these people more shiftless than ever."

"Yest, but this won't be charity! I want to teach them to help themselves."

"You'll only succeed in getting them discontented."

"That's the point," Amoura put in. "Get them discontented with their lot, and they'll want to better themselves."

"Their idea of bettering themselves is less work for more money."

No, none of my money for your scheme."

Amoura's upper lip stiffened, and her determination arose.

"Well, I AM going to open the institute." She decided to appeal to Grandma Ainsley for aid.

Brightest Student.

MARION, O.—The honor of being the brightest student of Harding high school here goes to Marvin Rife, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Rife.

This is substantiated by his school record, according to Miss Mattie Christian, principal of the Mart street school, where Marvin was enrolled in the elementary grades.

"Marvin never received a grade below A," Miss Christian said. "The majority of his grades have been A plus. The boy is a prodigy."

Marvin, who was born August 12, 1911, is taking a scientific course at Harding high school. He has an ambition to become a famous physician or surgeon.

Everybody Worked But Father

"Father's stomach trouble seemed to be getting worse all the time and finally he had to quit work altogether. Two brothers and myself gave up school and went to work to support the family. Father had lost sixty pounds in weight and was yellow as saffron and no medicine helped him. Telling a friend about it six months ago, she advised taking Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. I got a bottle and it helped father at once. He was able to go back to work a month later, has regained his weight and strength and eats like a wood chopper." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded.

Here Is an Attraction That Will Keep the Young Folks Home at Night

DO THE bright lights of Main Street burn brighter than your home-fires? Is your family circle broken nightly because there is no entertainment at home?

Youth seeks expression. Youth is not content with the "mechanical" music of the ordinary player or reproducing piano. That is why their boundless spirits respond so quickly to the Piano they play by roll with their own expression—their personal touch.

The Gulbransen Registering Piano
That Can be Played Equally Well by Roll or by Hand is the Social Center of Thousands of Homes

It's the Home that provides an outlet for all the pent-up energies of youth that Keeps the Young Folks home at night. Singing the songs of their fancy, the young folks accompany themselves by roll on the Gulbransen Registering Piano—just like hand playing. They dance when they wish—at home—to their choice of all the latest popular music, for dance music can be played with perfect cadence on the Gulbransen.

Come over today and try the piano that plays by roll even better than most pianists play by hand. Indeed you could not do more if you played by hand than you can do by roll on the Gulbransen. And you could not play so many pieces.

Come in and learn the thrill of the music you play yourself, then you will understand why home ties draw tighter for the family which has a Gulbransen Registering Piano of its own.

for a Richer 4-Door Sedan

Twentieth Century Sedan

Former Price $1995

Quality now talks Price

Motor car buyers are coming to Chandler.

For Chandler has done the unusual. Chandler has further advanced the standards and ideals of modern body-building, and has simultaneously reduced prices.

This new price move follows closely upon the news of the record-breaking performance of Chandler's marvelous Pikes Peak Motor on the mountain after which it is named—the world's highest automobile climb.

In the annual Labor Day automobile race up the dizzy heights of Pikes Peak, 14,109 feet above the sea, Chandler won the event in the record time of 17 minutes, 48 2/5 seconds. The best previous record was 18 minutes, 15 seconds.

Winner of so many performance records, Chandler is now winning new hosts of friends with a phenomenal closed car.

It is the new Chandler Twentieth Century Sedan—a better, richer, 4-door Sedan priced less than a 2-door coach—a reduction of $505.

It is every inch and every pound an automobile of quality—a finer Chandler in all ways—beautified and enriched in body, refined and perfected in chassis—and marvelously powered by Chandler's great Pikes Peak Motor.

You'll like the new Chandler the moment you set eyes on it. Everybody does.

You'll like it still more when you recline in its cushions. Everybody does.

And when you drive it ten miles you'll want to drive it forever. Everybody does!

The same things hold true with all other Chandler models. With them all, quality now talks price. See them.

CAN PENN END DEFENSE STOP GRANGE'S GAINS?

Will "Iceman" be Able to Thwart "Tearing in" Flankmen Who Have Been Drilled to Take Initiative? Illinois Star Himself Will Give to Philadelphia Campus Its Answer on Saturday Afternoon.

This is the eighth of a series of articles by Davis J. Walsh On some of the leading football teams of the east and middle west. Others will follow:

BY DAVIS WALSH

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 28.—Can the Pennsylvania system of end defense, with its wings going directly to the ball runner the minute a play is in motion, stop "Red" Grange, of Illinois, on Saturday? This is the major question of the day on the local campus. You answer it by asking several more: how grand is grand forks and what about the knives and spoons?

There will be no adequate answer to the Pennsylvania interogation until its ends come tearing in toward Grange on Saturday as soon as he gets the ball, which will be as soon as Illinois get the ball.

The Pennsylvania system calls for its wings to take several strides beyond the cautionary point before coming to a halt and diagnosing the direction of a play, in this way, they take the initiative and, against a team using little deception, they are quite effective.

The writer, however, has come to believe that Grange is inclined to some deception in his activities. He, in fact, is the most deceptive ball runner in the game and adds to this by being at least a double, if not always a triple threat.

EASTERN BACKS BID FOR FAME

Kreuz, Wilson, Hewitt, Slagle in Front Rank.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—For the first time in several seasons, the east may have a few plausible backfield candidates to offer when the All American plums are distributed. This section, which gave Jim Thorpe, Eddie Mahan, Brickley, Charley Barrett and other immortals to the game, hasn't produced a real All-American backfield star since Glenn Killinger graduated from Penn State three or four years ago. Koppisch, of Columbia, got the Camp vote last year, but was far from a foolproof halfback.

The backs of national note have come from the middle west, featuring Grange and the Four Horsemen of Notre Dame; the south where Wyckoff, of Georgia Tech, has held forth for three seasons, and from California and Stanford.

Come Into Their Own.

Now, however, the eastern ball runner seems to be coming back. Pennsylvania uncovered a fine pair in the Yale game, Kreuz and Rogers. Yale also has a couple of candidates, while Wilson, Hewitt and Buell, of the Army, are sectional leaders, even at this immature moment. Wilson was a co-star with Killinger at Penn State and should know what it is all about by this time.

Shapley, of the Navy, is above the average. So is Keefer, of Brown, not to mention Oberlander, of Dartmouth, and Pease, of Columbia. Many thought Pease was more deserving than Koppisch of recognition last year.

Gustafson, of Pittsburgh, can also join the line forming on the left. Carlin, of W. and J., and Foley, of Syracuse, are very likely entries.

This brings the issue down to a man who has been around and about for years, receiving genedal recognition for his greatness, but escaping official notice, or being ignored by same. The writer refers to Tyron, of Colgate. If ever he is to come into his own, Tryon must do it this season, since it is to be his last. Gebhardt, of Lafayette, also is about due.

None at Harvard.

Princeton has a good back in Slagle, but Harvard has nothing, at least at this moment. It has one Miller, a 200-pounder, who has bettered 10 seconds on the track, but Miller, either through non-support or a frank lack of ability, has yet to astound or even interest the natives.

However, the day is early and the field is large. Anything may happen in November. Things usually do.

There is little likelihood that the east will produce another Thorpe or Mahan for another generation, not to mention the season of 1925. But, with the present calibre of material on hand, it has better than an even chance of turning out a really representative back for the first time since Killinger operated.

Penn Boasts Great Line.

There is more than an even chance that Singer and Thayer may find themselves drawn out of position on occasions, if there are, a fine time will be had by all, including Harold "Red" Grange.

The Penn ends happen to be an exceptionally fine paid, at that. They can do everything an end should do, with one possible exception. They cannot substitute for themselves. This is to be deplored, since the reserve wing strength is rather weak, as it were.

It is the only department in which the Pennsylvania team is not fool proof. It has a fine charging line, featuring Captain Wilson and Sieracki, a pair of All American possibilities. At the tackles, Butler, Snyder and Pike, three exceptional guards, and Robinson, another embryonic All American at center. Hake, at tackle, is just a stride behind the varsity pair.

All in all, Pennsylvania has one of the finest lines in the game.

This, ordinarily, is enough. But Pennsylvania goes further. It has a great plunger and kicker in Kruez, a ball runner and passer in Rogers, two good quarterbacks in Leith and Laird, and several spare ball runners in Fields, Douglas, Thomas and Sorensen.

A great team, in brief, and on the threshold of the greatest season Pennsylvania has known since 1904.

Penn "System" Factor.

Furthermore, the writer might suggest that it is about to undergo its greatest test of the season, Yale, Brown and Chicago to the contrary. This trio was knocked off in succession as Pennsylvania proceeded to maintain its unbeaten record, but Illinois, in spite of its spotty showing in the middle west, will prove the highest hurdle of the lot.

Why? For reasons several and probably sufficient. In the first place, the word has gone out that Kruez and Fields will be unable to play on Saturday because of injuries. If this is true, the Pennsylvania attack, never too potent, will lose fifty percent of its efficiency and the Pennsylvania team quite possibly will lose one hundred percent of the football game.

The other reason is Grange. This one might prove the abiding factor, whether Kruez plays or doesn't play.

Bob Zuppke is bringing on an Illinois team fully equipped to turn Grange into the open for the first time this season. He wants to win this game about as much as anything he ever wanted before.

"Get me an eastern game," Zuppke asked last year. They got him one. Zuppke is hardly the man to muff his opportunity when it falls in his hands.

Laughlins Play Youngstown Team Saturday In West Penn Cup Tie

Manager Jesse Shaw's Homer Laughlin soccer club will clash with the Mahoning Valleys, of Youngstown, Saturday at Newell park in the local eleven's first tilt in the West Penn Cup tie.

Thirty-two teams are entered in the soccer competition, including many of the fastest outfits in western Pennsylvania and eastern Ohio. The Buckeye state is represented by the Mahoning Valleys and the St. Georges, of Youngstown, the Homer Laughlins and Niles.

The Valleys, champions of the Youngstown league in 1923 and 1924, bear a great reputation throughout the state. The Sharps, Whites, Corbine, the latter a halfback from Pittsburgh, and Leggett, goal tender, are well known to soccer fans here. Leggett played with the Thistles in East Liverpool several years ago.

The Sharp brothers are capable of a defense that enemy teams this year have found exceedingly difficult to penetrate. The Whites, also brothers, are fast forwards and especially deadly in front of the rival goal.

In the fall of 1924 five players were picked from the Mahoning Valleys to represent Ohio against a picked team from Michigan in a series of title games.

The Laughlins are in excellent shape and expect to make their first cup tie clash a real battle. The fact that they still lead the Press Northwest Division circuit with an unbroken string of victories indicates their ability to carry out their plans.

Robert Brown, secretary of the West Penn Football association, will referee the contest. The Valleys are scheduled to take the field at 3 o'clock and an extra period will be played in the event of a tie at the end of the regular playing time. Manager Jesse Shaw announced that the delay in the starting of the New Castle game here was no fault of the local club's, the visitors being detained as a result of an auto breakdown.

The Laughlin players will meet Thursday evening at 8 o'clock at the Eagles' home in Broadway.

Dempsey Takes Count At Hands of Mexican Law, Fined 500 Pesos

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 28. — Jack Dempsey has taken the count at the hands of the Mexican law, to the extent of 500 pesos.

A small automobile of a popular make was used as a grand stand to witness the triumphal arrival of Dempsey in Mexico City. The crowds rushing to see the fighter trampled over the automobile and wrecked it. According to the workings of the Mexican law, Dempsey was responsible for the collection of the crowd and therefore responsible for the damage to the automobile. He was assessed 500 pesos, which he paid with a smile.

T. S. T. BOWLERS LAND OPENER

Trim Laughlin Quint in League Clash.

A 657 "shot" at the maples in the first game of the season is not so bad, but this is the achievement of the Laughlin No. 1 crew of the Industrial Duckpin league in their encounter with the T. S. T. bowlers last night on the Liberty alleys. But, despite their inaugural efforts, the East Enders fell prey to the prowess of the T. S. T. quintet, which copped the second and third games of the three-ply series and the major portion of the honors.

C. Morris contributed no small part to the Laughlin conquest in the first game, rolling a 160, which was good for high score for the series. Although he dropped off in the second and third games, Morris, nevertheless, grabbed off honors for high average, with a mark of 132.

In the three games the East Enders dropped 73 more pins than the Chester five, but confined their efforts largely to the first game, and, as a result, the West Virginians finished ahead in the second and third, copping the finale by a margin of two pins.

Barnhart's 131 was high for T. S. T., with Baker, 129, and Canne, 127, right on his heels.

E. M. Knowles and Smith News, the latter taking the place of the Trotter team, will bowl tonight. K. T. K. and Laughlin 5 will meet on Thursday and Hall China and Laughlin 4 on Friday.

W. & J. BISONS AT WHEELING

BETHANY, W. Va., Oct. 28.—Next Saturday the Bison football team will engage in its annual classic game with W. & J. This game was scheduled to be played at Washington, but due to the collapse of the W. & J. stands last week, there will be no more scheduled games played at their home field. Instead the game will take place at Wheeling.

This change of fields will be a help to the Bison squad because now the game will be played practically in their own back yard. Stebbs, Hamill and Serafini of the Bisons will be playing on a field where they were taught the angles of the game.

This year's game is causing more spirit than ever before. For the past three years the Green and White team lined up against the Presidents at horrible odds in W. & J.'s favor. This year the teams will be somewhat nearly matched. The handicap of weight in W. & J.'s favor will be made up in fight on the part of the Bisons. People come from all sections just to see the struggle between these two fighting units. "The play is the thing," and this kind of play is the brand enjoyed by all football-dom. This year's clash is bound to be filled with "Ahs" and "Ohs" because there will be no letup on the part of two well-conditioned teams until the final whistle has blown.

No wonder a film star's figure is so fine. It has been screened so often.—Youngstown Vindicator.

Expect Victory Over John Hopkins Next Saturday.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 28.—The John Hopkins university eleven of Baltimore is the attraction at the Pitt Stadium Saturday and a crowd of between 15,000 and 20,000 is expected. John Hopkins was met for the first time in football last year at the Baltimore stadium and gave the Panthers a very interesting game. Dr. Ray Van Orman, who learned football at Cornell under "Pop" Warner, is coach at Hopkins, and while his team is not as heavy as that of the Panthers it is well coached and knows a lot of football.

There will be a double attraction that day, the Penn State freshmen meeting the Panther Cubs at 12:30. The Pitt cubs have not been defeated this year, although Carnegie Tech Freshmen held them to a tie last Saturday. They have registered victories over the strong Kiski Prep team, West Virginia Freshmen and Westinghouse Tech eleven. Stars of the freshmen team are Barnes, center, Guardino, end, Crabb, halfback and Rooney quarterback. Barnes entered Pitt from Broaddus Prep. Guarino is a Greensburg boy, who prepared at Bellefonte Academy, and Rooney is a product of Allegheny high school and Bellefonte academy. He is one of the best kickers Pitt has had in years. Crabb comes from Charleroi and played on the team which was runner up for the high school championship last year. There are a number of other star performers on the Pitt freshmen team. The Penn State Cubs also look very strong, having defeated Syracuse Freshmen last Saturday. Syracuse had previously won from Bellefonte, heretofore considered invincible.

The W. & J. game is in the offing and will be played in the Pitt stadium Saturday, November 7, the Saturday following the Hopkins game. A capacity crowd is expected at this game, as almost the entire population of Washington county will migrate to the Steel City to cheer for the Red and Black. W. & J.'s victory over Lafayette, in view of Lafayette's victory over the Panthers, makes them look like favorites, although "dope" means little when Pitt and W. & J. meet. W. & J. won by a one-touchdown margin over Pitt last year after quite a string of reverses.

Graduate K. E. Davis will accept mail orders for the W. & J. game at once. The price of tickets is $2.50 each, and there is no limit to the number of tickets a person can get. All orders should be accompanied by certified check, cash or money order, made payable to the University of Pittsburgh and mailed to Mr. Davis, at 503 Commonwealth Bldg.

FOUR STARS MISSING FROM BOONE'S ELEVEN

Scholastic Difficulties Take Banks and Bough Off Roster for Remainder of Season; Kinsey and R. Shaffer Unable to Play; Local Coach Also Fights Off Attack of Grippe as Important Game Nears.

Digression from the straight and narrow, sometimes rocky, but nevertheless profitable, path of scholastic duty, has ended the football careers, for 1925, of two of Coach O. V. Boone's line mainstays.

Guard Banks and Tackle Bough, having fallen away a little, it seems, from their course of learning, during a strenuous football campaign, transgressed the bounds of safety recently and, as a result, will be unable to wear the Blue and White again this season, under a ruling of the Ohio High School association, as interpreted by Coach Boone. They played their last game at Lisbon.

The team, apparently, has been badly jinxed in the last couple of weeks. Injuries alone were enough to keep the Blue and White mentor constantly changing his lineup, after the first two games, but now the scholastic bogey has thrust its head into the ranks and gobbled up a pair of stars and the vacancies they leave will be hard to fill.

Banks and Bough are only two of a quartet of first string performers who'll probably be missing the rest of the season.

There is no question about Ralph Shaffer, end and halfback, who was one of Boone's most dependable performers. Shaffer's knee was badly injured in the Struthers contest and he'll play no more this year.

Kinsey, a guard on a par with the best in the Boone introuage may be fortunate enough to get into action during the closing days of the season. But the chances are against it. Kinsey has been ill with grippe, and his condition, at the present time, at least, does not warrant any feeling that he'll be able to get back in the game.

Coach Boone, himself, yesterday was feeling the effects of the demon jinx. He was unable to leave his home as a result of an attack of grippe. But his illness will not long keep him off the football field. A rugged constitution and a determination to see the campaign through to the finish, especiall with two important county contests looming, will send him back to work in a day or so.

The first of this pair of battles is that with Salem Saturday afternoon at Patterson Field.

The Salemites have won four out of five clashes so far this season, leaving the battered remains of Niles, Cleveland West Tech, Struthers and East Palestine in their wake on their dash to football glory. They bent their knee to Geltz' Alliance eleven and that only after a desperate struggle.

East Palestine last Saturday was polished by Salem with a 15 to 6 swipe and this gives the dope experts a chance to work. Lisbon playing on their own lot, squashed the Brown and White by a 21-0 verdict, and East Liverpool managed to fork a 6-0 decision from the mud on the county seat gridiron. To some this comparison of scores made indicate an edge for the Ceramic City combine over the Red and Black of Salem; to others, it may indicate only that East Palestine is out of the running so far as county scholastic honors are concerned.

If Boone's team can erase Salem then only one more county game remains, as the schedule is arranged at present—and that with East Palestine.

At the present time Leetonia must be taken into consideration, although so far as the county leadership is concerned, the north countians have defeated only a green and comparatively inexperienced team from Wellsville. And that by a 6-0 score. Their principal games with Lisbon and Salem come later in the season.

Indians are Victors

The Kickapoo Indians easily defeated the fast Central team yesterday afternoon at Patterson Field. The game was well played despite the muddy condition of the field. The Centrals heretofore were undefeated. The Indians issue a challenge to all school teams in this city, Newell, Chester and Wellsville. For games call 1116-R and ask for Bud Lockett. The Indians would like a game especially with Chester Junior high.

CAMBRIDGESHIRE RUN OFF TODAY

NEWMARKET, England, Oct. 28.—Fine weather prevailed today for the Cambridgeshire handicap. Twenty horses are expected to go to the post at 2:35, with the Duke of Westminster's Twelve Pointer favorite. Beasley, who rode Forsetti in the Cesarewitch, is riding Twelve Pointer today.

Masked Marvel, owned by the American, A. K. Macomber, has considerable support on the basis of a report that Macomber backed his horses, Forsetti and Masked Marvel, in a double event for the Cesarewitch and the Cambridgeshire. Forsetti having won, Macomber stands to win the odds on $500 at 500 to 1, if Masked Marvel comes home first today.

THREE BEATEN IN LIQUOR WAR

TODAY

"The Sorrow of the Air."
Warning to United States.
Begging With An Ax.
That's Not New in America.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune).

Recently, in a little church at Lakewood, N. J., the Rev. H. D. Jones, devoted his sermon to the memory of the unfortunate men killed in the Shenandoah disaster. Commander Landsdowne and others of the Shenandoah crew had attended Rev. Mr. Jones' church.

There was, of course, no criticism of anybody from that pulpit. The preacher chose for his theme, "Sorrow," and dwelt upon it most eloquently.

He told of the sorrow of the mountains, where great landslides sweep away villages. The sorrow of the valley, where floods destroy, the sorrow of the sea, where ships are lost.

Then he dwelt upon the new sorrow, the sorrow of the air, so forcibly brought home to a great nation in the loss of the Shenandoah and her brave men.

"Sorrow of the air"—there is power in those words.

And there may be for this country a dreadful meaning in "sorrow of the air," if the United States neglects to provide an adequate air fleet and common sense management of its aircraft problem.

"The sorrow of unpreparedness" might prove such a sorrow as would cripple this nation for a hundred years.

The loss of the Shenandoah was a great calamity, tragic, appalling. But it meant, after all, only snuffing out the lives of 14 brave men, every one of whom would lie peacefully in his grave now, if he could be sure that the warning of his death had not been wasted.

Think of what might come in sorrow from the air if this nation, utterly unprepared as it is now, were suddenly surprised by an air attack.

There would be tens of thousands suffocated by poison gas in cities. There would be other thousands of lives snuffed out by deadly explosives, there would be hundreds of millions of property destroyed, although that is but a minor detail.

Those five words of warning, "The Sorrow of the Air," should sink into the minds of everybody responsible for government in the United States.

To keep from this nation "Sorrow of the Air" is the first duty of the president of the United States and of every member of congress.

Perhaps you read about beggars in Turkey that are real "go-getters."

After they beg, they threaten, and even have an ax at hand for "stingy givers." The Mohammedan religion says that every good Turk must give one-fortieth of his income to the poor.

Therefore the beggar has in a certain way the right to say when refused, "You will go to hell," meaning that a man refusing to give to a beggar is not obeying the law of Mohammet, the great prophet.

It is suggested that laws be passed against giving money to beggars in Turkey, and Kemal Pasha, who took the veil from Turkish women's faces and the red fez from men's heads, could do almost anything. But that wouldn't help. So the Turkish beggar,

TWO MEN UNHURT AS TRUCK RUNS WILD ON LISBON STREET HILL

Hallowe'en Prank Causes Wreck of Truck and Auto

Hallowe'en pranksters are blamed for a crash between a truck and an automobile near the corner of Sixth and Walnut streets last night.

After William Mercer, driver for Rinehart Brothers, road contractors, parked his truck on Thompson avenue, near his rooming house, boys are alleged to have released the brakes on the machine, starting it down Thompson avenue and East Sixth street grades.

Near the Buckeye Motor company's garage, the runaway swerved to one side of the street and crashed into an Essex car owned by the motor company. The front end of the Essex car was crushed and the truck was slightly damaged.

HURTLES CURB, LANDS IN CELLAR

Two Touring Cars Crash at Sixth Street and Broadway — Newell Automobile Wrecked Near Pughtown.

Two men narrowly escaped injury about 7 o'clock this morning when a truck, owned by the Ohio Willite Paving & Surfacing company, of this city, loaded with asphalt, ran wild down the Lisbon street hill.

When a drive chain on the truck, enroute to Lisbon, broke as the machine neared the old West End fire station, the brakes failed to hold and the vehicle backed down the grade.

Workers Remain In Seats.

Near the bottom of the hill the truck struck a telephone pole, breaking it off, uprooted a tree, hurtled the curb and dropped into a sidewalk cellar entrance.

The driver and his helper retained their places on the truck during its rampage.

The asphalt was loaded into another truck and the disabled machine was towed to a garage for repairs by the McElravy wrecker.

Two Other Accidents.

Cars owned by City Chemist Daniel H. Rupp and a Mr. Caldwell of Lisbon collided at the corner of Sixth street and Broadway at 9:45 o'clock last night. Rupp was driving north on Broadway, while Caldwell was traveling east on Sixth street when the crash occurred. The front end of the Rupp machine was badly damaged.

The Lisbon man is said to have continued on his way and at the corner of Sixth and Walnut street was headed off by Assistant Fire Chief Elmer McMillan, whose attention was attracted by the crash, as he was on his way to investigate a chimney fire. McMillan took him back to the scene of the crash and turned him over to Patrolman Lister. After arrangements were made with Rupp for adjustment of the damages, he was released. McElravy Brothers took charge of Rupp's car.

An automobile, owned by Thomas Geer of near Newell, lost a rear wheel in a collision with another car on the Chester-New Cumberland road, near Pughtown, last night. The other driver failed to stop. Geer's machine was brought here by the McElravy wrecker.

MITCHELL WINS VICTORIES IN COURT-MARTIAL

Challenged Right of Three Generals to Judge Him.

GIVE UP PLACES

Charges Two Men are Prejudiced Against Him.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Col. Billy Mitchell, the stormy petrel of the army air service, started off his court-martial today with three victories.

On the ground that two of the generals sitting as his judges were prejudiced against him, personally and officially, he successfully challenged their right to sit in judgment upon him, and they retired. One of them was Maj. Gen. Charles Summerall, the presiding officer of the court. The other was Brig. Gen. Albert Bowley.

Bowley went first, after some consultation among the 12 generals comprising the court. Then Frank S. Reid, civilian counsel for Mitchell, challenged Summerall.

Reid challenged Summerall for "personal prejudice" at Mitchell's personal direction.

This prejudice, Reid contended, was due to a report Mitchell had made while assistant chief of the army air service, condemning Summerall s handling of aviation while in command of the Hawaiian department. In his re-

STATE-COUNTY ISSUES FIRST TO BE COUNTED NEXT TUESDAY

Election Supervisors Draft Instructions to Judges.

PHONE RETURNS

City, Judgeship and Court Clerkship Ticket Figures, Too.

The vote on the three proposed state constitutional amendments and the proposed $950,000 county road bond issue will be counted first in the election in the 104 precincts of Columbiana county next Tuesday, it was announced today by Chief Deputy J. S. Hilbert and Clerk J. W. Moore of the board of deputy state supervisors of election.

Instructions to this effect were drafted today, preparatory to issuance to the presiding judges when they call at the respective district offices Saturday and Monday for ballots and other supplies.

Officers will be advised to telephone figures on the state and county issues to a designated district office as soon as the count is completed. Seven district offices will be established—East Liverpool, Wellsville, Salineville, East Rochester, Lisbon, East Palestine and Salem.

After tabulating the vote on the state and county proposals, East Liverpool judges will count the city, municipal judgeship and municipal clerkship ballots, and telephone these reports to the headquarters of the election board. The balance of the returns will be made when the presiding judge reports to headquarters upon completion of the count of all ballots.

General instructions to judges in precincts outside East Liverpool are:

"As soon as the polls close at 6:30 p. m. you will first count the ballots on the three state amendments and the County Bond Issue, and telephone the figures to (district office) telephone No.....having charges, if any, made at receiving end. The district representative is authorized to receive returns from all precincts in your vicinity and, in turn, transmit same to us.

"After the count on the above issues is completed, you will proceed with the count of other ballots, as heretofore, no further returns being required by this board until the following day.

"In reporting on the state amendments, to avoid confusion, you will designate them as number 1, 2 and 3, according to their position on the ballot. Be careful about this.

"Please be as expeditious as consistent with accuracy.

"Be careful to note instructions on cover of poll books. Return one book of all kinds with your supplies to this board. One book goes to the city auditor, village clerk and clerk of board of education."

DISTRICT BOY SCOUT COUNCIL WILL BE ORGANIZED NEXT MONDAY

Scoutmasters Plan Affiliation With County Organization as Means of Increasing Interest in Movement.

Formation of an East Liverpool district Boy Scout organization, which will be affiliated with the Columbiana County council, will be completed at a meeting next Monday evening in the Y. M. C. A. here.

Harvey Price, boy's work director of the Y. M. C. A., was named temporary chairman at the initial session of the troop representatives which was held here this week. County Scout Executive Wilson of Salem attended the conference.

According to tentative plans, the six Boy Scout troops will be included in the district council. These troops are those at the First Methodist Episcopal, First Presbyterian, Pennsylvania avenue M. E., and St. Aloysius Catholic churches of this city, one in Chester and one in Newell.

Boy Scout work in East Liverpool during the last several years has not been active. If the district council is formed, it is planned to organize several new troops. All Scoutmasters and youths interested in the new council have been invited to attend next Monday night's meeting.

COLD WAVE, RIDING ON WHITE WINGS OF SNOWSTORM, SWOOPS DOWN ON OHIO

Temperatures of 18 Degrees or Lower Will Over-spread Entire State by Tomorrow Morning, is Warning.

Riding on the white wings of a howling snow storm, a record breaking cold wave for this time of the year, was swooping down on East Liverpool and other Ohio cities from the northwest today.

"Temperatures of 18 degrees or lower will over-spread the entire state of Ohio by tomorrow morning," predicted Government Meteorologist W. H. Alexander, of Columbus, this afternoon.

Never in the history of the Columbus weather bureau has so severe a cold wave visited Ohio at this time of the year, Meteorologist Alexander said.

"The coldest temperature ever recorded before on October 29 was 27 degrees," said Alexander. "We expect the mercury to drop to 18 degrees or lower tomorrow."

Coming from Alaska, the cold snap centered today at Rapid City S. D., where the mercury fell o 14 degrees below zero, according to Alexander.

"Freezing temperature this morning extended to central Texas," Alexander declared. "Zero weather today gripped Montana, the Dakotas and northern Minnesota. The zero belt will move

The meeting was called by the Washington township trustees. Attorney L. M. Kyes, East Palestine; Conrad Berg, chairman of the board of county commissioners; L. H. Johnson, commissioner's clerk, and County Auditor C. E. Hamilton, discussed the proposal. Commissioner J. C. Kelly also attended the rally.

A meeting will be held in Summitville, Franklin township, Thursday night, while a similar gathering is scheduled for Calcutta Friday evening.

Thieves Pay no Attention to Sign, Lock Lisbon Safe

Robbers who broke into the I. C. Bean feed mill office in Lisbon do not believe in signs.

"This safe is not locked," was the notice hanging on the strongbox.

But the thieves, instead of opening the door, turned the combination, locking it.

They then ransacked desk drawers and letter files, getting less than one dollar for their efforts.

Victim of Alleged Attack is Found Lying in Street

Police today were searching for an East End man who is alleged to have seriously beaten Clarence Speidel, of Chester, at the corner of Broadway and Third street about 4:30 this morning.

A taxi driver called police headquarters, asserting that a man was lying in the street near the corner of Third street and Broadway, his face and clothing covered with blood. The driver said that he had just hauled a passenger to East End who claimed to have "beaten up" the stranger.

Speidel was brought to the city hall. He claimed he did not know the name of his assailant. He was held in jail on a charge of being intoxicated.

Patrolman Chester Smith was to question the suspect today.

HOME IS FIRED IN EFFORT TO HIDE CRIME IN WEST VIRGINIA

Father, Mother and Son Murderously Attacked.

YOUTH MAY DIE

One Victim Claims Assailant Poured Oil to Start Blaze.

MARIETTA, Oct. 28.—Warring factions of moonshiners who infest the southern border of Wood county, West Virginia, are charged with murderously beating Mr. and Mrs. Walker Smith and their son, Claude, and then burning their home, 10 miles south of Parkersburg, early this morning.

The Smiths are in a Parkersburg hospital. The father and son are suffering from fractured skulls while Mrs. Smith was badly beaten. The son, it was stated, will die, while the father's recovery is doubtful. State police are working on the case.

Suspect Dynamite Explosion.

Either the Smiths were beaten by their assailants and their home was fired for the purpose of concealing the crime, or their injuries and the fire resulted from a dynamite explosion.

When neighbors arrived, they found the elder Smith and another son, Okey, dragging the victims of the attack from the flaming ruins of their home. Walker Smith, conscious at intervals since the fire, declared he heard an explosion.

Then, he said, he was attacked. He declared he saw a strange man pouring oil on the floors of the house. Then the flames started.

THREE-MILL TAX LEVY IS CRISIS FOR EAST LIVERPOOL DISTRICT SCHOOLS, SAYS SENIOR CLASS GIRL

(Editor's note:—The following essay, "A Local Crisis,' was written by Miss Edwinna Wilson, member of the Senior class of the high school, in the interests of the proposed three mill school levy which will be submitted to the electors of the school district on next Tuesday.)

"In every period of history, and in the course of every event there is always a crisis and a turning point toward continued or receding progress. That crisis has come to East Liverpool in the form of a three-mill levy for the schools.

"The question at issue in the face of the November election is: "Shall we, as citizens of East Liverpool, prove our true worth by passing this three mill levy, thus making it possible to have nine months of school?" or "Shall we, for the sake of a few luxuries, fail to pass it, thus hindering the education of the coming generation?"

"Let us look at the question fairly, resolving to change our opinion, should we see the need of the levy.

"First: What is the three mill levy, and why is it of so much importance at the present time?· It is a levy to be voted on by the voters of East Liverpool, for the purpose of, not increasing the taxes and thus the school funds, but retaining the present rate of 8.71 mills on the dollar, which is the school allotment. It is not a levy advocated by the board of education, but by a budget commission made up of the county auditor, prosecuting attorney and county treasurer.

"Second: The approximate taxable property of East Liverpool is $36,000,000, the tax rate on which is $21.90 on each $1,000. This yields a total of $788,400, of which $313,560 is allotted to the schools, or about 39 per cent of the total tax is spent in educating the children. Out of this amount the teachers are paid, literature is provided, buildings are kept in repair, besides the numerous other items that must be taken care of. The school tax cannot be lessened when there is so much expense because the extra three mills are needed in taking care of the incurred debts.

"Third: While the tax millage for East Liverpool is 21, that for Wellsville is 28, which means that Wellsviille, a city not nearly so large as East Liverpool, is paying more taxes than her neighbor.

Other school districts of Ohio have a school levy of 15 mills and 10 is a common rate. Surely, a city of as much wealth as East Liverpool, whose inhabitants have a reputation of being very generous, is capable of holding a standard as high as other Ohio cities.

"Fourth: At the present time we are short of $30,000, which is partly due to the fact that all the taxes were not paid on account of the dissatisfaction caused by the last reappraisement. Unless this levy passes there will be a shortage every year of $110,000, besides the present shortage.

"Fifth: This levy should be passed without any murmuring on the part of the tax-payer, because the cost of material has increased 75 per cent since the war, wages have increased, but the school tax has remained the same. What expert management could present such a course of study as is being offered today, with those conditions existing?

"Sixth: Without this three-mill levy schools will be in session but five and

R. B. RALSTON DIES SUDDENLY

Mill Worker Succumbs to Attack of Heart Failure.

R. B. Ralston, 70 years old, died suddenly yesterday at his home, 1800 Nevada street, following an attack, it is believed, of heart failure. His body was found by a grandson in a coal shed adjoining the residence.

Yesterday morning he had made a trip up town and returned apparently in good health. Shortly before the noon meal he had gone to the coal shed. Later members of the family called to him when the meal was served and when he failed to heed the call, a grandson went to the coal shed and found him lying on the floor.

He was born on January 10, 1855, in Salineville. Forty-nine years ago he married Mary A. Weaver, also of Salineville. During the early part of his life he worked as a railroader, but for the past 25 years he has been employed at the American Sheet and Tin Plate plant here. He was a member of the First Methodist Episcopal church and was also affiliated with the Knights of Pythias lodge.

He is survived by his widow, one son, R. Bruce Ralston, Columbus; two daughters, Mrs. Lizzie B. Briney and Mrs. Doris E. Dowling, both of Bellaire; three brothers and two sisters, Edward, John and Jane of Wellsville and Reed and Mrs. Effie Umstead of Cleveland. In addition, eight grandchildren are living.

Funeral services will be held Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock, at the late residence in Nevada street in charge of Rev. W. S. Rose, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church. Burial will be made in Spring Hill cemetery.

McKenzie Services Friday.

Funeral services for Daniel McKenzie, 86 years old, who died Tuesday morning, will be held Friday afternoon at 1 o'clock in the Yellow Creek Presbyterian church. Burial will be made in the church cemetery.

He was a lifelong resident of Yellow Creek township.

He leaves one nephew and four nieces: John Gunn and Mrs. Fred Trickey of Iowa Falls, Iowa; Miss Laura Smith, Mrs. George Wilson and Mrs. Garfield McBane, of the Scotch Settlement.

Thomas Funeral Tomorrow.

Funeral services for Ike Thomas, Syrian, restaurant and pool room proprietor, of Main street, who died Monday in a Pittsburgh hospital, will be held tomorrow morning at the Immaculate Conception church. Burial will be made in St. Elizabeth cemetery.

Gland Treatment Seen As Foe to Corpulency; Test is Successful

LONDON.—The mitigation of corpulency through the medium of gland treatment is being investigated by London medical men.

It is claimed that people become fat or thin through the disorganization of the ductless glands and the London doctors are now attempting to remedy this by administrating the appropriate ductless in tablet form into persons suffering excessive corpulency or thinness. At one London hospital a young boy of fifteen who weighed 236 pounds was subjected to the treatment, and after a short course his weight was reduced to 176 pounds.

Lovely! not a Pimple

"OH, what a beautiful skin! Not a pimple—not a blemish. Perfectly rounded shoulders and a venus-like back! No wonder she's popular.

"If I could only get rid of these ugly pimples, my skin would be clear and soft and dimpling, like hers—maybe people would call me lovely, too."

You're right! The only thing that mars your beauty are those unsightly skin blemishes. Clear them away and watch eyes full of admiration turn in your direction, wherever you go. "But how can I get rid of them?" you ask. What will drive the wretched things away so they won't come back?

Why, that's just exactly what S. S. S. helps Nature do. It's been clearing away pimples, blackheads and blotches for a century. S. S. S. helps Nature build up the blood to where it's pure and healthy—then these ugly things dry right up. And that's the only way you can keep the skin clear and unblemished. S. S. S. puts the blood back to where it can fight the impurities that get in your system and kills them off before they break out through the skin. You can't stop skin eruptions from the outside. You've got to get down underneath where the trouble is—down in the blood.

Begin taking S. S. S. and watch how quickly you get that skin beauty that belongs to you. S. S. S. will charge your whole system so full of strength building, pure, healthy, red blood that you'll be simply brimful of new life and energy.

Accessories Make the Mode.

It's the trifles that make the mode. In no other season has the vogue of accessories been stressed so much as this, for with simple fashions being worn, accessories take the place of trimming and add color to the ensemble. They cost so little to acquire and mean so much.

There's a scarf for every costume because the scarf's the thing. There's a scarf for sports, for tailleur, for warmth, for evening. Lovely and delicate or large and bundly. Giving new life to the wardrobe and adding vivacity to the wearer.

Crepes of solid color or modernistic prints. Georgette scarfs in plain or rainbow tints. The new Shetland wools. Every desired shade. Priced from $3.00 to $9.75.

The new gloves are jaunty indeed and to the cuff belongs the glory. Now it is gay embroidery or applique on kid or suede fabric. Also dainty silk gloves with flare cuffs. All the shades of tan, grey and brown with embroidery to match your accessories. In all sizes and styles. Also the ever-popular black and white gloves. Priced from $1.00 to $5.00.

Handbags of every description. For the truly feminine woman we have adorable pouch or vanity bags of silk—or of vari-colored beads in novel designs.

For those inclined to the tailored mode we can offer envelope purses of leather or silk. These bags will hold all the trinkets or accessories you need. All colors to match Fall costumes. All nicely lined and fitted. Priced from $1.95 to $25.00.

Our silk hosiery presents the smartest Paris shades. Exquisite silk stockings, doubly important this Fall, since much more of them is disclosed through the vogue of shorter clothes. In the bieges, nudes and greys that Paris is wearing. Colors for daytime and evening in lustrous silks and filmy chiffons. Gun-metal and black still remain popular and we have them in various qualities of silks. $1.50 to $3.00.

The flower accessory works magic on wardrobes Different flowers worn with the same dress make several costumes out of one. A flower on the shoulder of your evening gown will give it a Paris air. The coat collar should sport a bright-colored boutonniere to match or contrast with your hat. Flowers priced from 50c to $1.65.

Never were there so many dainty handkerchiefs. Every style, color and fabric you can imagine. With lace edging, footing edging, hand embroidery and ever so many other little touches that make them the loveliest ever. Priced from 25c to $3.00.

Matched sets of jewelry are also an important trifle. The right bit of jewelry in the right place can make a costume look entirely different.

Umbrellas to match your costume are here in array. $4.95 to $15.00.

Every kind of toilet article to aid milady's beauty.

The tailored frock finds its most congenial companion in the soldier-stiff collars and cuffs. In white with colored bindings or plain colored chambray gingham. A smart addition to the trim business or school costume. Priced at 50c to $1.00.

Jabots have come out of the past and are again enjoying their old-time popularity. In laces and nets. Priced from $1.00 to $3.00.

Other collar and cuff sets in a variety of styles and sizes.

TODAY

"The Sorrow of the Air."
Warning to United States.
Begging With An Ax.
That's Not New in America.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune).

Recently, in a little church at Lakewood, N. J., the Rev. H. D. Jones, devoted his sermon to the memory of the unfortunate men killed in the Shenandoah disaster. Commander Landsdowne and others of the Shenandoah crew had attended Rev. Mr. Jones' church.

There was, of course, no criticism of anybody from that pulpit. The preacher chose for his theme, "Sorrow," and dwelt upon it most eloquently.

He told of the sorrow of the mountains, where great landslides sweep away villages. The sorrow of the valley, where floods destroy, the sorrow of the sea, where ships are lost.

Then he dwelt upon the new sorrow, the sorrow of the air, so forcibly brought home to a great nation in the loss of the Shenandoah and her brave men.

"Sorrow of the air"—there is power in those words.

And there may be for this country a dreadful meaning in "sorrow of the air," if the United States neglects to provide an adequate air fleet and common sense management of its aircraft problem.

"The sorrow of unpreparedness" might prove such a sorrow as would cripple this nation for a hundred years.

The loss of the Shenandoah was a great calamity, tragic, appalling. But it meant, after all, only snuffing out the lives of 14 brave men, every one of whom would lie peacefully in his grave now, if he could be sure that the warning of his death had not been wasted.

Think of what might come in sorrow from the air if this nation, utterly unprepared as it is now, were suddenly surprised by an air attack.

There would be tens of thousands suffocated by poison gas in cities. There would be other thousands of lives snuffed out by deadly explosives, there would be hundreds of millions of property destroyed, although that is but a minor detail.

Those five words of warning, "The Sorrow of the Air," should sink into the minds of everybody responsible for government in the United States.

To keep from this nation "Sorrow of the Air" is the first duty of the president of the United States and of every member of congress.

Perhaps you read about beggars in Turkey that are real "go-getters."

After they beg, they threaten, and even have an ax at hand for "stingy givers." The Mohammedan religion says that every good Turk must give one-fortieth of his income to the poor.

Therefore the beggar has in a certain way the right to say when refused, "You will go to hell," meaning that a man refusing to give to a beggar is not obeying the law of Mohammet, the great prophet.

It is suggested that laws be passed against giving money to beggars in Turkey, and Kemal Pasha, who took the veil from Turkish women's faces and the red fez from men's heads, could do almost anything. But that wouldn't help. So the Turkish beggar,

TWO MEN UNHURT AS TRUCK RUNS WILD ON LISBON STREET HILL

Machine, Loaded With Asphalt, Backs Down Grade, Breaks Off Telephone Pole and Uproots Tree.

Two Touring Cars Crash at Sixth Street and Broadway — Newell Automobile Wrecked Near Pughtown.

Two men narrowly escaped injury about 7 o'clock this morning when a truck, owned by the Ohio Willite Paving & Surfacing company, of this city, loaded with asphalt, ran wild down the Lisbon street hill.

When a drive chain on the truck, enroute to Lisbon, broke as the machine neared the old West End fire station, the brakes failed to hold and the vehicle backed down the grade.

Workers Remain In Seats.

Near the bottom of the hill the truck struck a telephone pole, breaking it off, uprooted a tree, hurtled the curb and dropped into a sidewalk cellar entrance.

The driver and his helper retained their places on the truck during its rampage.

The asphalt was loaded into another truck and the disabled machine was towed to a garage for repairs by the McElravy wrecker.

Two Other Accidents.

Cars owned by City Chemist Daniel H. Rupp and a Mr. Caldwell of Lisbon collided at the corner of Sixth street and Broadway at 9:45 o'clock last night. Rupp was driving north on Broadway, while Caldwell was traveling east on Sixth street when the crash occurred. The front end of the Rupp machine was badly damaged.

The Lisbon man is said to have continued on his way and at the corner of Sixth and Walnut street was headed off by Assistant Fire Chief Elmer McMillan, whose attention was attracted by the crash, as he was on his way to investigate a chimney fire. McMillan took him back to the scene of the crash and turned him over to Patrolman Lister. After arrangements were made with Rupp for adjustment of the damages, he was released. McElravy Brothers took charge of Rupp's car.

An automobile, owned by Thomas Geer of near Newell, lost a rear wheel in a collision with another car on the Chester-New Cumberland road, near Pughtown, last night. The other driver failed to stop. Geer's machine was brought here by the McElravy wrecker.

Hallowe'en Prank Causes Wreck of Truck and Auto

Hallowe'en pranksters are blamed for a crash between a truck and an automobile near the corner of Sixth and Walnut streets last night.

After William Mercer, driver for Rinehart Brothers, road contractors, parked his truck on Thompson avenue, near his rooming house, boys are alleged to have released the brakes on the machine, starting it down Thompson avenue and East Sixth street grades.

Near the Buckeye Motor company's garage, the runaway swerved to one side of the street and crashed into an Essex car owned by the motor company. The front end of the Essex car was crushed and the truck was slightly damaged.

MITCHELL WINS VICTORIES IN COURT-MARTIAL

Charges Two Men are Prejudiced Against Him.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Col. Billy Mitchell, the stormy petrel of the army air service, started off his court-marial today with three victories.

On the ground that two of the generals sitting as his judges were prejudiced against him, personally and officially, he successfully challenged their right to sit in judgment upon him, and they retired. One of them was Maj. Gen. Charles Summerall, the presiding officer of the court. The other was Brig. Gen. Albert Bowley.

Bowley went first, after some consultation among the 12 generals comprising the court. Then Frank S. Reid, civilian counsel for Mitchell, challenged Summerall.

Reid challenged Summerall for "personal prejudice" at Mitchell's personal direction.

This prefudice, Reid contended, was due to a report Mitchell had made while assistant chief of the army air service, condemning Summerall's handling of aviation while in command of the Hawaiian department. In his re-

STATE-COUNTY ISSUES FIRST TO BE COUNTED NEXT TUESDAY

Election Supervisors Draft Instructions to Judges.

PHONE RETURNS

City, Judgeship and Court Clerkship Ticket Figures, Too.

The vote on the three proposed state constitutional amendments and the proposed $950,000 county road bond issue will be counted first in the election in the 104 precincts of Columbiana county next Tuesday, it was announced today by Chief Deputy J. S. Hilbert and Clerk J. W. Moore of the board of deputy state supervisors of election.

Instructions to this effect were drafted today, preparatory to issuance to the presiding judges when they call at the respective district offices Saturday and Monday for ballots and other supplies.

Officers will be advised to telephone figures on the state and county issues to a designated district office as soon as the count is completed. Seven district offices will be established—East Liverpool, Wellsville, Salineville, East Rochester, Lisbon, East Palestine and Salem.

After tabulating the vote on the state and county proposals, East Liverpool judges will count the city, municipal judgeship and municipal clerkship ballots, and telephone these reports to the headquarters of the election board. The balance of the returns will be made when the presiding judge reports to headquarters upon completion of the count of all ballots.

General instructions to judges in precincts outside East Liverpool are:

"As soon as the polls close at 6:30 p. m. you will first count the ballots on the three state amendments and the County Bond Issue, and telephone the figures to (district office) telephone No.....having charges, if any, made at receiving end. The district representative is authorized to receive returns from all precincts in your vicinity and, in turn, transmit same to us.

"After the count on the above issues is completed, you will proceed with the count of other ballots, as heretofore, no further returns being required by this board until the following day.

"In reporting on the state amendments, to avoid confusion, you will designate them as number 1, 2 and 3, according to their position on the ballot. Be careful about this.

"Please be as expeditious as consistent with accuracy.

"Be careful to note instructions on cover of poll books. Return one book of all kinds with your supplies to this board. One book goes to the city auditor, village clerk and clerk of board of education."

Scoutmasters Plan Affiliation With County Organization as Means of Increasing Interest in Movement.

Formation of an East Liverpool district Boy Scout organization, which will be affiliated with the Columbiana County council, will be completed at a meeting next Monday evening in the Y. M. C. A. here.

Harvey Price, boy's work director of the Y. M. C. A., was named temporary chairman at the initial session of the troop representatives which was held here this week. County Scout Executive Wilson of Salem attended the conference.

According to tentative plans, the six Boy Scout troops will be included in the district council. These troops are those at the First Methodist Episcopal, First Presbyterian, Pennsylvania avenue M. E., and St. Aloysius Catholic churches of this city, one in Chester and one in Newell.

Boy Scout work in East Liverpool during the last several years has not been active. If the district council is formed, it is planned to organize several new troops. All Scoutmasters and youths interested in the new council have been invited to attend next Monday night's meeting.

COLD WAVE, RIDING ON WHITE WINGS OF SNOWSTORM, SWOOPS DOWN ON OHIO

Temperatures of 18 Degrees or Lower Will Over-spread Entire State by Tomorrow Morning, is Warning.

Riding on the white wings of a howling snow storm, a record breaking cold wave for this time of the year, was swooping down on East Liverpool and other Ohio cities from the northwest today.

"Temperatures of 18 degrees or lower will over-spread the entire state of Ohio by tomorrow morning," predicted Government Meteorologist W. H. Alexander, of Columbus, this afternoon.

Never in the history of the Columbus weather bureau has so severe a cold wave visited Ohio at this time of the year, Meteorologist Alexander said.

"The coldest temperature ever recorded before on October 29 was 27 degrees," said Alexander. "We expect the mercury to drop to 18 degrees or lower tomorrow."

Coming from Alaska, the cold snap centered today at Rapid City S. D., where the mercury fell o 14 degrees below zero, according to Alexander.

"Freezing temperature this morning extended to central Texas," Alexander declared. "Zero weather today gripped Montana, the Dakotas and northern Minnesota. The zero belt will move

Music was furnished by the Salineville band.

A meeting will be held in Summitville, Franklin township, Thursday night, while a similar gathering is scheduled for Calcutta Friday evening.

Thieves Pay no Attention to Sign, Lock Lisbon Safe

Robbers who broke into the I. C. Bean feed mill office in Lisbon do not believe in signs.

"This safe is not locked," was the notice hanging on the strongbox.

But the thieves, instead of opening the door, turned the combination, locking it.

They then ransacked desk drawers and letter files, getting less than one dollar for their efforts.

Victim of Alleged Attack is Found Lying in Street

Police today were searching for an East End man who is alleged to have seriously beaten Clarence Speidel, of Chester, at the corner of Broadway and Third street about 4:30 this morning.

A taxi driver called police headquarters, asserting that a man was lying in the street near the corner of Third street and Broadway, his face and clothing covered with blood. The driver said that he had just hauled a passenger to East End who claimed to have "beaten up" the stranger.

Speidel was brought to the city hall. He claimed he did not know the name of his assailant. He was held in jail on a charge of being intoxicated.

Patrolman Chester Smith was to question the suspect today.

HOME IS FIRED IN EFFORT TO HIDE CRIME IN WEST VIRGINIA

Father, Mother and Son Murderously Attacked.

YOUTH MAY DIE

One Victim Claims Assailant Poured Oil to Start Blaze.

MARIETTA, Oct. 28.—Warring factions of moonshiners who infest the southern border of Wood county, West Virginia, are charged with murderously beating Mr. and Mrs. Walker Smith and their son, Claude, and then burning their home, 10 miles south of Parkersburg, early this morning.

The Smiths are in a Parkersburg hospital. The father and son are suffering from fractured skulls while Mrs. Smith was badly beaten. The son, it was stated, will die, while the father's recovery is doubtful. State police are working on the case.

Suspect Dynamite Explosion.

Either the Smiths were beaten by their assailants and their home was fired for the purpose of concealing the crime, or their injuries and the fire resulted from a dynamite explosion.

When neighbors arrived, they found the elder Smith and another son, Okey, dragging the victims of the attack from the flaming ruins of their home. Walker Smith, conscious at intervals since the fire, declared he heard an explosion.

Then, he said, he was attacked. He declared he saw a strange man pouring oil on the floors of the house. Then the flames started.

Mr. Fisher responded with a short address, in which he thanked the donors and recalled the early history of the Newell fire department.

Jerry Saltzer, who extinguished the first fire in Newell, also made a short address.

Vocal selections were given by the Clayshop quartet, with Hilda Bowersock as accompanist. Music for the round and square dancing, which followed, was furnished by Smith's orchestra.

The committee in charge of the reception was composed of Ivan Booher, Alvin Thornberry, William Jones, Peter Brooks, Harry Burson, David Cline, Wayne Richardson, Clyde Carson, Lewis Reese, William Saxton, George Rayl, Tim Robinson, Joseph McCormick, William Higginbottom, and Joseph Dickey.

THREE-MILL TAX LEVY IS CRISIS FOR EAST LIVERPOOL DISTRICT SCHOOLS, SAYS SENIOR CLASS GIRL

(Editor's note:—The following essay, "A Local Crisis,' was written by Miss Edwinna Wilson, member of the Senior class of the high school, in the interests of the proposed three mill school levy which will be submitted to the electors of the school district on next Tuesday.)

"In every period of history, and in the course of every event there is always a crisis and a turning point toward continued or receding progress. That crisis has come to East Liverpool in the form of a three-mill levy for the schools.

"The question at issue in the face of the November election is: "Shall we, as citizens of East Liverpool, prove our true worth by passing this three mill levy, thus making it possible to have nine months of school?' or "Shall we, for the sake of a few luxuries, fail to pass it, thus hindering the education of the coming generation?'

"Let us look at the question fairly, resolving to change our opinion, should we see the need of the levy.

"First: What is the three mill levy, and why is it of so much importance at the present time?- It is a levy to be voted on by the voters of East Liverpool, for the purpose of, not increasing the taxes and thus the school funds, but retaining the present rate of 8.71 mills on the dollar, which is the school allotment. It is not a levy advocated by the board of education, but by a budget commission made up of the county auditor, prosecuting attorney and county treasurer.

"Second: The approximate taxable property of East Liverpool is $36,000,000, the tax rate on which is $21.90 on each $1,000. This yields a total of $788,400, of which $313,560 is allotted to the schools, or about 39 per cent of the total tax is spent in educating the children. Out of this amount the teachers are paid, literature is provided, buildings are kept in repair, besides the numerous other items that must be taken care of. The school tax cannot be lessened when there is so much expense because the extra three mills are needed in taking care of the incurred debts.

"Third: While the tax millage for East Liverpool is 21, that for Wellsville is 28, which means that Wellsville, a city not nearly so large as East Liverpool, is paying more taxes than her neighbor.

Other school districts of Ohio have a school levy of 15 mills and 10 is a common rate. Surely, a city of as much wealth as East Liverpool, whose inhabitants have a reputation of being very generous, is capable of holding a standard as high as other Ohio cities.

"Fourth: At the present time we are short of $30,000, which is partly due to the fact that all the taxes were not paid on account of the dissatisfaction caused by the last reappraisement. Unless this levy passes there will be a shortage every year of $110,000, besides the present shortage.

"Fifth: This levy should be passed without any murmuring on the part of the tax-payer, because the cost of material has increased 75 per cent since the war, wages have increased, but the school tax has remained the same. What expert management could present such a course of study as is being offered today, with those conditions existing?

"Sixth: Without this three-mill levy schools will be in session but five and

Remedial Defects Exist in Large Extent Among School Pupils.

Of the 101,372 school children who were examined by doctors and nurses last year in the state, 41,811 were found to have remedial physical defects, according to a report filed by Miss Edna Hardsaw, field advisory nurse of the state department of health. These examinations were made in 24 counties where children are given health protection through school and public health nurses. In the majority of instances these are employed by school systems, but in at least eight of the counties where there are full-time health departments the nurses give county-wide service.

The number examined represents only about one-fourth of the children attending the graded schools in West Virginia, statistics show, which brings out the fact that there are thousands of children suffering with physical defects who do not have the benefits of physical examinations. The majority of defects can easily be corrected, authorities declare, if they are discovered in time. The number of children showing physical defects has decreased materially in those centers where there are regular school nurses to safeguard the children at all times, as seen by a comparison of recent reports from those places with records of past years.

Miss Hardsaw spent the week in Wood and Roane counties, where she held advisory conferences with school and county nurses in regard to their programs for the coming year.

Princeton and Bluefield are the next centers Miss Hardsaw will visit. She will conduct public health nursing classes at the Bluefield sanitarium and the Princeton Memorial hospital, as well as confer with school nurses.

A total of 11,634 visits to homes were made by school and community nurses in 24 counties of the state, according to a recent report to the state department of health from the various counties. These visits are made in connection with the school and community health programs carried out in these centers.

Reginald Denny Hits Fast Clip in Picture at Ceramic

Reginald Denny becomes the "1925 pioneer" of the open road in "California Straight Ahead,' his latest starring Universal-Jewell feature, which comes to the Ceramic theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

In this picture, which first night audiences hailed as one of the star's best, Denny sets forth for a motor trip across the continent in an elaborately constructed trailer. The trailer had been built for his honeymoon, but the honeymoon didn't come off because he showed up late for his wedding and his bride wouldn't marry him because she thought he'd been drinking.

That starts Denny off on a picture packed full of strange situations, mishaps, adventures, thrills and laughs, which makes "California Straight Ahead" one of the funniest light comedies of the season.

Though the motor trip and the attendant adventures may be a bit more stirring than the usual tourist's journey, at least more people would be tempted to set forth in the automobiles if they were sure of going through all the things Denny did.

As in his other recent pictures, Reginald Denny proves that he is a versatile, accomplished comedian, and his performance rivals his characterization of the hypochondriac in "Oh, Doctor!"

He is admirably supported by Gertrude Olmstead as leading woman, who finally agrees to marry the hero because he will not let her do anything else.

The supporting cast includes Tom Wilson, Charles Gerrard, Fred Esmelton, Lucille Ward, John Steppling, Leo Nomas and others.

The direction of Harry Pollard was usually good, and gave the star every opportunity to display his talent as a fun-maker. Byron Morgan and the director collaborated on the story of "California Straight Ahead."

Boost for Large Feet.

LONDON.—Englishmen's feet are getting larger due to their increasing participation in tennis and other sports, according to officials at the annual Shoe and Leather Fair just held here.

R. B. RALSTON DIES SUDDENLY

Mill Worker Succumbs to Attack of Heart Failure.

R. B. Ralston, 70 years old, died suddenly yesterday at his home, 1800 Nevada street, following an attack, it is believed, of heart failure. His body was found by a grandson in a coal shed adjoining the residence.

Yesterday morning he had made a trip up town and returned apparently in good health. Shortly before the noon meal he had gone to the coal shed. Later members of the family called to him when the meal was served and when he failed to heed the call, a grandson went to the coal shed and found him lying on the floor.

He was born on January 10, 1855, in Salineville. Forty-nine years ago he married Mary A. Weaver, also of Salineville. During the early part of his life he worked as a railroader, but for the past 25 years he has been employed at the American Sheet and Tin Plate plant here. He was a member of the First Methodist Episcopal church and was also affiliated with the Knights of Pythias lodge.

He is survived by his widow, one son, R. Bruce Ralston, Columbus; two daughters, Mrs. Lizzie B. Briney and Mrs. Doris E. Dowling, both of Bellaire; three brothers and two sisters, Edward, John and Jane of Wellsville and Reed and Mrs. Effie Umstead of Cleveland. In addition, eight grandchildren are living.

Funeral services will be held Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock, at the late residence in Nevada street in charge of Rev. W. S. Rose, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church. Burial will be made in Spring Hill cemetery.

McKenzie Services Friday.

Funeral services for Daniel McKenzie, 86 years old, who died Tuesday morning, will be held Friday afternoon at 1 o'clock in the Yellow Creek Presbyterian church. Burial will be made in the church cemetery.

He was a lifelong resident of Yellow Creek township.

He leaves one nephew and four nieces: John Gunn and Mrs. Fred Trickey of Iowa Falls, Iowa; Miss Laura Smith, Mrs. George Wilson and Mrs. Garfield McBane, of the Scotch Settlement.

Thomas Funeral Tomorrow.

Funeral services for Ike Thomas, Syrian, restaurant and pool room proprietor, of Main street, who died Monday in a Pittsburgh hospital, will be held tomorrow morning at the Immaculate Conception church. Burial will be made in St. Elizabeth cemetery.

Gland Treatment Seen As Foe to Corpulency; Test is Successful

LONDON.—The mitigation of corpulency through the medium of gland treatment is being investigated by London medical men.

It is claimed that people become fat or thin through the disorganization of the ductless glands and the London doctors are now attempting to remedy this by administrating the appropriate ductless in tablet form into persons suffering excessive corpulency or thinness. At one London hospital a young boy of fifteen who weighed 236 pounds was subjected to the treatment, and after a short course his weight was reduced to 176 pounds.

Accessories Make the Mode.

It's the trifles that make the mode. In no other season has the vogue of accessories been stressed so much as this, for with simple fashions being worn, accessories take the place of trimming and add color to the ensemble. They cost so little to acquire and mean so much.

There's a scarf for every costume because the scarf's the thing. There's a scarf for sports, for tailleur, for warmth, for evening. Lovely and delicate or large and bundly. Giving new life to the wardrobe and adding vivacity to the wearer.

Crepes of solid color or modernistic prints. Georgette scarfs in plain or rainbow tints. The new Shetland wools. Every desired shade. Priced from $3.00 to $9.75.

The new gloves are jaunty indeed and to the cuff belongs the glory. Now it is gay embroidery or applique on kid or suede fabric. Also dainty silk gloves with flare cuffs. All the shades of tan, grey and brown with embroidery to match your accessories. In all sizes and styles. Also the ever-popular black and white gloves. Priced from $1.00 to $5.00.

Handbags of every description. For the truly feminine woman we have adorable pouch or vanity bags of silk—or of vari-colored beads in novel designs.

For those inclined to the tailored mode we can offer envelope purses of leather or silk. These bags will hold all the trinkets or accessories you need. All colors to match Fall costumes. All nicely lined and fitted. Priced from $1.95 to $25.00.

Our silk hosiery presents the smartest Paris shades. Exquisite silk stockings, doubly important this Fall, since much more of them is disclosed through the vogue of shorter clothes. In the bieges, nudes and greys that Paris is wearing. Colors for daytime and evening in lustrous silks and filmy chiffons. Gun-metal and black still remain popular and we have them in various qualities of silks. $1.50 to $3.00.

The flower accessory works magic on wardrobes Different flowers worn with the same dress make several costumes out of one. A flower on the shoulder of your evening gown will give it a Paris air. The coat collar should sport a bright-colored boutonniere to match or contrast with your hat. Flowers priced from 50c to $1.65.

Never were there so many dainty handkerchiefs. Every style, color and fabric you can imagine. With lace edging, footing edging, hand embroidery and ever so many other little touches that make them the loveliest ever. Priced from 25c to $3.00.

Matched sets of jewelry are also an important trifle. The right bit of jewelry in the right place can make a costume look entirely different.

Umbrellas to match your costume are here in array. $4.95 to $15.00.

Every kind of toilet article to aid milady's beauty.

The tailored frock finds its most congenial companion in the soldier-stiff collars and cuffs. In white with colored bindings or plain colored chambray gingham. A smart addition to the trim business or school costume. Priced at 50c to $1.00.

Jabots have come out of the past and are again enjoying their old-time popularity. In laces and nets. Priced from $1.00 to $3.00.

Other collar and cuff sets in a variety of styles and sizes.

Stand By The Schools

Five thousand children, cognizant of the importance of a Class A education, today are appealing to the voters of the East Liverpool district to support a proposed three-mill school tax levy which will be submitted at the election on Tuesday, November 3.

Adding his voice to their supplication, School Superintendent Charles S. McVay warns that the educational system is facing a crisis, for rejection of the request for a continuance of the present revenue means a five-month school term. And adoption of such a plan would be a calamity.

Like 15 other districts in Columbiana county, East Liverpool is asking the electorate to stand by the schools in effort to bridge the chasm over the abyss of chaos, for a demoralized situation looms unless the voters heed the danger sign. Without the three-mill levy, the board of education will be deprived of funds to pay bills for operating expenses.

On the other hand, the efficiency of the schools will be maintained without adding to the burdens of the taxpayer, if the tax is voted, for the board of education is asking merely a renewal of the revenue voted five years ago.

The sensible thing to do is to vote "yes" on the school levy.

What Is a Fresh Egg?

A delegate to a recent butter and egg convention declared that an egg may still be a fresh egg after it has been in storage for a year. Not so fresh, he seems to mean, that it wouldn't hatch, with suitable encouragement; yet not so stale, either, that it suggest hatching.

Whereupon a New York newspaper wants to know what the butter and egg delegate considers a "fresh egg." The subject is confusing. For according to the pewspaper authority, a 'fresh egg" is pretty far down the line of freshness. Grades ranking above it, he observes, as illustrated in the trade, are "strictly fresh, then "guaranteed fresh," then "select," then "fancy," and so on until you arrive at the "extra fancy jumbo select."

An ignorant layman—and a laying hen, for that matter—would probably be disposed to start at the top with "fresh eggs" and grade down from that. But maybe laymen and layers don't understand the psychology of the egg trade.

Nevertheless, it looks to an outsider as if here would be another good place for Secretary Hoover to get in some of his simplifying and standardizing work.

Wise Lonliness

Reading of a radio operator who has lived for 18 months on a lonely Caribbean island, a newspaper reader asks, "What in the world ever impels anyone to live like that?" Then another reader rises to remark that he would like very much to live in such isolation for a while, so that he could get some good reading done.

He is a French-American, of considerable education, who longs for time and opportunity to peruse the world's masterpieces, but finds himself hindered by the necessity of fighting his way through city crowds and answering fool questions on the telephone and "taking dictation from a business man whose sole literature is price lists." He says a very good thing.

Great works of literature, he observes, have been written usually in privacy and quietness. And "if absence from even their friends and families was necessary for these geniuses to write their master books, so much the more is solitude necessary for us who would read them intelligently."

Most people nowadays read little among the books upheld by the best judgment of ages. They say they cannot do it, because of this very lack of privacy and quietness, in a noisy, helter-skelter age, with a thousand persons and things always claiming their attention. Perhaps if they would seek solitude now and then, they could find it more easily than they think; and finding it, they might discover reading and other high pleasures of the mind amply compensating for shallow amusements and trivial contacts.

Living Generosity

Possibly because of the publicity often attached to them, it has been popularly supposed that the more important philanthropies are those left in the form of bequests. This belief, according to the secretary of the Chicago Community Trust, is not fair to the living whose generosity, year in and year out, far exceeds in totals the gifts made through wills.

The Chicago Community Trust is a permanent fund of $3,000,000, the proceeds of which go to charity organizations for distribution. Only $70,000 of those millions came through bequests. All the rest was given by living donors, in amounts varying from very small contributions to very large ones.

Even the fine philanthropies arranged for through bequests might well be credited to living donors, since they are planned while the giver is living.

Bequests, large or small, are important and valuable. Philanthropists who contemplate making contributions to the public welfare by that means should not be discouraged from their purpose. But while appreciating their generosity, it is only fair at the same time to appreciate the generosity of the great number of persons who give regularly and consistently, out of current incomes.

A thrifty almanac would bring Christmas in mid-summer. Then everybody could save money by taking a vacation for Christmas.

The Terrible Tempered Mr. Bang— By Fontaine Fox

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—New York has a polite sneer for the nouveau riche. In a way sudden wealth is branded with stigma. And precipitates social banishment. Hundreds with newly gained trappings of millions are as remote from the social core as a Sahara wandered. Manhattan takes ghoulish glee in showing them they cannot make the grade. They hire social secretaries, press agents and scatter fabulous sums entertaining, and reach the social status of a Flatbush horse doctor. Money will not buy their way into the inner circle.

The best they can do is to entertain a few doubtful noblemen out at elbow, who will accept any invitation that includes a free meal, and give in return a brandied cheer. The new rich are the prey of a hundred pickthanks—polite borrowers who give the idea they can swish into the smart set anytime.

Fly-by-night gossip periodicals thrive on their generosity. Headwaiters would live on lean fare without them. And they are the special suckers of those apartment houses known by numbers who bracket announcements in their ads: "We lease only to the socially desirable."

The opera, first nights, smart cafes and supper club ringsides reveal them night after night with their groups of rather sheepish sycophants. There is nothing of the cheap swagger about them. There is more of the humbleness of a ragged urchin grazing into the efflorescent pastry shop window.

Society can afford to be supercilious, for it costs nothing and the grand manner tickles superior vanity. One man is said to have given two young men, distinguished for adenoids and cuff shooting, $30,000 a year positions. They belonged into the swim.

It was his hope they could open the barred gates. So he could swim a little. He got no further than an invitation to attend an after-theater soiree at their bachelor apartment, featured by maudlin chorus girls and hiccupy men about town. They were willing to accept his money, but accepting him socially was another thing, Mawruss.

New York craves good coffee. All over town tiny shops feature this drink. Outside of a sandwich or doughnut they offer nothing else. There are five to one block on Broadway and they appear filled at all hours day and night. There is an actor who averages 10 cups a day and a motion picture critic who is limiting himself to 12 cups a day. Tea has never been a success in Manhattan. Cafes sell almost everything but tea.

George Eichelberger, a lawyer, says the only differences between small towns and cities are cafes, theaters and Turkish baths. The trick I have never mastered in cities is to distinguish bus boys from watters. I am continually asking bus boys who cannot speak English for the check.

The sheer loneliness of cities is rather disheartening. In a hotel cafe nightly at dinner there comes a queenly woman of middle years, rather strikingly gowned and alone. She eats a sandwich or perhaps a salad, and nothing else. Once she lived in the hotel until financial misfortune came. She wound up in a hall bedroom nearby, and clings to the past in this fashion. During the day she is a bookkeeper in a produce house.

Anonymous letters amuse me, but one arrived today that seemed to me a shade harsh. Perhaps I'm prejudiced. It started off: "You dirty crook." There was also an intimation I would be "bumped off if I wrote about a certain topic again. (Notice I'm not naming the topic, ha-ha). It makes me rather warm to my anonymous friend in South America who in a critical mood writes me monthly with the opening salutation, "Fathead."

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

City Pounds for Autos.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 28.—Reading, Pennsylvania, has just completed its first six months' experiment with an automobile pound and the city officials call it a success.

The automobile pound as operated by Reading seems a unique institution. The idea has been tried in several other cities, but usually cars were only impounded because of some serious offense against the law, such as illegally transporting liquor. In Reading, however, parking in the wrong place or parking too long in restricted places, is sufficient cause for having one's car taken to the pound.

In the case of a car which has been parked beyond the time limit the method of procedure on the part of the law is as follows: The traffic officer first marks with chalk the tire of the parked car. Then after the time limit has expired he goes around and if the car bearing the chalk mark is still there he puts in a call to the pound for the towing car to be brought around. The car is then towed to the garage which is used as the pound.

When the owner calls for his car he is fined according to the number of his previous offenses. If it is his first offense he is charged $2. The charge for the second offense is $3. third, $4; fourth, $5, and each subsequent offense $5. If the car may be taken to the pound under its own power no towing charge is made, otherwise 50 cents is added.

A rather amusing story is told of a city employe who one day upon looking out of his office window saw his car about to be towed away. Displaying rare presence of mind he dashed down and gave his key to the officer, thus saving the towing charge. This man had a police badge and thought it might avail him something, but the officer remained adamant. Elizabeth was driven to the pound and he was obliged to bail her out.

This system of impounding cars parked too long or in the wrong place has been the cause of many a shock to visitors. Strangers coming to the city are unfamiliar with the traffic regulations, or perhaps trade upon the fact that they are from out of town. At any rate for one reason or another they often are horrified to find up coming out of some shop that their car is not where they left it. Also here is no sign or indication of what could have happened to it. They hysterically call the police headquarters saying their car has been stolen, whereupon they are informed that their car is no doubt in the pound, and directions are given as to its location.

Not Many Complaints.

The mayor's office, under whose personal direction this institution is operated, says that there are comparatively few complaints of this system from out-of-town drivers. Most of the complaints come from townspeople. Of course this might be explained by the fact that those passing through the town perhaps feel that the refund of the small fine is scarcely worth the bother and time it would take to make the claim. On the other hand the people of the town in many cases are desirous of proving how much pull they have in official circles.

As the secretary to the mayor puts it: "Many people come in here claiming personal friendship with the mayor, or the chief of police, or some other official, and feel that for that reason they should be exempt from these traffic regulations." On the whole, however, there are not many complaints and, as the secretary continues, "as a rule you can easily judge those who do make complaint," giving the impression that most of them come from people who would criticise anything.

While there may not be many official complaints against this system one hears much criticism around the town. Many stories are told of the overzealousness of the traffic officers. One in particular is that of a woman who had parked her car while she went to perform some errand. In the car she left her small daughter and dog. An officer intent upon his duty found that the car had been parked beyond the time limit and without consideration for the child and dog had the car towed to the pound. Of course, the child became hysterical with fright and no doubt felt that her instinctive fear of policemen had been justified. This incident aroused the indignation of many people and did not tend to popularize the idea of the pound.

Called a Hick Idea.

Other people take the view that this system of enforcing traffic regulations is something to be a little ashamed of and are somewhat embarrassed when telling strangers about it. As one man puts it, "It seems sort of a 'hick' idea."

Still others complain that it is purely a political scheme whereby some one is given a good job. The report of the pound for the first six months of operation would appear to refute this charge, however. The pound is entirely self-supporting. The fines more than cover the salary of the man in charge, and the garage which is used as the pound receives only the towing charges.

The effectiveness of the idea is shown by the fact that the number of cars impounded decrease monthly according to official records. This brings to the mind of the outsider the question of just how long the pound will be self-supporting if it is so effective that the number of impounded cars continue to decrease.

There have been some instances where claims for refunds of the fines have been recognized. In the beginning it is said that this was done in the cases of physicians. Recently, however, there have been very few claims from physicians, either because they are becoming more familiar with the regulations, or because the traffic men recognize their cars and are more lenient with them. Refunds have also been made to strangers, but as said above, complaints and claims for refunds from them are relatively few.

While there are numerous critics of the impounding system, it would seem that the automobilists of Reading on the whole must sanction the idea since it was suggested by the automobile club of that city. Anyone who has visited in Reading realizes that drastic traffic measures are doubtless necessary. The streets are narrow and the grades are steep. There are many places where a visitor from a city of wide streets feels that his end is at hand. This is particularly true of streets where there are car tracks and an automobile passes between the curb and the street car. There appears to be just about a quarter of an inch leeway. Also in the middle of the city a railroad track crosses the main street.

But whether the vehicle pound has the approval of the people as a whole or not the city government feels that it is helping to solve the traffic problem and consequently as far as is now seen it has come to stay.

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, at bed time.

Thousands take them every night just to keep right. Try them. 15c and 30c.

Help for Nervous Women

It has often been said that only a woman can understand what nervous women endure. Most cases of nervousness, sleeplessness, mental depression, headaches, backache, fretting and worrying have their origin in some feminine ailment that will readily yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is a simple remedy made from roots and herbs, which for over forty years has been restoring women of America to health and strength. Merit alone could have stood such a test.

HEALTH TEST REPORT FILED

Remedial Defects Exist in Large Extent Among School Pupils.

Of the 101,372 school children who were examined by doctors and nurses last year in the state, 41,811 were found to have remedial physical defects, according to a report filed by Miss Edna Hardsaw, field advisory nurse of the state department of health. These examinations were made in 24 counties where children are given health protection through school and public health nurses. In the majority of instances these are employed by school systems, but in at least eight of the counties where there are full-time health departments the nurses give county-wide service.

The number examined represents only about one-fourth of the children attending the graded schools in West Virginia, statistics show, which brings out the fact that there are thousands of children suffering with physical defects who do not have the benefits of physical examinations. The majority of defects can easily be corrected, authorities declare, if they are discovered in time. The number of children showing physical defects has decreased materially in those centers where there are regular school nurses to safeguard the children at all times, as seen by a comparison of recent reports from those places with records of past years.

Miss Hardsaw spent the week in Wood and Roane counties, where she held advisory conferences with school and county nurses in regard to their programs for the coming year.

Princeton and Bluefield are the next centers Miss Hardsaw will visit. She will conduct public health nursing classes at the Bluefield sanitarium and the Princeton Memorial hospital, as well as confer with school nurses.

A total of 11,634 visits to homes were made by school and community nurses in 24 counties of the state, according to a recent report to the state department of health from the various counties. These visits are made in connection with the school and community health programs carried out in these centers.

Reginald Denny Hits Fast Clip in Picture at Ceramic

Reginald Denny becomes the "1925 pioneer" of the open road in "California Straight Ahead,' his latest starring Universal-Jewell feature, which comes to the Ceramic theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

In this picture, which first night audiences hailed as one of the star's best, Denny sets forth for a motor trip across the continent in an elaborately constructed trailer. The trailer had been built for his honeymoon, but the honeymoon didn't come off because he showed up late for his wedding and his bride wouldn't marry him because she thought he'd been drinking.

That starts Denny off on a picture packed full of strange situations, mishaps, adventures, thrills and laughs, which makes "California Straight Ahead" one of the funniest light comedies of the season.

Though the motor trip and the attendant adventures may be a bit more stirring than the usual tourist's journey, at least more people would be tempted to set forth in the automobiles if they were sure of going through all the things Denny did.

As in his other recent pictures, Reginald Denny proves that he is a versatile, accomplished comedian, and his performance rivals his characterization of the hypochondriac in "Oh, Doctor!"

He is admirably supported by Gertrude Olmstead as leading woman, who finally agrees to marry the hero because he will not let her do anything else.

The supporting cast includes Tom Wilson, Charles Gerrard, Fred Esmelton, Lucille Ward, John Steppling, Leo Nomas and others.

The direction of Harry Pollard was usually good, and gave the star every opportunity to display his talent as a fun-maker. Byron Morgan and the director collaborated on the story of "California Straight Ahead."

Boost for Large Feet.

LONDON.—Englishmen's feet are getting larger due to their increasing participation in tennis and other sports, according to officials at the annual Shoe and Leather Fair just held here.

A visit to the fair amply confirms this. Few and far between are the small and dainty shoes which have been a feature of previous fairs. They have given way to the large and heavier variety of sports shoes, with thick, solid heels and soles.

India is cutting its bounty to the steel industry.

Stop Taking Cod Liver Oil From A Bottle

Everyone knows and doctors agree that there is nothing so sure and certain to build you up and make you feel strong and vigorous as Cod Liver Oil. But Ugh! how it tastes and therefore too many sick, run down folks refuse to take the very thing they need most because they cannot stand the taste of this wonderful builder of Health.

But now, thanks to a new scientific discovery, all the remarkable tonic properties of the purest Cod Liver Oil and Iron are being made in sugar-coated tablet form and so children and grown-ups may get the full benefit of this great tissue building and blood-making medicine without the nauseous fishy taste of the oil itself.

As there are many cheap imitations on the market go to the drug store that sells Burke's Cod Liver Oil and Iron Tablets, the original and genuine. Don't forget to mention Iron. For sale by Carnahan Drug co., 3 stores, and all good druggists.

EAST LIVERPOOL — AMERICA'S POTTERY CENTER

Stand By The Schools

Five thousand children, cognizant of the importance of a Class A education, today are appealing to the voters of the East Liverpool district to support a proposed three-mill school tax levy which will be submitted at the election on Tuesday, November 3.

Adding his voice to their supplication, School Superintendent Charles S. McVay warns that the educational system is facing a crisis, for rejection of the request for a continuance of the present revenue means a five-month school term. And adoption of such a plan would be a calamity.

Like 15 other districts in Columbiana county, East Liverpool is asking the electorate to stand by the schools in effort to bridge the chasm over the abyss of chaos, for a demoralized situation looms unless the voters heed the danger sign. Without the three-mill levy, the board of education will be deprived of funds to pay bills for operating expenses.

On the other hand, the efficiency of the schools will be maintained without adding to the burdens of the taxpayer, if the tax is voted, for the board of education is asking merely a renewal of the revenue voted five years ago.

The sensible thing to do is to vote "yes" on the school levy.

What Is a Fresh Egg?

A delegate to a recent butter and egg convention declared that an egg may still be a fresh egg after it has been in storage for a year. Not so fresh, he seems to mean, that it wouldn't hatch, with suitable encouragement; yet not so stale, either, that it suggest hatching.

Whereupon a New York newspaper wants to know what the butter and egg delegate considers a "fresh egg." The subject is confusing. For according to the pewspaper authority, a 'fresh egg" is pretty far down the line of freshness. Grades ranking above it, he observes, as illustrated in the trade, are "strictly fresh, then "guaranteed fresh," then "select," then "fancy," and so on until you arrive at the "extra fancy jumbo select."

An ignorant layman—and a laying hen, for that matter—would probably be disposed to start at the top with "fresh eggs" and grade down from that. But maybe laymen and layers don't understand the psychology of the egg trade.

Nevertheless, it looks to an outsider as if here would be another good place for Secretary Hoover to get in some of his simplifying and standardizing work.

Wise Lonliness

Reading of a radio operator who has lived for 18 months on a lonely Caribbean island, a newspaper reader asks, "What in the world ever impels anyone to live like that?" Then another reader rises to remark that he would like very much to live in such isolation for a while, so that he could get some good reading done.

He is a French-American, of considerable education, who longs for time and opportunity to peruse the world's masterpieces, but finds himself hindered by the necessity of fighting his way through city crowds and answering fool questions on the telephone and "taking dictation from a business man whose sole literature is price lists." He says a very good thing.

Great works of literature, he observes, have been written usually in privacy and quietness. And "if absence from even their friends and families was necessary for these geniuses to write their master books, so much the more is solitude necessary for us who would read them intelligently."

Most people nowadays read little among the books upheld by the best judgment of ages. They say they cannot do it, because of this very lack of privacy and quietness, in a noisy, helter-skelter age, with a thousand persons and things always claiming their attention. Perhaps if they would seek solitude now and then, they could find it more easily than they think; and finding it, they might discover reading and other high pleasures of the mind amply compensating for shallow amusements and trivial contacts.

Living Generosity

Possibly because of the publicity often attached to them, it has been popularly supposed that the more important philanthropies are those left in the form of bequests. This belief, according to the secretary of the Chicago Community Trust, is not fair to the living whose generosity, year in and year out, far exceeds in totals the gifts made through wills.

The Chicago Community Trust is a permanent fund of $3,000,000, the proceeds of which go to charity organizations for distribution. Only $70,000 of those millions came through bequests. All the rest was given by living donors, in amounts varying from very small contributions to very large ones.

Even the fine philanthropies arranged for through bequests might well be credited to living donors, since they are planned while the giver is living.

Bequests, large or small, are important and valuable. Philanthropists who contemplate making contributions to the public welfare by that means should not be discouraged from their purpose. But while appreciating their generosity, it is only fair at the same time to appreciate the generosity of the great number of persons who give regularly and consistently, out of current incomes.

A thrifty almanac would bring Christmas in mid-summer. Then everybody could save money by taking a vacation for Christmas.

The Terrible Tempered Mr. Bang — By Fontaine Fox

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—New York has a polite sneer for the nouveau riche. In a way sudden wealth is branded with stigma. And precipitates social banishment. Hundreds with newly gained trappings of millions are as remote from the social core as a Sahara wandered. Manhattan takes ghoulish glee in showing them they cannot make the grade. They hire social secretaries, press agents and scatter fabulous sums entertaining, and reach the social status of a Flatbush horse doctor. Money will not buy their way into the inner circle.

The best they can do is to entertain a few doubtful noblemen out at elbow, who will accept any invitation that includes a free meal, and give in return a brandied cheer. The new rich are the prey of a hundred pickthanks—polite borrowers who give the idea they can swish into the smart set anytime.

Fly-by-night gossip periodicals thrive on their generosity. Headwaiters would live on lean fare without them. And they are the special suckers of those apartment houses known by numbers who bracket announcements in their ads: "We lease only to the socially desirable."

The opera, first nights, smart cafes and supper club ringsides reveal them night after night with their groups of rather sheepish sycophants. There is nothing of the cheap swagger about them. There is more of the humbleness of a ragged urchin grazing into the efflorescent pastry shop window.

Society can afford to be supercilious, for it costs nothing and the grand manner tickles superior vanity. One man is said to have given two young men, distinguished for adenoids and cuff shooting, $30,000 a year positions. They belonged into the swim.

It was his hope they could open the barred gates. So he could swim a little. He got no further than an invitation to attend an after-theater soiree at their bachelor apartment, featured by maudlin chorus girls and hiccupy men about town. They were willing to accept his money, but accepting him socially was another thing, Mawruss.

New York craves good coffee. All over town tiny shops feature this drink. Outside of a sandwich or doughnut they offer nothing else. There are five to one block on Broadway and they appear filled at all hours day and night. There is an actor who averages 10 cups a day and a motion picture critic who is limiting himself to 12 cups a day. Tea has never been a success in Manhattan. Cafes sell almost everything but tea.

George Eichelberger, a lawyer, says the only differences between small towns and cities are cafes, theaters and Turkish baths. The trick I have never mastered in cities is to distinguish bus boys from watters. I am continually asking bus boys who cannot speak English for the check.

The sheer loneliness of cities is rather disheartening. In a hotel cafe nightly at dinner there comes a queenly woman of middle years, rather strikingly gowned and alone. She eats a sandwich or perhaps a salad, and nothing else. Once she lived in the hotel until financial misfortune came. She wound up in a hall bedroom nearby, and clings to the past in this fashion. During the day she is a bookkeeper in a produce house.

Anonymous letters amuse me, but one arrived today that seemed to me a shade harsh. Perhaps I'm prejudiced. It started off: "You dirty crook." There was also an intimation I would be "bumped off if I wrote about a certain topic again. (Notice I'm not naming the topic, ha-ha). It makes me rather warm to my anonymous friend in South America who in a critical mood writes me monthly with the opening salutation, "Fathead."

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

City Pounds for Autos.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 28. — Reading, Pennsylvania, has just completed its first six months' experiment with an automobile pound and the city officials call it a success.

The automobile pound as operated by Reading seems a unique institution. The idea has been tried in several other cities, but usually cars were only impounded because of some serious offense against the law, such as illegally transporting liquor. In Reading, however, parking in the wrong place or parking too long in restricted places, is sufficient cause for having one's car taken to the pound.

In the case of a car which has been parked beyond the time limit the method of procedure on the part of the law is as follows: The traffic officer first marks with chalk the tire of the parked car. Then after the time limit has expired he goes around and if the car bearing the chalk mark is still there he puts in a call to the pound for the towing car to be brought around. The car is then towed to the garage which is used as the pound.

When the owner calls for his car he is fined according to the number of his previous offenses. If it is his first offense he is charged $2. The charge for the second offense is $3, third, $4; fourth, $5, and each subsequent offense $5. If the car may be taken to the pound under its own power no towing charge is made, otherwise 50 cents is added.

A rather amusing story is told of a city employe who one day upon looking out of his office window saw his car about to be towed away. Displaying rare presence of mind he dashed down and gave his key to the officer, thus saving the towing charge. This man had a police badge and thought it might avail him something, but the officer remained adamant. Elizabeth was driven to the pound and he was obliged to bail her out.

This system of impounding cars parked too long or in the wrong place has been the cause of many a shock to visitors. Strangers coming to the city are unfamiliar with the traffic regulations, or perhaps trade upon the fact that they are from out of town. At any rate for one reason or another they often are horrified to find up coming out of some shop that their car is not where they left it. Also here is no sign or indication of what could have happened to it. They hysterically call the police headquarters saying their car has been stolen, whereupon they are informed that their car is no doubt in the pound, and directions are given as to its location.

Not Many Complaints.

The mayor's office, under whose personal direction this institution is operated, says that there are comparatively few complaints of this system from out-of-town drivers. Most of the complaints come from townspeople. Of course this might be explained by the fact that those passing through the town perhaps feel that the refund of the small fine is scarcely worth the bother and time it would take to make the claim. On the other hand the people of the town in many cases are desirous of proving how much pull they have in official circles.

As the secretary to the mayor puts it: "Many people come in here claiming personal friendship with the mayor, or the chief of police, or some other official, and feel that for that reason they should be exempt from these traffic regulations." On the whole, however, there are not many complaints and, as the secretary continues, "as a rule you can easily judge those who do make complaint," giving the impression that most of them come from people who would criticise anything.

While there may not be many official complaints against this system one hears much criticism around the town. Many stories are told of the overzealousness of the traffic officers. One in particular is that of a woman who had parked her car while she went to perform some errand. In the car she left her small daughter and dog. An officer intent upon his duty found that the car had been parked beyond the time limit and without consideration for the child and dog had the car towed to the pound. Of course, the child became hysterical with fright and no doubt felt that her instinctive fear of policemen had been justified. This incident aroused the indignation of many people and did not tend to popularize the idea of the pound.

Called a Hick Idea.

Other people take the view that this system of enforcing traffic regulations is something to be a little ashamed of and are somewhat embarrassed when telling strangers about it. As one man puts it, "It seems sort of a 'hick' idea."

Still others complain that it is purely a political scheme whereby some one is given a good job. The report of the pound for the first six months of operation would appear to refute this charge, however. The pound is entirely self-supporting. The fines more than cover the salary of the man in charge, and the garage which is used as the pound receives only the towing charges.

The effectiveness of the idea is shown by the fact that the number of cars impounded decrease monthly according to official records. This brings to the mind of the outsider the question of just how long the pound will be self-supporting if it is so effective that the number of impounded cars continue to decrease.

There have been some instances where claims for refunds of the fines have been recognized. In the beginning it is said that this was done in the cases of physicians. Recently, however, there have been very few claims from physicians, either because they are becoming more familiar with the regulations, or because the traffic men recognize their cars and are more lenient with them. Refunds have also been made to strangers, but as said above, complaints and claims for refunds from them are relatively few.

While there are numerous critics of the impounding system, it would seem that the automobilists of Reading on the whole must sanction the idea since it was suggested by the automobile club of that city. Anyone who has visited in Reading realizes that drastic traffic measures are doubtless necessary. The streets are narrow and the grades are steep. There are many places where a visitor from a city of wide streets feels that his end is at hand. This is particularly true of streets where there are car tracks and an automobile passes between the curb and the street car. There appears to be just about a quarter of an inch leeway. Also in the middle of the city a railroad track crosses the main street.

But whether the vehicle pound has the approval of the people as a whole or not the city government feels that it is helping to solve the traffic problem and consequently as far as is now seen it has come to stay.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, at bed time.

Thousands take them every night just to keep right. Try them. 15c and 30c.

Help for Nervous Women

It has often been said that only a woman can understand what nervous women endure. Most cases of nervousness, sleeplessness, mental depression, headaches, backache, fretting and worrying have their origin in some feminine ailment that will readily yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is a simple remedy made from roots and herbs, which for over forty years has been restoring women of America to health and strength. Merit alone could have stood such a test.

BUNDLE WEEK IS DESIGNATED

Salvation Army Makes Appeal for Worn Clothing.

An appeal for worn clothing of all kinds to meet the demands for relief during the winter, was made today by Major Joseph Hughes of the Salvation Army.

The first week of November has been designated as "Bundle Week." People will be asked to collect old garments, shoes, underwear, hats, stockings and other clothing and send them to the Salvation Army Citadel, 111 West Third street. If the bundle cannot be delivered to the citadel, it will be collected by Major Hughes.

Many requests for clothing have been received by the Salvation Army.

Three Gunmen Get $800 and Narcotics In Cleveland Job

CLEVELAND, Oct. 28.—Cash totaling $800 and narcotics valued at $2,000 were the loot today of three gunmen, who held up Barney Drob'n, owner of a drug store at 468 E. 747th street, and three other persons and then made their getaway in a touring car. One of the men in the store gave chase to the trio, but after following them for a mile, they eluded him.

A postal sub-station located in the drug store was also looted. Seven registered letters were rifled. The value of their contents has not been established.

Three-Mill Tax Levy

one-half or six months of the year instead of nine months. There is no other source to obtain funds, as we can no longer receive state aid. What father or mother would prefer to have their children playing on the streets six months of the year as to pay $3 on every $1,000 taxable property in order that they might be educated for future leaders?

"Therefore, we are urging the people of East Liverpool to think seriously about this matter, assuring them that their taxes will not be increased, and promising them for their co-operation the thing which they most desire—young folks well educated and capable of assuming responsibility and leadership among their fellow-citizens."

saying as he holds out his hand, "Give, lest Allah burn your house while you live and burn your soul in hell when you die," offers a strong argument and hard to ignore.

That way of collecting is an old story here in America. Many a time in Chicago, hold-up men having searched their victim and found less than they hoped to find, have "beaten him up for being a piker." Which means for not carrying enough money with him.

Cautious people in some of our best cities, if obliged to go into doubtful neighborhoods, carry a fair supply of money, that the hold-up man may not be disappointed. Our hold-up men are as practical and exacting as the Turkish beggar who carried an ax in his baggy trousers, and pulled it out when a person "(charitably inclined)" gave him only 20 paras. That sounds like real money, but it takes 60 Turkish paras to make one cent.

Then consider our really big operators—for instance, the coal trust.

It has a row with its workmen, and says to the consumer, "Coal is getting scarce; please pay me $20 a ton, instead of $14."

There is no sharp ax, no threat to burn anybody in hell. But the implied threat is "Pay what I ask for the coal, or go and freeze."

It is so with street car concerns when they say, "Please give me eight cents instead of five." The other part of the speech is, "If not, walk."

Those Turkish beggars do their best, but they have much to learn from really accomplished "go-getters" in the United States of America.

Appeal is Made For Return of $400 And Traveling Bag

Mrs. Hughes, wife of Field Major Joseph Hughes of the Salvation Army, made another appeal today for the return of the traveling bag, belonging to her niece, Miss Ethel Smith, of Riverview, Cal., stolen from the Pennsylvania railroad station in Salem, October 10.

The bag contained about $400 in money, valuable papers and trinkets, which Miss Smith inherited from her mother who died about a month ago. The money was to be used in the care of the girl who has come to East Liverpool to make her home with Mr. and Mrs. Hughes.

A liberal reward will be given for information leading to the recovery of the bag and its contents.

port, Mitchell said, Summerall "knew nothing of aviation."

Summerall immediately arose, admitted he had criticized Mitchell and asked to be excused from the court.

A few minutes later, Mitchell ran his string of tactical victories to three by peremptorily challenging the availability of Brig. Gen. Fred W. Sladen, commandant at West Point, to sit, and Sladen was dismissed without further ado.

The retirement of Gen. Summerall made Maj. Gen. Robert L. Howze the presiding officer of the court.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Because he was challenged and excused as president of the court-martial trying Col. "Billy" Mitchell, Brig. General Charles P. Summerall today returned to the war department and openly declared "war" on the stormy petrel of the army air service.

"From no on. Mitchell and I are enemies," said Summerall. "It cannot be the case after what he did at the court martial."

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Stocks of the motor and mercantile companies were the leaders in a Forward movement of prices in the early trading today, in a market which also showed the effects of profit taking in the industrial, oil and some of the railroad stocks. A number of the prominent motor shares opened moderately higher on sales of large blocks of stocks, resulting from an over-night accumulation of buying orders. Further gains were made in the first period by American Woolen, United Drug, United Cigar Stores, U. S. Distributing and other stocks in that group, moved up to higher levels.

United States Steel's favorable third quarterly report, issued after the close of Tuesday's session, proved a poor stimulant for the stock of the "big corporation" but its effect was not lost on the balance of the market, which exhibited a buoyant tone after profit taking had been completed.

DAMAGE SUIT FILED IN COURT

Actions Result of Auto Accident Late Last Month.

Damage actions totaling $15,350 have been filed in common pleas court against Edward G. Votaw, of Salem, by Jennie Sage, her daughter, Teresa Sage, aged 15, but through her next friend, and Joe Benedict, each action resulting from an automobile wreck on the Darlington road in Beaver county, Pa., on September 25.

The petition relates that Votaw, driving a car, came from an ash road onto the concrete highway and crashed into the machine owned by Mrs. Sage, turning the car over because of the impact.

Petitions in all three cases were filed by Attorney Homer H. Hickling, of Salem. The Sage car was being driven in a westerly course along the Darlington road when the wreck occurred.

In two of the cases $5,000 damages each is sought, but in that filed by Mrs. Sage $5,000 damages is also sought, and also $350 damages for the wrecked car, the claims in this action totaling $5,350.

Verdicts for $1,500 and $600, respectively, have been returned by a jury in the cases of Mary Anderson against Paul Burman and Ella Farner against the same defendant, both actions being tried as one in common pleas court No. 2, with Judge W. D. Jones, of Miami county, presiding.

In this case, a truck owned by Burman collided with a machine in which the two women, mother and daughter, were riding, while both vehicles were traveling on the Rock Springs road, Chester, W. Va.

In the same machine was the husband of Mrs. Anderson and a child. The wreck occurred November 14, 1922. Mrs. Anderson was taken to the East Liverpool City hospital, and after her recovery she entered an action against Burman for $10,000 damages. In this case the jury returned a verdict in favor of the plaintiff for $600.

At the same time the jury gave Mrs. Ella Farner a verdict for $1,500. In this petition it was related that in addition to $10,000 being sought as damages, the hospital bill of the plaintiff amounted to $66.50; physicians' charges, $104.50; ambulance, $15.

As Judge Jones was charging the jury he remarked that while his stay in Columbiana county was nearing its end, he wanted to take the occasion to compliment attorneys in the case before the court for the manner in which it was tried. He remarked about the absence of bitterness and wrangling among counsel that too often characterizes court trials.

Judge Jones has been assisting Judge James G. Moore for three weeks and his commission for Columbiana county service will expire Saturday next.

Three-Mill Tax Levy

one-half or six months of the year instead of nine months. There is no other source to obtain funds, as we can no longer receive state aid. What father or mother would prefer to have their children playing on the streets six months of the year as to pay $3 on every $1,000 taxable property in order that they might be educated for future leaders?

"Therefore, we are urging the people of East Liverpool to think seriously about this matter, assuring them that their taxes will not be increased, and promising them for their co-operation the thing which they most desire—young folks well educated and capable of assuming responsibility and leadership among their fellow-citizens."

saying as he holds out his hand, "Give, lest Allah burn your house while you live and burn your soul in hell when you die," offers a strong argument and hard to ignore.

That way of collecting is an old story here in America. Many a time in Chicago, hold-up men having searched their victim and found less than they hoped to find, have "beaten him up for being a piker." Which means for not carrying enough money with him.

Cautious people in some of our best cities, if obliged to go into doubtful neighborhoods, carry a fair supply of money, that the hold-up man may not be disappointed. Our hold-up men are as practical and exacting as the Turkish beggar who carried an ax in his baggy trousers, and pulled it out when a person "(charitably inclined)" gave him only 20 paras. That sounds like real money, but it takes 60 Turkish paras to make one cent.

Then consider our really big operators—for instance, the coal trust.

It has a row with its workmen, and says to the consumer, "Coal is getting scarce; please pay me $20 a ton, instead of $14."

There is no sharp ax, no threat to burn anybody in hell. But the implied threat is "Pay what I ask for the coal, or go and freeze."

It is so with street car concerns when they say, "Please give me eight cents instead of five." The other part of the speech is, "If not, walk."

Those Turkish beggars do their best, but they have much to learn from really accomplished "go-getters" in the United States of America.

Appeal is Made For Return of $400 And Traveling Bag

A liberal reward will be given for information leading to the recovery of the bag and its contents.

Summerall immediately arose, admitted he had criticized Mitchell and asked to be excused from the court.

A few minutes later, Mitchell ran his string of tactical victories to three by peremptorily challenging the availability of Brig. Gen. Fred W. Sladen, commandant at West Point, to sit, and Sladen was dismissed without further ado.

The retirement of Gen. Summerall made Maj. Gen. Robert L. Howze the presiding officer of the court.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Because he was challenged and excused as president of the court-martial trying Col. "Billy" Mitchell, Brig. General Charles P. Summerall today returned to the war department and openly declared "war" on the stormy petrel of the army air service.

"From no on. Mitchell and I are enemies," said Summerall. "It cannot be the same after what he did at the court martial."

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Stocks of the motor and mercantile companies were the leaders in a Forward movement of prices in the early trading today, in a market which also showed the effects of profit taking in the industrial, oil and some of the railroad stocks. A number of the prominent motor shares opened moderately higher on sales of large blocks of stocks, resulting from an over-night accumulation of buying orders. Further gains were made in the first period by American Woolen, United Drug, United Cigar Stores, U. S. Distributing and other stocks in that group, moved up to higher levels.

United States Steel's favorable third quarterly report, issued after the close of Tuesday's session, proved a poor stimulant for the stock of the "big corporation" but its effect was not lost on the balance of the market, which exhibited a buoyant tone after profit taking had been completed.

A Salonika dispatch states that the Bulgarians attacked the Greeks who were evacuating. An immediate halt was called to the evacuation.

Thus dispatches from both countries seem to confirm that fighting is again in progress, with both sides placing responsibility on the other.

STREAM POLLUTION BEING CHECKED

Gratifying progress in long-continued efforts to end the pollution of West Virginia streams is reported by L. G. Smith, chief clerk of the state game and fish commission.

Greenbrier river, perhaps intended by nature for one grand, long fish pond, has at last been freed of the tannery pollution, he says. Filtration systems installed by the Union Tannery company at Marlinton and by the tannery at Durbin, also in Pocahontas county, have solved the problem so far as the noble and picturesque Greenbriar is concerned, Mr. Smith asserts. Similar progress has been made elsewhere, he says.

At Marlinton the same kind of filtration that proved so successful in disposing of the pollution from the tannery at Buckhannon has been installed. Sometimes next month a demonstration of the Marlinton plant will be given, and member of the game and fish commission and others interested in water purification methods or in the propagation of fish in public stream are expected to attend. At an early date there will be a demonstration of a filtration system in use at the Consolidated Coal company's mines on Stuarts Run in Harrison county.

Billy Maine Offers New Musical Comedy At Strand Theatre

Billy Maine's Overseas Revue has caught the fancy of East Liverpool's theatregoers at the Strand this week where it has been seen by capacity houses. He has staged a piece well out of the beaten path of the casual revue in that the locale of the story concerns boys from across the pond.

Today marks the close of the current bill, "Somewhere in France," yet the talented revue will stay at the Strand theatre the rest of the week. Billy Maine brings in a new show, starting Thursday, called "Goldbrick's Return."

"Goldbrick's Return" is just as clean, just as funny in presentation as was "Somewhere in France" and should grip the fancy of the clientele just as closely. Maine is a comedian of the character type and his work as "Private Goldbrick" is of such a nature as to reveal him a funmaker of the first rank. "Goldbrick's Return" is a sequel play to "Somewhere in France" and the lines and situations are every whit as effective. Maine will score in every show in the star part. There is both a male and a female chorus with good lookers specially in the latter section with voices able to sing the lilting musical score. The production, "Goldbrick's Return," contains everything necessary to beguile the patron of a laugh. Billy is sure some boob and winner of the awkward squad with a real make-up and with a brew of comedy essence tha tis sure to drive away any fit of blues. In this bill he has another great opportunity to display his jovial characterizations in which parts he so aptly fits.

The Harmony Hounds again sing with gusto in an endeavor to outdo their former efforts and again Billy steps in the spotlight of popular favor with his interpretation of How Do You Do.

As any football squad will tell you, this is weather with a kick in it.—Cincinnati Times Star.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

Fly "Swatting Day" Big Success in Tokio; Many Exterminated

TOKIO — Flies having become a great nuisance in Tokio, the city officials announced a "fly extermination day," with prizes for the largest number killed.

The citizens nobly responded to the officials' invitation, and at the close of the "swatting" it was announced that 22,900,231 flies had been done to death. The dead flies were all counted by the municipal office staffs, and it is announced that as a result of the success of the effort another fly extermination day will shortly be held.

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Easily and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found that they can save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using the well-known old recipe for making cough syrup at home. It is simple and cheap but it has no equal for prompt results. It takes right hold of a cough and gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, pour it into a pint bottle and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, hoarseness or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its healing effect on the membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

DAMAGE SUIT FILED IN COURT

Actions Result of Auto Accident Late Last Month.

Damage actions totaling $15,350 have been filed in common pleas court against Edward G. Votaw, of Salem, by Jennie Sage, her daughter, Teresa Sage, aged 15, but through her next friend, and Joe Benedict, each action resulting from an automobile wreck on the Darlington road in Beaver county, Pa., on September 25.

The petition relates that Votaw, driving a car, came from an ash road onto the concrete highway and crashed into the machine owned by Mrs. Sage, turning the car over because of the impact.

Petitions in all three cases were filed by Attorney Homer H. Hickling, of Salem. The Sage car was being driven in a westerly course along the Darlington road when the wreck occurred.

In two of the cases $5,000 damages each is sought, but in that filed by Mrs. Sage $5,000 damages is also sought, and also $350 damages for the wrecked car, the claims in this action totaling $5,350.

Verdicts for $1,500 and $600, respectively, have been returned by a jury in the cases of Mary Anderson against Paul Burman and Ella Farner against the same defendant, both actions being tried as one in common pleas court No. 2, with Judge W. D. Jones, of Miami county, presiding.

In this case, a truck owned by Burman collided with a machine in which the two women, mother and daughter, were riding, while both vehicles were traveling on the Rock Springs road, Chester, W. Va.

In the same machine was the husband of Mrs. Anderson and a child. The wreck occurred November 14, 1922. Mrs. Anderson was taken to the East Liverpool City hospital, and after her recovery she entered an action against Burman for $10,000 damages. In this case the jury returned a verdict in favor of the plaintiff for $600.

At the same time the jury gave Mrs. Ella Farner a verdict for $1,500. In this petition it was related that in addition to $10,000 being sought as damages, the hospital bill of the plaintiff amounted to $66.50; physicians' charges, $104.50; ambulance, $15.

As Judge Jones was charging the jury he remarked that while his stay in Columbiana county was nearing its end, he wanted to take the occasion to compliment attorneys in the case before the court for the manner in which it was tried. He remarked about the absence of bitterness and wrangling among counsel that too often characterizes court trials.

Judge Jones has been assisting Judge James G. Moore for three weeks and his commission for Columbiana county service will expire Saturday next.

The board of county commissioners has filed its answer in common pleas court in the case filed against it by John F. Gilson, wherein Gilson claims $2,000 damages from the county as a result of the construction of a bridge near his farm, causing water to overflow his lands.

In answering the petition, the commissioners, through Prosecuting Attorney Robert M. Brookes, deny all allegations set up in the pleadings of the plaintiff.

Case Settled.

SURRENDER

The Story Of A Girl Who Dared

By Dear Dot Morris

CHAPTER 80.

On an Indian Summer afternoon, Amoura was curled up on a chaise-lounge listening to the gossip expelled in quick, excited breaths by Lucia Berryman. This chaise lounge was faced with satin of her favorite hue, pale lavender, and it was arranged in the "sitting room" of her suite so that always in the afternoon it was bathed in the the sunlight floating across the valley from the bright hills beyond. She liked to repose in this sun because it gave her bobbed hair a dark golden brilliance that she wished she could make permanent. Her mind was upon this, and not upon what Lucia Berryman was saying. At last however, she was aroused by a question:

"Amoura, dear, why weren't you at Mary Holloway's bridge party yesterday afternoon? She expected you."

"Oh, I didn't feel like going. And Mary always has such a dull crowd."

"Yes." She smiled at Amoura in such a way that the latter had a sense of being uncomfortable.

"Who won the prizes?"

"I won the grand prize, a perfectly lovely beaten silver vanity and cigaret case, and the consolation prize went, I think, to Marcia Thompson. Poor Marcia! She just can't learn to count the cards."

"I can't either," Amoura laughed. "But it's a silly game."

"You didn't use to think so," Lucia observed, offended. "Incidentally, if you had been at the party and used your ears sharply, you might have heard something interesting." She showed her teeth in a smile.

"Another scandal, I suppose," Amoura responded, indifferently, picking at a fingernail with another.

"Well, THAT'S for YOU to say", Lucia laughed. "You know how everybody talks over the bridge table. Well, I heard someone at an adjoining table say that it looked like Vera Vaine wasen't going to have a chance to marry Philip Weinrich and his millions. They all laughed, and another of them said that Vera Vaine should have paid the kidnapers to hold Amoura Ainsley a little longer.

Amoura veiled her deep annoyane. "Oh, so that's what they're saying. Well, women have to have something to talk about. A cat has nine lives—and some women have nine cats' lives."

"While you were away Philip never did get this high on Indian Hill. Now—" Lucia smiled significantly.

"You always were deeply discerning, Lucia," Amoura smiled.

Her voice was uncertain as to how to take this remark, but she returned the beam. Soon she made her excuses and departed. Amoura, adhering to a resolution she had made two days before, after the scene with Philip, did not allow herself to think about him.

At the dinner table that evening J. Reginald Ainsley paused over his Cafe Bavaroise to say:

"When will you ladies be ready to go to South America? Now's the time to think of starting. It's summer there when it's winter here, you know."

"What do you think, dear?" Mrs. Reginald asked, addressing her daughter.

Amoura hesitated. She knew that her mother wanted to go. "Why, can't you and Dad make the trip by yourselves? I'm afraid I'd be the death of the party."

"Certainly not," her mother said. "Besides, Amoura added, "there's something I want to do this winter —in Westland." For the first time she mentioned to them her plans for the community institute in the slum district. She went into them with greater detail than in confiding them to Philip Weinrich. "What do you think?"

Mrs. J. Reginald looked askance at her husband.

"I think it's out of the question," he said. "There are too many charitable organizations now. All they succeed in doing is making these people more shiftless than ever."

"Yest, but this won't be charity! I want to teach them to help themselves."

"You'll only succeed in getting them discontented."

"That's the point," Amoura put in. "Get them discontented with their lot, and they'll want to better themselves."

"Their idea of bettering themselves is less work for more money."

No, none of my money for your scheme."

Amoura's upper lip stiffened, and her determination arose.

"Well, I AM going to open the institute." She decided to appeal to Grandma Ainsley for aid.

Everybody Worked But Father

"Father's stomach trouble seemed to be getting worse all the time and finally he had to quit work altogether. Two brothers and myself gave up school and went to work to support the family. Father had lost sixty pounds in weight and was yellow as saffron and no medicine helped him. Telling a friend about it six months ago, she advised taking Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. I got a bottle and it helped father at once. He was able to go back to work a month later, has regained his weight and strength and eats like a wood chopper." Quality now talks Price

Motor car buyers are coming to Chandler.

For Chandler has done the unusual. Chandler has further advanced the standards and ideals of modern body-building, and has simultaneously reduced prices.

This new price move follows closely upon the news of the record-breaking performance of Chandler's marvelous Pikes Peak Motor on the mountain after which it is named—the world's highest automobile climb.

In the annual Labor Day automobile race up the dizzy heights of Pikes Peak, 14,109 feet above the sea, Chandler won the event in the record time of 17 minutes, 48 2/5 seconds. The best previous record was 18 minutes, 15 seconds.

Winner of so many performance records, Chandler is now winning new hosts of friends with a phenomenal closed car.

It is the new Chandler Twentieth Century Sedan—a better, richer, 4-door Sedan priced less than a 2-door coach—a reduction of $505.

It is every inch and every pound an automobile of quality—a finer Chandler in all ways—beautified and enriched in body, refined and perfected in chassis—and marvelously powered by Chandler's great Pikes Peak Motor.

You'll like the new Chandler the moment you set eyes on it. Everybody does.

You'll like it still more when you recline in its cushions. Everybody does.

And when you drive it ten miles you'll want to drive it forever. Everybody does!

The same things hold true with all other Chandler models. With them all, quality now talks price. See them.

STREAM POLLUTION BEING CHECKED

Gratifying progress in long-continued efforts to end the pollution of West Virginia streams is reported by L. G. Smith, chief clerk of the state game and fish commission.

Greenbrier river, perhaps intended by nature for one grand, long fish pond, has at last been freed of the tannery pollution, he says. Filtration systems installed by the Union Tannery company at Marlinton and by the tannery at Durbin, also in Pocahontas county, have solved the problem so far as the noble and picturesque Greenbriar is concerned, Mr. Smith asserts. Similar progress has been made elsewhere, he says.

At Marlinton the same kind of filtration that proved so successful in disposing of the pollution from the tannery at Buckhannon has been installed. Sometimes next month a demonstration of the Marlinton plant will be given, and member of the game and fish commission and others interested in water purification methods or in the propagation of fish in public stream are expected to attend. At an early date there will be a demonstration of a filtration system in use at the Consolidated Coal company's mines on Stuarts Run in Harrison county.

Billy Maine Offers New Musical Comedy At Strand Theatre

Billy Maine's Overseas Revue has caught the fancy of East Liverpool's theatregoers at the Strand this week where it has been seen by capacity houses. He has staged a piece well out of the beaten path of the casual revue in that the locale of the story concerns boys from across the pond.

Today marks the close of the current bill, "Somewhere in France," yet the talented revue will stay at the Strand theatre the rest of the week. Billy Maine brings in a new show, starting Thursday, called "Goldbrick's Return."

"Goldbrick's Return" is just as clean, just as funny in presentation as was "Somewhere in France" and should grip the fancy of the clientele just as closely. Maine is a comedian of the character type and his work as "Private Goldbrick" is of such a nature as to reveal him a funmaker of the first rank. "Goldbrick's Return" is a sequel play to "Somewhere in France" and the lines and situations are every whit as effective. Maine will score in every show in the star part. There is both a male and a female chorus with good lookers specially in the latter section with voices able to sing the lilting musical score. The production, "Goldbrick's Return," contains everything necessary to beguile the patron of a laugh. Billy is sure some boob and winner of the awkward squad with a real make-up and with a brew of comedy essence tha tis sure to drive away any fit of blues. In this bill he has another great opportunity to display his jovial characterizations in which parts he so aptly fits.

The Harmony Hounds again sing with gusto in an endeavor to outdo their former efforts and again Billy steps in the spotlight of popular favor with his interpretation of How Do You Do.

As any football squad will tell you, this is weather with a kick in it.—Cincinnati Times Star.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

Fly "Swatting Day" Big Success in Tokio; Many Exterminated

TOKIO — Flies having become a great nuisance in Tokio, the city officials announced a "fly extermination day," with prizes for the largest number killed.

The citizens nobly responded to the officials' invitation, and at the close of the "swatting" it was announced that 22,900,231 flies had been done to death. The dead flies were all counted by the municipal office staffs, and it is announced that as a result of the success of the effort another fly extermination day will shortly be held.

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Easily and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found that they can save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using the well-known old recipe for making cough syrup at home. It is simple and cheap but it has no equal for prompt results. It takes right hold of a cough and gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, pour it into a pint bottle and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, hoarseness or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its healing effect on the membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

CHAPTER 80.

On an Indian Summer afternoon, Amoura was curled up on a chaise-lounge listening to the gossip expelled in quick, excited breaths by Lucia Berryman. This chaise lounge was faced with satin of her favorite hue, pale lavender, and it was arranged in the "sitting room" of her suite so that always in the afternoon it was bathed in the the sunlight floating across the valley from the bright hills beyond. She liked to repose in this sun because it gave her bobbed hair a dark golden brilliance that she wished she could make permanent. Her mind was upon this, and not upon what Lucia Berryman was saying. At last however, she was aroused by a question:

"Amoura dear, why weren't you at Mary Holloway's bridge party yesterday afternoon? She expected you."

"Oh, I didn't feel like going. And Mary always has such a dull crowd."

"Yes." She smiled at Amoura in such a way that the latter had a sense of being uncomfortable.

"Who won the prizes?"

"I won the grand prize, a perfectly lovely beaten silver vanity and cigaret case, and the consolation prize went, I think, to Marcia Thompson. Poor Marcia! She just can't learn to count the cards."

"I can't either," Amoura laughed. "But it's a silly game."

"You didn't use to think so," Lucia observed, offended. "Incidentally, if you had been at the party and used your ears sharply, you might have heard something interesting." She showed her teeth in a smile.

"Another scandal, I suppose," Amoura responded, indifferently, picking at a fingernail with another.

"Well, THAT'S for YOU to say", Lucia laughed. "You know how everybody talks over the bridge table. Well, I heard someone at an adjoining table say that it looked like Vera Vaine wasn't going to have a chance to marry Philip Weinrich and his millions. They all laughed, and another of them said that Vera Vaine should have paid the kidnapers to hold Amoura Ainsley a little longer.

Amoura veiled her deep annoyance. "Oh, so that's what they're saying. Well, women have to have something to talk about. A cat has nine lives—and some women have nine cats' lives."

"While you were away Philip never did get this high on Indian Hill. Now—" Lucia smiled significantly.

"You always were deeply discerning, Lucia," Amoura smiled.

Her voice was uncertain as to how to take this remark, but she returned the beam. Soon she made her excuses and departed. Amoura, adhering to a resolution she had made two days before, after the scene with Philip, did not allow herself to think about him.

At the dinner table that evening J. Reginald Ainsley paused over his Cafe Bavaroise to say:

"When will you ladies be ready to go to South America? Now's the time to think of starting. It's summer there when it's winter here, you know."

"What do you think, dear?" Mrs. Reginald asked, addressing her daughter.

Amoura hesitated. She knew that her mother wanted to go. "Why, can't you and Dad make the trip by yourselves? I'm afraid I'd be the death of the party."

"Certainly not," her mother said. "Besides, Amoura added, "there's something I want to do this winter—in Westland." For the first time she mentioned to them her plans for the community institute in the slum district. She went into them with greater detail than in confiding them to Philip Weinrich. "What do you think?"

Mrs. J. Reginald looked askance at her husband.

"I think it's out of the question," he said. "There are too many charitable organizations now. All they succeed in doing is making these people more shiftless than ever."

"Yest, but this won't be charity! I want to teach them to help themselves."

"You'll only succeed in getting them discontented."

"That's the point," Amoura put in. "Get them discontented with their lot, and they'll want to better themselves."

"Their idea of bettering themselves is less work for more money."

No, none of my money for your scheme."

Amoura's upper lip stiffened, and her determination arose.

"Well, I AM going to open the institute." She decided to appeal to Grandma Ainsley for aid.

CHAPTER 80.

On an Indian Summer afternoon, Amoura was curled up on a chaise-lounge listening to the gossip expelled in quick, excited breaths by Lucia Berryman. This chaise lounge was faced with satin of her favorite hue, pale lavender, and it was arranged in the "sitting room" of her suite so that always in the afternoon it was bathed in the the sunlight floating across the valley from the bright hills beyond. She liked to repose in this sun because it gave her bobbed hair a dark golden brilliance that she wished she could make permanent. Her mind was upon this, and not upon what Lucia Berryman was saying. At last however, she was aroused by a question:

"Amoura, dear, why weren't you at Mary Holloway's bridge party yesterday afternoon? She expected you."

"Oh, I didn't feel like going. And Mary always has such a dull crowd."

"Yes." She smiled at Amoura in such a way that the latter had a sense of being uncomfortable.

"Who won the prizes?"

"I won the grand prize, a perfectly lovely beaten silver vanity and cigaret case, and the consolation prize went, I think, to Marcia Thompson. Poor Marcia! She just can't learn to count the cards."

"I can't either," Amoura laughed. "But it's a silly game."

"You didn't use to think so," Lucia observed, offended. "Incidentally, if you had been at the party and used your ears sharply, you might have heard something interesting." She showed her teeth in a smile.

"Another scandal, I suppose," Amoura responded, indifferently, picking at a fingernail with another.

"Well, THAT'S for YOU to say" Lucia laughed. "You know how everybody talks over the bridge table. Well, I heard someone at an adjoining table say that it looked like Vera Vaine wasn't going to have a chance to marry Philip Weinrich and his millions. They all laughed, and another of them said that Vera Vaine should have paid the kidnapers to hold Amoura Ainsley a little longer.

Amoura veiled her deep annoyance. "Oh, so that's what they're saying. Well, women have to have something to talk about. A cat has nine lives—and some women have nine cats' lives."

"While you were away Philip never did get this high on Indian Hill. Now—." Lucia smiled significantly.

"You always were deeply discerning, Lucia," Amoura smiled.

Her voice was uncertain as to how to take this remark, but she returned the beam. Soon she made her excuses and departed. Amoura, adhering to a resolution she had made two days before, after the scene with Philip, did not allow herself to think about him.

At the dinner table that evening J. Reginald Ainsley paused over his Cafe Bavaroise to say:

"When will you ladies be ready to go to South America? Now's the time to think of starting. It's summer there when it's winter here, you know."

"What do you think, dear?" Mrs. Reginald asked, addressing her daughter.

Amoura hesitated. She knew that her mother wanted to go. "Why, can't you and Dad make the trip by yourselves? I'm afraid I'd be the death of the party."

"Certainly not," her mother said. "Besides, Amoura added, "there's something I want to do this winter —in Westland." For the first time she mentioned to them her plans for the community institute in the slum district. She went into them with greater detail than in confiding them to Philip Weinrich. "What do you think?"

Mrs. J. Reginald looked askance at her husband.

"I think it's out of the question," he said. "There are too many charitable organizations now. All they succeed in doing is making these people more shiftless than ever."

"Yest, but this won't be charity! I want to teach them to help themselves."

"You'll only succeed in getting them discontented."

"That's the point," Amoura put in. "Get them discontented with their lot, and they'll want to better themselves."

"Their idea of bettering themselves is less work for more money."

No, none of my money for your scheme."

Amoura's upper lip stiffened, and her determination arose.

"Well, I AM going to open the institute." She decided to appeal to Grandma Ainsley for aid.

Everybody Worked But Father

"Father's stomach trouble seemed to be getting worse all the time and finally he had to quit work altogether. Two brothers and myself gave up school and went to work to support the family. Father had lost sixty pounds in weight and was yellow as saffron and no medicine helped him. Telling a friend about it six months ago, she advised taking Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. I got a bottle and it helped father at once. He was able to go back to work a month later, has regained his weight and strength and eats like a wood chopper." MARION, O.—The honor of being the brightest student of Harding high school here goes to Marvin Rife, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Rife.

This is substantiated by his school record, according to Miss Mattie Christian, principal of the Mart street school, where Marvin was enrolled in the elementary grades.

"Marvin never received a grade below A," Miss Christian said. "The majority of his grades have been A plus. The boy is a prodigy."

Marvin, who was born August 12, 1911, is taking a scientific course at Harding high school. He has an ambition to become a famous physician or surgeon.

STREAM POLLUTION BEING CHECKED

Gratifying progress in long-continued efforts to end the pollution of West Virginia streams is reported by L. G. Smith, chief clerk of the state game and fish commission.

Greenbrier river, perhaps intended by nature for one grand, long fish pond, has at last been freed of the tannery pollution, he says. Filtration systems installed by the Union Tannery company at Marlinton and by the tannery at Durbin, also in Pocahontas county, have solved the problem so far as the noble and picturesque Greenbriar is concerned, Mr. Smith asserts. Similar progress has been made elsewhere, he says.

At Marlinton the same kind of filtration that proved so successful in disposing of the pollution from the tannery at Buckhannon has been installed. Sometimes next month a demonstration of the Marlinton plant will be given, and member of the game and fish commission and others interested in water purification methods or in the propagation of fish in public stream are expected to attend. At an early date there will be a demonstration of a filtration system in use at the Consolidated Coal company's mines on Stuarts Run in Harrison county.

Billy Maine Offers New Musical Comedy At Strand Theatre

Billy Maine's Overseas Revue has caught the fancy of East Liverpool's theatregoers at the Strand this week where it has been seen by capacity houses. He has staged a piece well out of the beaten path of the casual revue in that the locale of the story concerns boys from across the pond.

Today marks the close of the current bill, "Somewhere in France," yet the talented revue will stay at the Strand theatre the rest of the week. Billy Maine brings in a new show, starting Thursday, called "Goldbrick's Return."

"Goldbrick's Return" is just as clean, just as funny in presentation as was "Somewhere in France" and should grip the fancy of the clientele just as closely. Maine is a comedian of the character type and his work as "Private Goldbrick" is of such a nature as to reveal him a funmaker of the first rank. "Goldbrick's Return" is a sequel play to "Somewhere in France" and the lines and situations are every whit as effective. Maine will score in every show in the star part. There is both a male and a female chorus with good lookers specially in the latter section with voices able to sing the lilting musical score. The production, "Goldbrick's Return," contains everything necessary to beguile the patron of a laugh. Billy is sure some boob and winner of the awkward squad with a real make-up and with a brew of comedy essence tha tis sure to drive away any fit of blues. In this bill he has another great opportunity to display his jovial characterizations in which parts he so aptly fits.

The Harmony Hounds again sing with gusto in an endeavor to outdo their former efforts and again Billy steps in the spotlight of popular favor with his interpretation of How Do You Do.

As any football squad will tell you, this is weather with a kick in it.—Cincinnati Times Star.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

Fly "Swatting Day" Big Success in Tokio; Many Exterminated

TOKIO — Flies having become a great nuisance in Tokio, the city officials announced a "fly extermination day," with prizes for the largest number killed.

The citizens nobly responded to the officials' invitation, and at the close of the "swatting" it was announced that 22,960,231 flies had been done to death. The dead flies were all counted by the municipal office staffs, and it is announced that as a result of the success of the effort another fly extermination day will shortly be held.

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Easily and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found that they can save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using the well-known old recipe for making cough syrup at home. It is simple and cheap but it has no equal for prompt results. It takes right hold of a cough and gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, pour it into a pint bottle and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, hoarseness or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its healing effect on the membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

CAN PENN END DEFENSE STOP GRANGE'S GAINS?

Will "Iceman" be Able to Thwart "Tearing in" Flankmen Who Have Been Drilled to Take Initiative? Illinois Star Himself Will Give to Philadelphia Campus Its Answer on Saturday Afternoon.

This is the eighth of a series of articles by Davis J. Walsh On some of the leading football teams of the east and middle west. Others will follow:

BY DAVIS WALSH

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. Oct. 28.—Can the Pennsylvania system of end defense, with its wings going directly to the ball runner the minute a play is in motion, stop "Red" Grange, of Illinois, on Saturday? This is the major question of the day on the local campus. You answer it by asking several more: how grand is grand forks and what about the knives and spoons?

There will be no adequate answer to the Pennsylvania interogation until its ends come tearing in toward Grange on Saturday as soon as he gets the ball, which will be as soon as Illinois get the ball.

The Pennsylvania system calls for its wings to take several strides beyond the cautionary point before coming to a halt and diagnosing the direction of a play, in this way, they take the initiative and, against a team using little deception, they are quite effective.

The writer, however, has come to believe that Grange is inclined to some deception in his activities. He, in fact, is the most deceptive ball runner in the game and adds to this by being at least a double, if not always a triple threat.

EASTERN BACKS BID FOR FAME

Kreuz, Wilson, Hewitt, Slagle in Front Rank.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—For the first time in several seasons, the east may have a few plausible backfield candidates to offer when the All American plums are distributed. This section, which gave Jim Thorpe, Eddie Mahan, Brickley, Charley Barrett and other immortals to the game, hasn't produced a real All-American backfield star since Glenn Killinger graduated from Penn State three or four years ago. Koppisch, of Columbia, got the Camp vote last year, but was far from a foolproof halfback.

The backs of national note have come from the middle west, featuring Grange and the Four Horsemen of Notre Dame; the south where Wyckoff, of Georgia Tech, has held forth for three seasons, and from California and Stanford.

Come Into Their Own.

Now, however, the eastern ball runner seems to be coming back. Pennsylvania uncovered a fine pair in the Yale game, Kreuz and Rogers. Yale also has a couple of candidates, while Wilson, Hewitt and Buell, of the Army, are sectional leaders, even at this immature moment. Wilson was a costar with Killinger at Penn State and should know what it is all about by this time.

Shapley, of the Navy, is above the average. So is Keefer, of Brown, not to mention Oberlander, of Dartmouth, and Pease, of Columbia. Many thought Pease was more deserving than Koppisch of recognition last year.

Gustafson, of Pittsburgh, can also join the line forming on the left. Carlin, of W. and J., and Foley, of Syracuse, are very likely entries.

This brings the issue down to a man who has been around and about for years, receiving genedal recognition for his greatness, but escaping official notice, or being ignored by same. The writer refers to Tyron, of Colgate. If ever he is to come into his own, Tryon must do it this season, since it is to be his last. Gebhardt, of Lafayette, also is about due.

None at Harvard.

Princeton has a good back in Slagle, but Harvard has nothing, at least at this moment. It has one Miller, a 200-pounder, who has bettered 10 seconds on the track, but Miller, either through non-support or a frank lack of ability, has yet to astound or even interest the natives.

However, the day is early and the field is large. Anything may happen in November. Things usually do.

There is little likelihood that the east will produce another Thorpe or Mahan for another generation, not to mention the season of 1925. But, with the present calibre of material on hand, it has better than an even chance of turning out a really representative back for the first time since Killinger operated.

Penn Boasts Great Line.

There is more than an even chance that Singer and Thayer may find themselves drawn out of position on occasions, if there are, a fine time will be had by all, including Harold "Red" Grange.

The Penn ends happen to be an exceptionally fine paid, at that. They can do everything an end should do, with one possible exception. They cannot substitute for themselves. This is to be deplored, since the reserve wing strength is rather weak, as it were.

It is the only department in which the Pennsylvania team is not fool proof. It has a fine charging line, featuring Captain Wilson and Sierackі, a pair of All American possibilities. At the tackles, Butler, Snyder and Pike, three exceptional guards, and Robinson, another embryonic All American at center. Hake, at tackle, is just a stride behind the varsity pair.

All in all, Pennsylvania has one of the finest lines in the game.

This, ordinarily, is enough. But Pennsylvania goes further. It has a great plunger and kicker in Kruez, a ball runner and passer in Rogers, two good quarterbacks in Leith and Laird, and several spare ball runners in Fields, Douglas, Thomas and Sorensen.

A great team, in brief, and on the threshold of the greatest season Pennsylvania has known since 1904.

Penn "System" Factor.

Furthermore, the writer might suggest that it is about to undergo its greatest test of the season, Yale, Brown and Chicago to the contrary. This trio was knocked off in succession as Pennsylvania proceeded to maintain its unbeaten record, but Illinois, in spite of its spotty showing in the middle west, will prove the highest hurdle of the lot.

Why? For reasons several and probably sufficient. In the first place, the word has gone out that Kruez and Fields will be unable to play on Saturday because of injuries. If this is true, the Pennsylvania attack, never too potent, will lose fifty percent of its efficiency and the Pennsylvania team quite possibly will lose one hundred percent of the football game.

The other reason is Grange. This one might prove the abiding factor, whether Kruez plays or doesn't play.

Bob Zuppke is bringing on an Illinois team fully equipped to turn Grange into the open for the first time this season. He wants to win this game about as much as anything he ever wanted before.

"Get me an eastern game," Zuppke asked last year. They got him one. Zuppke is hardly the man to muff his opportunity when it falls in his hands.

Dempsey Takes Count At Hands of Mexican Law, Fined 500 Pesos

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 28. — Jack Dempsey has taken the count at the hands of the Mexican law, to the extent of 500 pesos.

A small automobile of a popular make was used as a grand stand to witness the triumphal arrival of Dempsey in Mexico City. The crowds rushing to see the fighter trampled over the automobile and wrecked it. According to the workings of the Mexican law, Dempsey was responsible for the collection of the crowd and therefore responsible for the damage to the automobile. He was assessed 500 pesos, which he paid with a smile.

T. S. T. BOWLERS LAND OPENER

Trim Laughlin Quint in League Clash.

A 657 "shot" at the maples in the first game of the season is not so bad, but this is the achievement of the Laughlin No. 1 crew of the Industrial Duckpin league in their encounter with the T. S. T. bowlers last night on the Liberty alleys. But, despite their inaugural efforts, the East Enders fell prey to the prowess of the T. S. T. quintet, which copped the second and third games of the three-ply series and the major portion of the honors.

C. Morris contributed no small part to the Laughlin conquest in the first game, rolling a 160, which was good for high score for the series. Although he dropped off in the second and third games, Morris, nevertheless, grabbed off honors for high average, with a mark of 132.

In the three games the East Enders dropped 73 more pins than the Chester five, but confined their efforts largely to the first game, and, as a result, the West Virginians finished ahead in the second and third, copping the finale by a margin of two pins.

Barnhart's 131 was high for T. S. T., with Baker, 129, and Canne, 127, right on his heels.

E. M. Knowles and Smith News, the latter taking the place of the Trotter team, will bowl tonight. K. T. K. and Laughlin 5 will meet on Thursday and Hall China and Laughlin 4 on Friday.

Laughlins Play Youngstown Team Saturday In West Penn Cup Tie

Manager Jesse Shaw's Homer Laughlin soccer club will clash with the Mahoning Valleys, of Youngstown, Saturday at Newell park in the local eleven's first tilt in the West Penn Cup tie.

Thirty-two teams are entered in the soccer competition, including many of the fastest outfits in western Pennsylvania and eastern Ohio. The Buckeye state is represented by the Mahoning Valleys and the St. Georges, of Youngstown, the Homer Laughlins and Niles.

The Valleys, champions of the Youngstown league in 1923 and 1924, bear a great reputation throughout the state. The Sharps, Whites, Corbine, the latter a halfback from Pittsburgh, and Leggett, goal tender, are well known to soccer fans here. Leggett played with the Thistles in East Liverpool several years ago.

The Sharp brothers are capable of a defense that enemy teams this year have found exceedingly difficult to penetrate. The Whites, also brothers, are fast forwards and especially deadly in front of the rival goal.

In the fall of 1924 five players were picked from the Mahoning Valleys to represent Ohio against a picked team from Michigan in a series of title games.

The Laughlins are in excellent shape and expect to make their first cup tie clash a real battle. The fact that they still lead the Press Northwest Division circuit with an unbroken string of victories indicates their ability to carry out their plans.

Robert Brown, secretary of the West Penn Football association, will referee the contest. The Valleys are scheduled to take the field at 3 o'clock and an extra period will be played in the event of a tie at the end of the regular playing time. Manager Jesse Shaw announced that the delay in the starting of the New Castle game here was no fault of the local club's, the visitors being detained as a result of an auto breakdown.

The Laughlin players will meet Thursday evening at 8 o'clock at the Eagles' home in Broadway.

W. & J. BISONS AT WHEELING

BETHANY, W. Va., Oct. 28.—Next Saturday the Bison football team will engage in its annual classic game with W. & J. This game was scheduled to be played at Washington, but due to the collapse of the W. & J. stands last week, there will be no more scheduled games played at their home field. Instead the game will take place at Wheeling.

This change of fields will be a help to the Bison squad because now the game will be played practically in their own back yard. Stebbs, Hamill and Serafini of the Bisons will be playing on a field where they were taught the angles of the game.

This year's game is causing more spirit than ever before. For the past three years the Green and White team lined up against the Presidents at horrible odds in W. & J.'s favor. This year the teams will be somewhat nearly matched. The handicap of weight in W. & J.'s favor will be made up in fight on the part of the Bisons. People come from all sections just to see the struggle between these two fighting units. "The play is the thing," and this kind of play is the brand enjoyed by all football-dom. This year's clash is bound to be filled with "Ahs" and "Ohs" because there will be no letup on the part of two well-conditioned teams until the final whistle has blown.

No wonder a film star's figure is so fine. It has been screened so often.—Youngstown Vindicator.

Expect Victory Over John Hopkins Next Saturday.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 28.—The John Hopkins university eleven of Baltimore is the attraction at the Pitt Stadium Saturday and a crowd of between 15,000 and 20,000 is expected. John Hopkins was met for the first time in football last year at the Baltimore stadium and gave the Panthers a very interesting game. Dr. Ray Van Orman, who learned football at Cornell under "Pop" Warner, is coach at Hopkins, and while his team is not as heavy as that of the Panthers it is well coached and knows a lot of football.

There will be a double attraction that day, the Penn State freshmen meeting the Panther Cubs at 12:30. The Pitt cubs have not been defeated this year, although Carnegie Tech Freshmen held them to a tie last Saturday. They have registered victories over the strong Kiski Prep team, West Virginia Freshmen and Westinghouse Tech eleven. Stars of the freshman team are Barnes, center, Guardino, end, Crabb, halfback and Rooney quarterback. Barnes entered Pitt from Broaddus Prep. Guarino is a Greensburg boy, who prepared at Bellefonte Academy, and Rooney is a product of Allegheny high school and Bellefonte academy. He is one of the best kickers Pitt has had in years. Crabb comes from Charleroi and played on the team which was runner up for the high school championship last year. There are a number of other star performers on the Pitt freshmen team. The Penn State Cubs also look very strong, having defeated Syracuse Freshmen last Saturday. Syracuse had previously won from Bellefonte, heretofore considered invincible.

The W. & J. game is in the offing and will be played in the Pitt stadium Saturday, November 7, the Saturday following the Hopkins game. A capacity crowd is expected at this game, as almost the entire population of Washington county will migrate to the Steel City to cheer for the Red and Black. W. & J.'s victory over Lafayette, in view of Lafayette's victory over the Panthers, makes them look like favorites, although "dope" means little when Pitt and W. & J. meet. W. & J. won by a one-touchdown margin over Pitt last year after quite a string of reverses.

Graduate K. E. Davis will accept mail orders for the W. & J. game at once. The price of tickets is $2.50 each, and there is no limit to the number of tickets a person can get. All orders should be accompanied by certified check, cash or money order, made payable to the University of Pittsburgh and mailed to Mr. Davis, at 503 Commonwealth Bldg.

FOUR STARS MISSING FROM BOONE'S ELEVEN

Scholastic Difficulties Take Banks and Bough Off Roster for Remainder of Season; Kinsey and R. Shaffer Unable to Play; Local Coach Also Fights Off Attack of Grippe as Important Game Nears.

Digression from the straight and narrow, sometimes rocky, but nevertheless profitable, path of scholastic duty, has ended the football careers, for 1925, of two of Coach O. V. Boone's line mainstays.

Guard Banks and Tackle Bough, having fallen away a little, it seems, from their course of learning, during a strenuous football campaign, transgressed the bounds of safety recently and, as a result, will be unable to wear the Blue and White again this season, under a ruling of the Ohio High School association, as interpreted by Coach Boone. They played their last game at Lisbon.

The team, apparently, has been badly jinxed in the last couple of weeks. Injuries alone were enough to keep the Blue and White mentor constantly changing his lineup, after the first two games, but now the scholastic bogey has thrust its head into the ranks and gobbled up a pair of stars and the vacancies they leave will be hard to fill.

Banks and Bough are only two of a quartet of first string performers who'll probably be missing the rest of the season.

There is no question about Ralph Shaffer, end and halfback, who was one of Boone's most dependable performers. Shaffer's knee was badly injured in the Struthers contest and he'll play no more this year.

Kinsey, a guard on a par with the best in the Boone introuage may be fortunate enough to get into action during the closing days of the season. But the chances are against it. Kinsey has been ill with grippe, and his condition, at the present time, at least, does not warrant any feeling that he'll be able to get back in the game.

Coach Boone, himself, yesterday was feeling the effects of the demon jinx. He was unable to leave his home as a result of an attack of grippe. But his illness will not long keep him off the football field. A rugged constitution and a determination to see the campaign through to the finish, especiall with two important county contests looming, will send him back to work in a day or so.

The first of this pair of battles is that with Salem Saturday afternoon at Patterson Field.

The Salemites have won four out of five clashes so far this season, leaving the battered remains of Niles, Cleveland West Tech, Struthers and East Palestine in their wake on their dash to football glory. They bent their knee to Geltz' Alliance eleven and that only after a desperate struggle.

East Palestine last Saturday was polished by Salem with a 15 to 6 swipe and this gives the dope experts a chance to work. Lisbon playing on their own lot, squashed the Brown and White by a 21-0 verdict, and East Liverpool managed to fork a 6-0 decision from the mud on the county seat gridiron. To some this comparison of scores made indicate an edge for the Ceramic City combine over the Red and Black of Salem; to others, it may indicate only that East Palestine is out of the running so far as county scholastic honors are concerned.

If Boone's team can erase Salem then only one more county game remains, as the schedule is arranged at present—and that with East Palestine.

At the present time Leetonia must be taken into consideration, although so far as the county leadership is concerned, the north countians have defeated only a green and comparatively inexperienced team from Wellsville. And that by a 6-0 score. Their principal games with Lisbon and Salem come later in the season.

Indians are Victors

The Kickapoo Indians easily defeated the fast Central team yesterday afternoon at Patterson Field. The game was well played despite the muddy condition of the field. The Centrals heretofore were undefeated. The Indians issue a challenge to all school teams in this city, Newell, Chester and Wellsville. For games call 1116-R and ask for Bud Lockett. The Indians would like a game especially with Chester Junior high.

The Story Of A Girl Who Dared

By Edgar Doe Norris

CHAPTER 80.

On an Indian Summer afternoon, Amoura was curled up on a chaise-lounge listening to the gossip expelled in quick, excited breaths by Lucia Berryman. This chaise lounge was faced with satin of her favorite hue, pale lavender, and it was arranged in the "sitting room" of her suite so that always in the afternoon it was bathed in the the sunlight floating across the valley from the bright hills beyond. She liked to repose in this sun because it gave her bobbed hair a dark golden brilliance that she wished she could make permanent. Her mind was upon this, and not upon what Lucia Berryman was saying. At last however, she was aroused by a question:

"Amoura, dear, why weren't you at Mary Holloway's bridge party yesterday afternoon? She expected you."

"Oh, I didn't feel like going. And Mary always has such a dull crowd."

"Yes." She smiled at Amoura in such a way that the latter had a sense of being uncomfortable.

"Who won the prizes?"

"I won the grand prize, a perfectly lovely beaten silver vanity and cigaret case, and the consolation prize went, I think, to Marcia Thompson. Poor Marcia! She just can't learn to count the cards."

"I can't either," Amoura laughed. "But it's a silly game."

"You didn't use to think so," Lucia observed, offended. "Incidentally, if you had been at the party and used your ears sharply, you might have heard something interesting." She showed her teeth in a smile.

"Another scandal, I suppose," Amoura responded, indifferently, picking at a fingernail with another.

"Well, THAT'S for YOU to say", Lucia laughed. "You know how everybody talks over the bridge table. Well, I heard someone at an adjoining table say that it looked like Vera Vaine wasn't going to have a chance to marry Philip Weinrich and his millions. They all laughed, and another of them said that Vera Vaine should have paid the kidnapers to hold Amoura Ainsley a little longer.

Amoura veiled her deep annoyane. "Oh, so that's what they're saying. Well, women have to have something to talk about. A cat has nine lives—and some women have nine cats' lives."

"While you were away Philip never did get this high on Indian Hill. Now—" Lucia smiled significantly.

"You always were deeply discerning, Lucia," Amoura smiled.

Her voice was uncertain as to how to take this remark, but she returned the beam. Soon she made her excuses and departed. Amoura, adhering to a resolution she had made two days before, after the scene with Philip, did not allow herself to think about him.

At the dinner table that evening J. Reginald Ainsley paused over his Cafe Bavaroise to say:

"When will you ladies be ready to go to South America? Now's the time to think of starting. It's summer there when it's winter here, you know."

"What do you think, dear?" Mrs. Reginald asked, addressing her daughter.

Amoura hesitated. She knew that her mother wanted to go. "Why, can't you and Dad make the trip by yourselves? I'm afraid I'd be the death of the party."

"Certainly not," her mother said. "Besides, Amoura added, "there's something I want to do this winter—in Westland." For the first time she mentioned to them her plans for the community institute in the slum district. She went into them with greater detail than in confiding them to Philip Weinrich. "What do you think?"

Mrs. J. Reginald looked askance at her husband.

"I think it's out of the question," he said. "There are too many charitable organizations now. All they succeed in doing is making these people more shiftless than ever."

"Yest, but this won't be charity! I want to teach them to help themselves."

"You'll only succeed in getting them discontented."

"That's the point," Amoura put in. "Get them discontented with their lot, and they'll want to better themselves."

"Their idea of bettering themselves is less work for more money."

No, none of my money for your scheme."

Amoura's upper lip stiffened, and her determination arose.

"Well, I AM going to open the institute." She decided to appeal to Grandma Ainsley for aid.

Everybody Worked But Father

"Father's stomach trouble seemed to be getting worse all the time and finally he had to quit work altogether. Two brothers and myself gave up school and went to work to support the family. Father had lost sixty pounds in weight and was yellow as saffron and no medicine helped him. Telling a friend about it six months ago, she advised taking Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. I got a bottle and it helped father at once. He was able to go back to work a month later, has regained his weight and strength and eats like a wood chopper." MARION, O.—The honor of being the brightest student of Harding high school here goes to Marvin Rife, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Rife.

This is substantiated by his school record, according to Miss Mattie Christian, principal of the Mart street school, where Marvin was enrolled in the elementary grades.

"Marvin never received a grade below A," Miss Christian said. "The majority of his grades have been A plus. The boy is a prodigy."

Marvin, who was born August 12, 1911, is taking a scientific course at Harding high school. He has an ambition to become a famous physician or surgeon.

Quality now talks Price

Motor car buyers are coming to Chandler.

For Chandler has done the unusual. Chandler has further advanced the standards and ideals of modern body-building, and has simultaneously reduced prices.

This new price move follows closely upon the news of the record-breaking performance of Chandler's marvelous Pikes Peak Motor on the mountain after which it is named—the world's highest automobile climb.

In the annual Labor Day automobile race up the dizzy heights of Pikes Peak, 14,109 feet above the sea, Chandler won the event in the record time of 17 minutes, 48 2/5 seconds. The best previous record was 18 minutes, 15 seconds.

Winner of so many performance records, Chandler is now winning new hosts of friends with a phenomenal closed car.

It is the new Chandler Twentieth Century Sedan—a better, richer, 4-door Sedan priced less than a 2-door coach—a reduction of $505.

It is every inch and every pound an automobile of quality—a finer Chandler in all ways—beautified and enriched in body, refined and perfected in chassis—and marvelously powered by Chandler's great Pikes Peak Motor.

You'll like the new Chandler the moment you set eyes on it. Everybody does.

You'll like it still more when you recline in its cushions. Everybody does.

And when you drive it ten miles you'll want to drive it forever. Everybody does!

The same things hold true with all other Chandler models. With them all, quality now talks price. See them.

CAMBRIDGESHIRE RUN OFF TODAY

NEWMARKET, England, Oct. 28.—Fine weather prevailed today for the Cambridgeshire handicap. Twenty horses are expected to go to the post at 2:35, with the Duke of Westminster's Twelve Pointer favorite. Beasley, who rode Forsetti in the Cesarewitch, is riding Twelve Pointer today.

Masked Marvel, owned by the American, A. K. Macomber, has considerable support on the basis of a report that Macomber backed his horses, Forsetti and Masked Marvel, in a double event for the Cesarewitch and the Cambridgeshire. Forsetti having won, Macomber stands to win the odds on $500 at 500 to 1, if Masked Marvel comes home first today.

CAN PENN END DEFENSE STOP GRANGE'S GAINS?

Will "Iceman" be Able to Thwart "Tearing in" Flankmen Who Have Been Drilled to Take Initiative? Illinois Star Himself Will Give to Philadelphia Campus Its Answer on Saturday Afternoon.

This is the eighth of a series of articles by Davis J. Walsh On some of the leading football teams of the east and middle west. Others will follow:

BY DAVIS WALSH

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 28.—Can the Pennsylvania system of end defease, with its wings going directly to the ball runner the minute a play is in motion, stop "Red" Grange, of Illinois, on Saturday? This is the major question of the day on the local campus. You answer it by asking several more: how grand is grand forks and what about the knives and spoons?

There will be no adequate answer to the Pennsylvania interogation until its ends come tearing in toward Grange on Saturday as soon as he gets the ball, which will be as soon as Illinois get the ball.

The Pennsylvania system calls for its wings to take several strides beyond the cautionary point before coming to a halt and diagnosing the direction of a play, in this way, they take the initiative and, against a team using little deception, they are quite effective.

The writer, however, has come to believe that Grange is inclined to some deception in his activities. He, in fact, is the most deceptive ball runner in the game and adds to this by being at least a double, if not always a triple threat.

EASTERN BACKS BID FOR FAME

Kreuz, Wilson, Hewitt, Slagle in Front Rank.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—For the first time in several seasons, the east may have a few plausible backfield candidates to offer when the All American plums are distributed. This section, which gave Jim Thorpe, Eddie Mahan, Brickley, Charley Barrett and other immortals to the game, hasn't produced a real All-American backfield star since Glenn Killinger graduated from Penn State three or four years ago. Koppisch, of Columbia, got the Camp vote last year, but was far from a foolproof halfback.

The backs of national note have come from the middle west, featuring Grange and the Four Horsemen of Notre Dame; the south where Wyckoff, of Georgia Tech, has held forth for three seasons, and from California and Stanford.

Come Into Their Own.

Now, however, the eastern ball runner seems to be coming back. Pennsylvania uncovered a fine pair in the Yale game, Kreuz and Rogers. Yale also has a couple of candidates, while Wilson, Hewitt and Buell, of the Army, are sectional leaders, even at this immature moment. Wilson was a co-star with Killinger at Penn State and should know what it is all about by this time.

Shapley, of the Navy, is above the average. So is Keefer, of Brown, not to mention Oberlander, of Dartmouth, and Pease, of Columbia. Many thought Pease was more deserving than Koppisch of recognition last year.

Gustafson, of Pittsburgh, can also join the line forming on the left. Carlin, of W. and J., and Foley, of Syracuse, are very likely entries.

This brings the issue down to a man who has been around and about for years, receiving genedal recognition for his greatness, but escaping official notice, or being ignored by same. The writer refers to Tyron, of Colgate. If ever he is to come into his own, Tryon must do it this season, since it is to be his last. Gebhardt, of Lafayette, also is about due.

None at Harvard.

Princeton has a good back in Slagle, but Harvard has nothing, at least at this moment. It has one Miller, a 200-pounder, who has bettered 10 seconds on the track, but Miller, either through non-support or a frank lack of ability, has yet to astound or even interest the natives.

However, the day is early and the field is large. Anything may happen in November. Things usually do.

There is little likelihood that the east will produce another Thorpe or Mahan for another generation, not to mention the season of 1925. But, with the present calibre of material on hand, it has better than an even chance of turning out a really representative back for the first time since Killinger operated.

Penn Boasts Great Line.

There is more than an even chance that Singer and Thayer may find themselves drawn out of position on occasions, if there are, a fine time will be had by all, including Harold "Red" Grange.

The Penn ends happen to be an exceptionally fine paid, at that. They can do everything an end should do, with one possible exception. They cannot substitute for themselves. This is to be deplored, since the reserve wing strength is rather weak, as it were.

It is the only department in which the Pennsylvania team is not fool proof. It has a fine charging line, featuring Captain Wilson and Sieracki, a pair of All American possibilities. At the tackles, Butler, Snyder and Pike, three exceptional guards, and Robinson, another embryonic All American at center. Hake, at tackle, is just a stride behind the varsity pair.

All in all, Pennsylvania has one of the finest lines in the game.

This, ordinarily, is enough. But Pennsylvania goes further. It has a great plunger and kicker in Kruez, a ball runner and passer in Rogers, two good quarterbacks in Leith and Laird, and several spare ball runners in Fields, Douglas, Thomas and Sorensen.

A great team, in brief, and on the threshold of the greatest season Pennsylvania has known since 1904.

Penn "System" Factor.

Furthermore, the writer might suggest that it is about to undergo its greatest test of the season, Yale, Brown and Chicago to the contrary. This trio was knocked off in succession as Pennsylvania proceeded to maintain its unbeaten record, but Illinois, in spite of its spotty showing in the middle west, will prove the highest hurdle of the lot.

Why? For reasons several and probably sufficient. In the first place, the word has gone out that Kruez and Fields will be unable to play on Saturday because of injuries. If this is true, the Pennsylvania attack, never too potent, will lose fifty percent of its efficiency and the Pennsylvania team quite possibly will lose one hundred percent of the football game.

The other reason is Grange. This one might prove the abiding factor, whether Kruez plays or doesn't play.

Bob Zuppke is bringing on an Illinois team fully equipped to turn Grange into the open for the first time this season. He wants to win this game about as much as anything he ever wanted before.

"Get me an eastern game," Zuppke asked last year. They got him one. Zuppke is hardly the man to muff his opportunity when it falls in his hands.

Laughlins Play Youngstown Team Saturday In West Penn Cup Tie

Manager Jesse Shaw's Homer Laughlin soccer club will clash with the Mahoning Valleys, of Youngstown, Saturday at Newell park in the local eleven's first tilt in the West Penn Cup tie.

Thirty-two teams are entered in the soccer competition, including many of the fastest outfits in western Pennsylvania and eastern Ohio. The Buckeye state is represented by the Mahoning Valleys and the St. Georges, of Youngstown, the Homer Laughlins and Niles.

The Valleys, champions of the Youngstown league in 1923 and 1924, bear a great reputation throughout the state. The Sharps, Whites, Corbine, the latter a halfback from Pittsburgh, and Leggett, goal tender, are well known to soccer fans here. Leggett played with the Thistles in East Liverpool several years ago.

The Sharp brothers are capable of a defense that enemy teams this year have found exceedingly difficult to penetrate. The Whites, also brothers, are fast forwards and especially deadly in front of the rival goal.

In the fall of 1924 five players were picked from the Mahoning Valleys to represent Ohio against a picked team from Michigan in a series of title games.

The Laughlins are in excellent shape and expect to make their first cup tie clash a real battle. The fact that they still lead the Press Northwest Division circuit with an unbroken string of victories indicates their ability to carry out their plans.

Robert Brown, secretary of the West Penn Football association, will referee the contest. The Valleys are scheduled to take the field at 3 o'clock and an extra period will be played in the event of a tie at the end of the regular playing time. Manager Jesse Shaw announced that the delay in the starting of the New Castle game here was no fault of the local club's, the visitors being detained as a result of an auto breakdown.

The Laughlin players will meet Thursday evening at 8 o'clock at the Eagles' home in Broadway.

Dempsey Takes Count At Hands of Mexican Law, Fined 500 Pesos

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 28. — Jack Dempsey has taken the count at the hands of the Mexican law, to the extent of 500 pesos.

A small automobile of a popular make was used as a grand stand to witness the triumphal arrival of Dempsey in Mexico City. The crowds rushing to see the fighter trampled over the automobile and wrecked it. According to the workings of the Mexican law, Dempsey was responsible for the collection of the crowd and therefore responsible for the damage to the automobile. He was assessed 500 pesos, which he paid with a smile.

T. S. T. BOWLERS LAND OPENER

Trim Laughlin Quint in League Clash.

A 657 "shot" at the maples in the first game of the season is not so bad, but this is the achievement of the Laughlin No. 1 crew of the Industrial Duckpin league in their encounter with the T. S. T. bowlers last night on the Liberty alleys. But, despite their inaugural efforts, the East Enders fell prey to the prowess of the T. S. T. quintet, which copped the second and third games of the three-ply series and the major portion of the honors.

C. Morris contributed no small part to the Laughlin conquest in the first game, rolling a 160, which was good for high score for the series. Although he dropped off in the second and third games, Morris, nevertheless, grabbed off honors for high average, with a mark of 132.

In the three games the East Enders dropped 73 more pins than the Chester five, but confined their efforts largely to the first game, and, as a result, the West Virginians finished ahead in the second and third, copping the finale by a margin of two pins.

Barnhart's 131 was high for T. S. T., with Baker, 129, and Canne, 127, right on his heels.

E. M. Knowles and Smith News, the latter taking the place of the Trotter team, will bowl tonight. K. T. K. and Laughlin 5 will meet on Thursday and Hall China and Laughlin 4 on Friday.

W. & J. BISONS AT WHEELING

BETHANY, W. Va., Oct. 28.—Next Saturday the Bison football team will engage in its annual classic game with W. & J. This game was scheduled to be played at Washington, but due to the collapse of the W. & J. stands last week, there will be no more scheduled games played at their home field. Instead the game will take place at Wheeling.

This change of fields will be a help to the Bison squad because now the game will be played practically in their own back yard. Stebbs, Hamill and Serafini of the Bisons will be playing on a field where they were taught the angles of the game.

This year's game is causing more spirit than ever before. For the past three years the Green and White team lined up against the Presidents at horrible odds in W. & J.'s favor. This year the teams will be somewhat nearly matched. The handican of weight in W. & J.'s favor will be made up in fight on the part of the Bisons. People come from all sections just to see the struggle between these two fighting units. "The play is the thing," and this kind of play is the brand enjoyed by all football-dom. This year's clash is bound to be filled with "Ahs" and "Obs" because there will be no letup on the part of two well-conditioned teams until the final whistle has blown.

PITT PREPARING FOR W. & J. GAME

Expect Victory Over John Hopkins Next Saturday.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 28.—The John Hopkins university eleven of Baltimore is the attraction at the Pitt Stadium Saturday and a crowd of between 15,000 and 20,000 is expected. John Hopkins was met for the first time in football last year at the Baltimore stadium and gave the Panthers a very interesting game. Dr. Ray Van Orman, who learned football at Cornell under "Pop" Warner, is coach at Hopkins, and while his team is not as heavy as that of the Panthers it is well coached and knows a lot of football.

There will be a double attraction that day, the Penn State freshmen meeting the Panther Cubs at 12:30. The Pitt cubs have not been defeated this year, although Carnegie Tech Freshmen held them to a tie last Saturday. They have registered victories over the strong Kiski Prep team, West Virginia Freshmen and Westinghouse Tech eleven. Stars of the freshman team are Barnes, center, Guardino, end, Crabb, halfback and Rooney quarterback. Barnes entered Pitt from Broaddus Prep. Guarino is a Greensburg boy, who prepared at Bellefonte Academy, and Rooney is a product of Allegheny high school and Bellefonte academy. He is one of the best kickers Pitt has had in years. Crabb comes from Charleroi and played on the team which was runner up for the high school championship last year. There are a number of other star performers on the Pitt freshmen team. The Penn State Cubs also look very strong, having defeated Syracuse Freshmen last Saturday. Syracuse had previously won from Bellefonte, heretofore considered invincible.

The W. & J. game is in the offing and will be played in the Pitt stadium Saturday, November 7, the Saturday following the Hopkins game. A capacity crowd is expected at this game, as almost the entire population of Washington county will migrate to the Steel City to cheer for the Red and Black. W. & J.'s victory over Lafayette, in view of Lafayette's victory over the Panthers, makes them look like favorites, although "dope" means little when Pitt and W. & J. meet. W. & J. won by a one-touchdown margin over Pitt last year after quite a string of reverses.

Graduate K. E. Davis will accept mail orders for the W. & J. game at once. The price of tickets is $2.50 each, and there is no limit to the number of tickets a person can get. All orders should be accompanied by certified check, cash or money order, made payable to the University of Pittsburgh and mailed to Mr. Davis, at 503 Commonwealth Bldg.

FOUR STARS MISSING FROM BOONE'S ELEVEN

Scholastic Difficulties Take Banks and Bough Off Roster for Remainder of Season; Kinsey and R. Shaffer Unable to Play; Local Coach Also Fights Off Attack of Grippe as Important Game Nears.

Digression from the straight and narrow, sometimes rocky, but nevertheless profitable, path of scholastic duty, has ended the football careers, for 1925, of two of Coach O. V. Boone's line mainstays.

Guard Banks and Tackle Bough, having fallen away a little, it seems, from their course of learning, during a strenuous football campaign, transgressed the bounds of safety recently and, as a result, will be unable to wear the Blue and White again this season, under a ruling of the Ohio High School association, as interpreted by Coach Boone. They played their last game at Lisbon.

The team, apparently, has been badly jinxed in the last couple of weeks. Injuries alone were enough to keep the Blue and White mentor constantly changing his lineup, after the first two games, but now the scholastic bogey has thrust its head into the ranks and gobbled up a pair of stars and the vacancies they leave will be hard to fill.

Banks and Bough are only two of a quartet of first string performers who'll probably be missing the rest of the season.

There is no question about Ralph Shaffer, end and halfback, who was one of Boone's most dependable performers. Shaffer's knee was badly injured in the Struthers contest and he'll play no more this year.

Kinsey, a guard on a par with the best in the Boone introuage may be fortunate enough to get into action during the closing days of the season. But the chances are against it. Kinsey has been ill with grippe, and his condition, at the present time, at least, does not warrant any feeling that he'll be able to get back in the game.

Coach Boone, himself, yesterday was feeling the effects of the demon jinx. He was unable to leave his home as a result of an attack of grippe. But his illness will not long keep him off the football field. A rugged constitution and a determination to see the campaign through to the finish, especiall with two important county contests looming, will send him back to work in a day or so.

The first of this pair of battles is that with Salem Saturday afternoon at Patterson Field.

The Salemites have won four out of five clashes so far this season, leaving the battered remains of Niles, Cleveland West Tech, Struthers and East Palestine in their wake on their dash to football glory. They bent their knee to Geltz' Alliance eleven and that only after a desperate struggle.

East Palestine last Saturday was polished by Salem with a 15 to 6 swipe and this gives the dope experts a chance to work. Lisbon playing on their own lot, squashed the Brown and White by a 21-0 verdict, and East Liverpool managed to fork a 6-0 decision from the mud on the county seat gridiron. To some this comparison of scores made indicate an edge for the Ceramic City combine over the Red and Black of Salem; to others, it may indicate only that East Palestine is out of the running so far as county scholastic honors are concerned.

If Boone's team can erase Salem then only one more county game remains, as the schedule is arranged at present—and that with East Palestine.

At the present time Leetonia must be taken into consideration, although so far as the county leadership is concerned, the north countians have defeated only a green and comparatively inexperienced team from Wellsville. And that by a 6-0 score. Their principal games with Lisbon and Salem come later in the season.

Indians are Victors

The Kickapoo Indians easily defeated the fast Central team yesterday afternoon at Patterson Field. The game was well played despite the muddy condition of the field. The Centrals heretofore were undefeated. The Indians issue a challenge to all school teams in this city, Newell, Chester and Wellsville. For games call 1116-R and ask for Bud Lockett. The Indians would like a game especially with Chester Junior high.

CAMBRIDGESHIRE RUN OFF TODAY

NEWMARKET, England, Oct. 28.—Fine weather prevailed today for the Cambridgeshire handicap. Twenty horses are expected to go to the post at 2:35, with the Duke of Westminster's Twelve Pointer favorite. Beasley, who rode Forsetti in the Cesarewitch, is riding Twelve Pointer today.

Masked Marvel, owned by the American, A. K. Macomber, has considerable support on the basis of a report that Macomber backed his horses, Forsetti and Masked Marvel, in a double event for the Cesarewitch and the Cambridgeshire, Forsetti having won, Macomber stands to win the odds on $500 at 500 to 1, if Masked Marvel comes home first today.
